SUNDAY MAIL LAW WAS MISUNDERSTOOD

Hitchcock Will Construe It Liberally and There'll Be No Delays in Delivery.

WON'T HAMPER BUSINESS MEN

Hotels and Newspapers to Get Their Mail as Usual and All Emergency Letters Will Be Available.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A large number of inquiries and a deluge of complaints brought home to Postmaster General Hitchcock and other Post Office officials to-day the widespread fear among business men that the provision adopted in the Post Office Appropriation act which prohibited first and second class offices from keeping open on Sunday, would have a very serious effect in preventing the prompt delivery of mail matter.

As soon as he reached the department to-day Mr. Hitchcock went into conference with his "cabinet" and made a careful study of the new provision, which applies as a limitation on the appropriation of $37,878,000 for the pay of clerks and employes at first and second class Post Offices, and reads as follows:

Provided that hereafter Post Offices of the first and second classes shall not be open on Sundays for the purpose of delivering mail to the general public, but this provision shall not prevent the prompt delivery of mail by special delivery.

It was agreed by the postal officials that the protests and complaints against the new law which was offered as an amendment to the Appropriation bill by Representative Mann of Illinois, the minority leader, were based on a misapprehension of the Sunday closing prohibition, and Postmaster General Hitchcock issued a long statement pointing out the ways in which the seeming point-blank prohibition of mail delivery would be mitigated by liberal construction without any evasion of the provisions of the law.

Little Mail Affected.

The Sunday mail prohibition does not apply to Post Offices of the third and fourth classes, which will be open as usual for delivery of mails. It affects only the first and second class offices, and does not require them to close absolutely on Sunday. It merely directs that these offices shall not be "open on Sundays for delivery of mails to the general public."

It does not prohibit the placing of mail in lock boxes, which will be accessible to those having keys.

It will not prevent the delivery of special delivery mail as in the past.

It will not interfere with the sorting and delivery of mail addressed to newspapers and hotels, and, as pointed out by Postmaster General Hitchcock, Postmasters in first and second class offices will be allowed to sort out emergency letters.

By eliminating the delivery on Sundays of the ordinary run of mail addressed to the general public, the Post Office officials believe that emergency, newspaper, hotel, and other important mail, which ought to be delivered on Sunday, will be better and more readily handled.

Postmaster General Hitchcock's statement was as follows:

"There appears to be some misapprehension as regards the provision in the postal bill relating to the delivery of mail on Sundays. This provision does not require the closing of Post Offices on Sunday, which would be quite impossible, owing to the fact that the transit mail has to be sorted and also the mail collected in cities for dispatch to other destinations. To stop the movement of this mail would mean a serious clogging of the whole system of mail transportation and consequent inconvenience to the public.

"At present, mail received on Sunday for delivery by carrier Monday morning, is worked after midnight on Sunday, and, therefore, the law will not affect this mail. It will be delivered as promptly as hitherto. Mail received up to midnight on Saturday for lock boxes will be distributed to the boxes, and will be available to box-holders on Sunday as usual.

"There is at present no street delivery of mail by letter carriers on Sunday, and, therefore, the law makes no changes in this regard. In short, the only mail that will be affected under a reasonable construction of the new law is that received at the Post Offices on Sunday and hitherto sorted on that day for distribution to lock boxes.

No Delay in Hotel Mail.

"As the purpose of the law, which was clearly enacted in the interest of employes, is to reduce as far as practicable the amount of Sunday labor, the work of distributing Sunday mail to lock boxes will be limited to certain classes of mail that cannot be held until Monday morning without serious inconvenience to the addressees.

"This mail will include that for newspapers and for hotel guests. The latter is peculiarly transient in character, and should not be delayed. This mail, like the special delivery mail, will be sorted out at the offices of dispatch on the railway mail trains in order to simplify the work of distributing it in the Post Offices on Sundays. Under the new method its distribution to the boxes on Sunday will be hastened rather than delayed.

"As practically all business houses are now closed on Sunday, they do not object to the plan, which has been in force for a year, of holding their mail until Monday morning, realizing the benefit thus conferred on postal employes, who are thereby relieved from Sunday labor.

"In order to give the new provision as liberal a construction as possible, postmasters will be instructed, on application, to have their employes sort out in emergency cases on Sundays letters of special importance. This will supplement the present privilege of having all mail delivered on Sunday that carries a special delivery stamp.

"By the proposed changes in the method of putting up mail in the offices of origin and in its handling on the railway mail trains a satisfactory distribution can be made in Post Offices on Sundays with less work than is now required. Thus the law can be made to confer great benefits on postal employes without inconvenience to the public."

There seems to be a general impression that the Sunday closing provision got into the Post Office Appropriation bill as a joker. Such is not the case. It originated in the House of Representatives as an amendment offered openly by Representative Mann on April 16. No one objected to the amendment which attracted practically no attention, owing, no doubt, to the great interest felt in the parcels post and other important provisions of the measure.

No Hamper to Business, Says Mann.

Representative Mann discussed the Sunday mail question to-day with postal officials. He said there was no intent on the part of Congress to restrict the activities of the Post Office Department as to inconvenience seriously the business public.

"It is absurd," he declared, "for anybody to assume that Congress meant to close Post Offices as tight as a wedge on Sunday. We simply required that there should be no delivery of mail to the AUSTRIA'S $160,000 WASTED.

Paid to Suppress King Milan's Memoirs, but There Was a Copy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 27.—The Journal De Genève announces that the memoirs of the late ex-King Milan, father of the murdered King Alexander of Servia, are shortly to be published. They will throw a new light on Austro-Russian intrigues in the Balkans, and the rivalry of those powers.

When King Milan, ruined by gambling, went to Paris he decided to write his memoirs in order to replenish his exchequer. Later, however, he became reconciled with his former wife, Queen Nathalie, whom he had badly handled in the memoirs, and he thereupon burned the manuscript.

In 1900, while in Vienna, Milan rewrote the memoirs, but, it is asserted, lodged them in the secret archives of the Austrian Court for a consideration of 800,000 Kronen, ($160,000.) A Servian political personage, however, had obtained a copy of the memoirs written in Paris, and now intimates that he is about to publish them.

SOLDIERS SHOOT UP A TOWN.

Family in Peril from Flying Bullets —Six Artillery Men Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 27.—A half dozen or more privates of the Eighty-first Company, Coast Artillery Corps, stationed at Fort Dupont, Del., shot up Dobbinsville, a suburb of New Castle, Del., early this morning. They were armed with army rifles and ball cartridges.

The dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. William Maher, who with their four children, ranging in age from 12 to 18, were awakened by the shooting, was riddled with bullets. Nearly every window was broken and bricks were shot from window ledges. The family, all thoroughly frightened, sought safety beneath the beds. Mr. Maher appeared at a window and begged the soldiers to stop shooting. Their reply was a bullet that grazed his hair.

Other citizens shouted from their windows, but they, too, were forced to withdraw for safety. It is estimated that fifty to one hundred shots were fired.

The cause of the trouble was a fight at Dobbinsville, in which the soldiers were routed. They returned to the State rifle range, a couple of miles distant, where the Eighty-first and Fifty-fifth companies were encamped for rifle practice, but two hours later they purloined a quantity of cartridges and started for Dobbinsville. To leave the rifle range they had to elude the sentries.

The men will be tried by a general court-martial at Fort Dupont. The punishment will be imprisonment and dishonorable discharge from the army. Although a good many shots were fired, no one was struck, the streets being deserted.

CUBAN ATTACKS AMERICANS.

Row in Havana Cafe in Which Legation Officials Are Beaten.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Aug. 27.—Asserting that he was resenting a humiliation heaped on his country, Enrique Maza, a Cuban reporter on duty at the State Department, attacked Hugh S. Gibson, the First American Secretary and Chargé this evening in the Malcon Prado restaurant.

Mr. Gibson, accompanied by E. W. Bell, Second Secretary of the American Legation, and another friend, was entering the dining room from the lobby when Maza approached and asked:

"Are you Mr. Gibson?"

He received an affirmative reply and then struck Gibson in the face and knocked him down. Bell went to Gibson's assistance and was also knocked down. All were struggling when bystanders separated them.

Maza, who is not 24 years old, was arrested and held. The Cuban Secretary of State, Señor Yanguilly, hastened to express regrets for the assault.

The row was the outcome of Mr. Gibson's insistence on the payment of the Reilly claim, which was finally paid after a stormy meeting to-day at the State Department.

TIME SIGNALS BY WIRELESS

To be Flashed from Arlington All Over the Country.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Under orders from the Secretary of the Navy, the new wireless station at Arlington, Va., which will be the largest in the world, is to send out time signals to all parts of the United States and as far out to sea as the radius of the station may reach. The three steel towers of the station are now nearly completed, the centre one being 650 feet high and making a landmark that is seen for many miles in every direction. Besides maintaining communication with naval vessels in all parts of the Atlantic, the flashing of time signals throughout the country will be one of the chief functions of the new station. Many of the large jewelry stores are preparing to install their own wireless stations, purchasing receiving apparatus and all necessary equipment so that they may correct their clocks and timepieces by wireless.

The United States will be the first nation in which the flashing of time signals by wireless has been attempted. It is not expected that the Arlington station will eliminate the Western Union time-flashing system, but will supplement it.

There are many mechanical difficulties in time flashing yet to be solved. It is not known what wave length will be most effective at the wireless station. Therefore, jewelers are warned not to purchase receiving apparatus which may prove useless to them unless it is tuned to the proper wave length. It is not certain just how far over the Alleghany Mountains the new station will be able to reach. It is expected that flashes from Arlington will go 3,000 miles out to sea, but whether they will reach more than 1,500 miles to the west, or even that far, is yet to be shown.

WOMEN NOT YOUNG AT 25.

Chicago Y. W. C. A. Turns Them Out to Make Room for the Really Young.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 27.—A woman is no longer young when she attains the age of 25 and therefore is ineligible for the privilege of making her home and residence in a building exclusively dedicated to the purpose of the Young Woman's Christian Association, according to a decision just reached by the Board of Directors of the Young Woman's Christian Association of this city, who conduct a home for young women on Michigan Boulevard.

The opinion of the Board of Directors on this question was crystallized in 21 pink slips sent yesterday to as many young women who have passed the age of 25 and have not reached 30, requiring them to vacate their comfortable quarters in the association building not later than Sept. 2.

There is constant pressure for rooms from young girls in country towns who have offers of employment in Chicago, but fear to come here without protection.

CHANCELLOR DAY OUT TO SUSTAIN ARCHBOLD

Volunteers to The Times Testimony of a Conversation About Oil Trust's Campaign Gift

AND THE CONDITIONS MADE

Archbold, Says Dr. Day, Told Friends About It, Himself Among the Number—Swift Not to be a Witness.

The Roosevelt-Penrose-Archbold controversy over John D. Archbold's testimony that the Standard Oil Company contributed $125,000, as he believed with Mr. Roosevelt's knowledge and consent, to the Republican campaign fund of 1904, which helped to elect Roosevelt to the Presidency—testimony which Mr. Roosevelt has since denounced as a "frame-up"—brought forth a volunteer witness yesterday in the person of Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University.

Chancellor Day, in a letter to THE TIMES, printed below, asserts that he can corroborate Mr. Archbold's testimony as to his understanding that the Standard Oil contribution was made with Mr. Roosevelt's full knowledge and consent, because Mr. Archbold mentioned the contribution and his understanding of the circumstances, to personal friends, the Chancellor among the number, a few days after Mr. Roosevelt's election.

Here is the letter:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If Col. Roosevelt is to testify before the Senate committee in reply to Mr. Archbold, I would like to testify through THE TIMES or, if necessary, under oath.

The answer to Mr. Roosevelt's charge that Mr. Archbold's testimony is a "frame-up" is the fact that Mr. Archbold told the incident to a few of his friends confidentially at that time. He told me just after the election of Mr. Roosevelt, one day when I was lunching with him, of the visit of Col. Bliss to his office and the conversation that took place. It covered all that Mr. Archbold said before the Senate committee, and more. Col. Bliss was then alive. I remember that Mr. Archbold spoke of the high integrity of Col. Bliss, and that his relation to Mr. Roosevelt was so intimate and his knowledge of everything connected with the campaign funds so perfect that there could be no doubt of the facts which Col. Bliss had stated and of Mr. Roosevelt's full knowledge. Mr. Archbold told Col. Bliss that his company did not wish to pay money to help elect a man who was such a menace to the business of the country and who was in such an unfriendly attitude. Col. Bliss said that toward the Standard Company in particular Mr. Roosevelt had met with a decided change of view upon such matters, and he was certain that Mr. Roosevelt would be conservative and safe in a second term.

With the plain agreement and understanding that Col. Bliss would accept the money on these terms, and that the President would appreciate it, the $100,000 was given.

Not a word was heard that the money was not as acceptable as the subscriptions from other great corporations until the further subscription or gift of $150,000 was refused.

Those who recall the revengeful spite and anger of Mr. Roosevelt when his will is opposed will not be surprised at the snappish and angry letter which he wrote Mr. Cortelyou refusing money from the Standard Oil Company! Besides, it will be remembered that Judge Parker was at that time accusing Mr. Roosevelt of using corporation money. This Mr. Roosevelt was denying with great vehemence and characteristic assault upon Judge Parker.

Was there ever a more mendacious "frame-up" than this refusal of money that had been given and spent and the $150,000 that had been refused? Nothing could have been more opportune. It cost nothing. It left the door open which Col. Bliss, with Mr. Roosevelt's consent, had closed, much, however, to the chagrin of Col. Bliss, and it answered Judge Parker. It was a master stroke, which never would have been known but for the publication of a stolen letter and a Senate investigation, for which Mr. Archbold was not responsible.

SWIFT NOT A WITNESS.

Chicago Packer Denies That He Offered Campaign Fund Testimony.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Reports emanating from Washington that Louis F. Swift, President of Swift & Co., had telegraphed Senator Clapp asking to be permitted to testify regarding the contributions of the packers to Col. Roosevelt's campaign in 1904 were emphatically denied by Mr. Swift at his home in Lake Forest to-night.

"I did not send such a telegram," he said. "The reports are ridiculous and absolutely without foundation. I know of none of the officials of the packing companies in Chicago having sent a telegram of that nature or having communicated in any way with Senator Clapp or any member of the Committee on Privileges and Elections."

Color to the rumor was given in the fact that the Democrats in 1904 loudly proclaimed that the packers had made large contributions to the Roosevelt campaign, as had other corporations.

CHICAGO NOT AMERICAN.

No More So Than New York, Say the Visiting Geographers.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Forty-five geographers from Europe, viewing the United States as the guests of the American Geographical Society, toured Chicago today and gained first-hand knowledge of its extent, population and points of interest.

"Chicago is not representative of the United States. It is big. It is wonderful, but it is no more American than is New York," said Dr. Alfred Ruhl, Chief of Division of the Oceanographic Institute of Berlin, Germany, summarizing the opinion of the most of the party. "When we get outside of the big cities we hope to see something of the real American people."

The trip of the savants was arranged as a part of the sixtieth anniversary of the New York Society, and will include a journey to the Pacific Coast, with stops at important places and excursions to geographic and geological places of note.

BURNS SQUAD GUARDS ROCKEFELLER ESTATE

John D., Jr., Installs Strong Force of Detectives to Protect Italian Workmen.

DETECTIVE HEAD ON SCENE

He Spends Afternoon Studying the Disorder Problem—Rockefeller Departs Ere Nightfall.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., took Detective William J. Burns to Pocantico Hills yesterday to investigate the disorder among the Italian population, which has caused several hold-ups and shootings on the Rockefeller estate and in its immediate vicinity. Detective Burns has a squad of men on guard at the estate. Detective Burns spent the entire afternoon at the Rockefeller estate studying the problem of protecting the Italians who have remained at work and who live at Tarrytown, North Tarrytown, and Tarrytown Heights, where disorder has been prevalent.

After a thorough survey of the ground with Detective Burns Mr. Rockefeller returned to New York and issued the following formal statement:

"I am glad to say that the reports current in several of the newspapers for the last few days with reference to alleged labor troubles on my father's estate at Pocantico Hills are much exaggerated. My father has a number of Italians working for him. Many have been in his employ for five, ten, or more years and are highly trusted and regarded by him. There has been no trouble between my father and these Italians nor between my father's Acting Superintendent and the Italian laborers, nor have any of the men been discharged, as has been reported. The several acts of violence to which publicity has been given were the outgrowth of jealousy among certain of the men, which has led to the desire on the part of some to drive out others.

"That law and order may be maintained, and more to prevent trouble than to put it down, we have taken hold of the situation strongly and have placed an ample force of guards at different points about the place and the village Sheriff Doyle and his assistant, Mr. Nossiter, have been active and vigorous in meeting the situation. They have already arrested two men who have been implicated. William J. Burns is also acting with us. He has spent the entire afternoon at Pocantico familiarising himself with every detail of the situation and conferring with the Sheriff as to how he can help him most effectively. Both Mr. Burns and the Sheriff have an adequate force of their men on the estate.

"My father has confidence in his employes and laborers, and the friendliest feeling has always existed between him and them. He does not propose to permit a few disgruntled men to intimidate or interfere with the large number of men who are faithful and loyal."

Despite this statement Mr. Rockefeller did not take his family to his house on the estate. He left Pocantico before the fall of dusk and earlier than quitting time for the laborers on the estate, most of whom are busy with a deep excavation behind the stone castle on the tallest hill.

The laborers showed signs of terror yesterday. They refused to go to their homes by way of the wooded roads, but followed the tracks of the Putnam division of the New York Central. They were armed with sticks and stones to prevent any attack from ambush. Until they were stopped by Sheriff Doyle's men the laborers who remained at work had been in the habit of shouldering crowbines and rifles on their way to and from work. Small groups of laborers will be escorted to near-by settlements in the future by Burns operatives until the present disorder is over.

BULL MOOSE VOTE IS LIGHT.

Michigan Primaries Poorly Attended Except in Detroit.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Aug. 27.—Early reports on the State-wide primaries to-day showed that the Bull Moose vote was small, as the Progressive Party was not in existence on the last enrollment day. Voters not enrolled at all and voters enrolled with any other party were allowed to change their enrollment to-day to the third party. But few did so.

The ballots were numbered in separate serials for each party, and up to 5 o'clock to-night only one Detroit precinct had enough calls for them to reach double figures. That was the one in which the Bull Moose State Chairman lives, and he had raised the Progressive vote to fourteen.

The polls in most district closed in Detroit at 10 o'clock. Little interest was shown outside of this city.

The features of the Detroit fight were the battle between Mayor William B. Thompson and Police Justice E. J. Jeffreys for the Mayoralty nomination, and the contests for renomination of the eighteen Aldermen, recently arrested on bribery charges.

The Mayoralty contest is close, but several of the Aldermen arrested have apparently won renominations.

Amos Musselman of Grand Rapids and Secretary of State Fred C. Martindale are running neck and neck for the Republican nomination for Governor.

In the contest for United States Senator on the Democratic ticket Alfred Lucking of Detroit had a strong early lead over George P. Hummer of Holland.

RECLUSE LEAVES $200,000.

One Safety Box of Jersey City Man Yields $80,000 in Bills.

The poor folks living in the neighborhood of 20 Bright Street, Jersey City, opened their eyes wide yesterday when they heard that old Michael Kiley, who lived for years as a recluse in the faded house with its threadbare furnishings, had died possessed of a fortune which the appraisers now estimate at $200,000. The neighbors knew Kiley was miserly, and rumor always had it that he was rich, but they never dreamed he had such a hoard.

Three Jersey City banks have yielded more than $150,000 in cash, stocks, and railroad bonds. One safety box in another bank was found to contain $30,000 in bills and another safety box contained $3,682. Of this he left $85,000 to Mrs. Margaret Jones, who took care of him in the Bright Street house. Half that sum is left to Miss Catherine Daly, a neighbor who befriended Kiley while the St. Joseph's Home for Orphans in Jersey City inherits $15,000. There are many other small bequests. Kiley had no kin. He died last month.

SZECHENYI COMPANY USES HIS INVENTION

The Count's Submarine Wireless Tried Out by Torpedo Boat at Newport.

SEC'Y MEYER INTERESTED

Tests, Carried on Secretly with Assistance of Naval Authorities, Gave Much Promise of Success.

Count Laszlo Széchényi, who married Gladys Vanderbilt, is the inventor of the submarine wireless telegraph, which the Submarine Wireless Company was formed to exploit, according to David C. Watts of 125 East Fifty-seventh Street, one of the incorporators.

The company was incorporated on Monday at Albany after a telegram announcing a successful test of the invention had been received from Newport, where experiments have been made.

Count Széchényi tried to arrange several months ago to experiment with his submarine wireless apparatus in New York Harbor, Mr. Watts said last night, but the attempt was given up because a vessel suitable for the tests could not be found. Later Count Széchényi laid his plans before Secretary of the Navy Meyer. Seeing the possibility that the invention might become of value in communication at sea, Secretary Meyer became interested at once and placed a torpedo boat in Newport Harbor at the disposal of the inventor.

A series of experiments was conducted between the torpedo boat and an experiment station which was constructed in Newport Harbor and equipped with the submarine wireless apparatus.

The invention is said to be an application of the principle of the wireless telegraph. The instruments invented by Count Széchényi are for sending and receiving sound-wave vibrations under water.

The tests have been conducted with great secrecy by naval officers and Count Széchényi and his representatives. The knowledge that the experiments were taking place was confined to those interested in the invention and a few members of the Navy Department. The first public announcement of new submarine wireless telegraph came on Monday when the company was incorporated.

The trials, it is said, were most thorough, and it was not until the Navy Department was satisfied that the invention was promising that Count Széchényi and his associates decided to take the step of forming a company and making public their work in a new field of communication. The dispatch telling of the success in sending messages through water was received in this city last week.

Count Széchényi left Newport while the series of tests was in progress, leaving a representative to keep him informed as to the results. He spent much of his time in Newport before sailing for Liverpool a few weeks ago on his way to his home in Hungary.

John M. Russell and Eugene N. Robinson, law partners at 111 Broadway, who are among the incorporators, both left the city yesterday morning. Mr. Russell went to Newport to be present at a demonstration of the submarine wireless, and Mr. Robinson went to Washington, where, it is said, he will interview the naval authorities who have been following the tests at Newport.

Mr. Watts, the only one of the incorporators in the city last night, was not able to tell the distance that sound waves could be sent under water by the submarine wireless. He said that Count Széchényi had been experimenting with his invention for several years, and was also working on several other electrical devices at the present time.

Count Széchényi is 32 years old. His marriage to Gladys Vanderbilt took place in 1908. His father, Count Emerick Széchényi, was at one time Austrian Minister at the Court of Berlin. His grand-uncle, Istvan Széchényi, was a famous patriot of Hungary. Countess Széchényi did not go to Europe with her husband on his last trip, and is now staying at the home of her mother in Newport.

NAVAL EXPERTS TO REPORT.

Known Now That System Is Considered Promising—Low in Cost.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The Navy Department has been trying out a system of submarine telegraphy in which Count Széchényi, who married Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, is interested, together with various members of the Vanderbilt family. The tests were completed last week, and, while the apparatus was not in the most satisfactory condition and results were not wholly satisfactory, the navy experts who conducted them regard them as highly promising. The system does not require the elaborate instrumentation used in other systems of submarine communication, and the cost of installation is very much less than with the system now employed to convey messages between vessels of the Atlantic fleet. The torpedo boat Stringham was ordered from her station at Annapolis to Newport for the purpose of making the tests, which were conducted by the same board that had other similar trials to make for the department.

The system is not as at present developed an electric system, but is mechanical. It should not be confused with the wireless system of telegraphy, which it does not resemble in any particular, as it does not make use of a radio principle, but employs contact vibrations of the medium, which is of course water. In a rudimentary way, the idea is as old as the centuries, but the development is a valuable and important invention. The officers who made the test have made only a preliminary report, which is confidential for the present, so that little more than the barest details are known here.

The distance through which communication may be established by the new system is not definitely known, but is several miles, and may with the use of more powerful instruments be extended to a much larger distance. The navy is interested in it because it would save many thousands of dollars in cost of installation over the system now in use.

HOME TO FIND FOURTH DEATH

Mrs. Hubert, Mourning Three, Lands Ignorant of New Family Loss.

Among the passengers arriving yesterday from Antwerp on the Red Star liner Kroonland was Mrs. A. A. Hubert of Brooklyn, dressed in deep mourning for her mother, sister, and brother-in-law, who had all died within the last four weeks.

Her brother, Charles Laurant, who met her at the pier, did not dare to broach the sad tidings that their father had died on Saturday at his home, 110 Prospect Place, making the fourth death in the family in four weeks. He told the customs officials that he would tell his sister when he got her safely home.

MORGAN'S BULL MOOSE GIFT.

Contributes $10 Extra Fee to a Progressive Chauffeur.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 27.—J. Pierpont Morgan, who left New York a few days ago for a North Atlantic Coast cruise, came ashore to-day at Magnolia, made an automobile trip through Marblehead to Peach Point, looked the location over with the eye of a traveled connoisseur, and remarked, in response to a question, that he might build a Summer home there some day.

Mr. Morgan obtained Herman F. Snow's automobile for sightseeing. He stopped off at the old Town Hall, looked in at the Lee mansion and other historic places, proceeded to Beverly Farms, and then to his yacht. Snow ran the automobile. He wore a Bull Moose button in his coat.

"Are you a Roosevelt man?" asked Mr. Morgan.

"I am," replied Snow, "aren't you?"

"I am not ready to commit myself yet," the New Yorker replied, according to Snow.

Arriving at Magnolia, Mr. Morgan asked for the bill.

"It will be $10," replied Snow.

LYNCH PORTUGUESE PRIEST.

Had Killed a Policeman and Infuriated People Stormed Parsonage.

LISBON, Aug. 27.—Dispatches received here to-day from the Portuguese town of Aldeia Obispo tell of the putting to death of a priest by an infuriated mob.

The parish priest, it is alleged, attempted to conduct a funeral without the traditional burial rites, and the authorities and the people of the town objected. In the scuffle which ensued the priest, whose surplice was torn, beat an elderly man and was placed under arrest. On the pretext of changing his surplice before accompanying an officer the priest went to the presbytery and obtained a revolver, with which he shot the policeman dead.

The inhabitants, infuriated by this act, stormed the parsonage, and, after seizing the priest, lynched him.

HIS ALL IN MEXICAN COIN

But Chu's 1,000 Silver Dollars Are Worth Face Value in China.

Chu Chuck Nang, a Chinaman from North Carolina, who died in Chinatown on Feb. 9, 1910, while visiting his cousin, Chu Jung Yue, left an estate in New York valued at $450. This consisted of 1,000 silver Mexican dollars which were on deposit in a Chinatown bank.

An appraisal of his estate, filed yesterday by Deputy State Controller Wallace S. Fraser in the Transfer Tax Office of the Surrogates' Court, shows that the only deductions made are for his funeral. The Chinese service is simple and the cost amounted to only $40. Chu Chuck Nang had no relatives except his cousin, and he died without making a will, so Chu Jung Yue, who lives at 4 Doyers Street, receives the entire net estate of $410 in Mexican coin.

The dead man bought the Mexican dollars probably intending to return to China or to send them there. In his country Mexican coin is taken at its face, so the Chinaman's transaction was not lacking in astuteness.

BROKER'S CAR KILLS CHILD.

Victim Runs Directly in Front of William Simonson's Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Aug. 27.—William Simonson, a real estate broker, whose home is in Mineola, was motoring along the Jericho Turnpike late this afternoon with Mrs. Simonson and some of their friends, when, just as they were skirting around an automobile halted for repairs, a little boy ran directly in their path and was run over. He was six-year-old Frederick Mollenhaupt, the son of Bruno Mollenhaupt. He had been watching the unfortunate motorist tinkering with a disabled tire, and did not see the other car coming.

Mr. Simonson lifted the child from the ground and carried him into the yard of the Anchor Post Iron Works, but it was soon apparent that serious injury had been done and he took the boy to the Nassau Hospital. There it was found that both legs were broken, and two hours later the boy died. Witnesses of the accident agree that the Simonson car was not speeding, and that it was just one more added to the long list of unavoidable automobile accidents.

Wealthy John Schoenherr Wanted His Marriage Kept Secret.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27.—The wealthy seventy-two-year-old man of this city who took a bride of 22 years in Wilmington last Saturday, insisting upon secrecy, was John Schoenherr of 326 Allen Lane, Chestnut Hill. He is reputed to be worth $300,000, and married Miss Julia Kleinboch, a former domestic in his household, who nursed his first wife when she died a little more than a year ago.

Mr. Schoenherr's son William objected to the marriage. So did Mrs. Mina Flood, a married daughter, who lives across the street from her father. Three other daughters, all married, had no particular objections to the match, it is said. Schoenherr's heart was won by Miss Kleinboch's devotion to his former wife during her last illness.

Mr. Schoenherr owns considerable real estate. He is Treasurer of the Curled Hair Manufacturing Company, 964 North Hancock Street. Until about a month ago William Schoenherr lived with them in their home, a large yellow mansion, set in six acres of ground in a beautiful location in Allen Lane. Miss Kleinboch has been a member of the household for six months, at first occupying the position of servant, but later occupying that of nurse to Mrs. Schoenherr.

On Saturday morning John Schoenherr left home, dressed in his best. The Mrs. Schoenherr-to-be went with him. After the license had been obtained in Wilmington, they went to the residence of the Rev. John L. Wolfe, the "marrying parson" of the Delaware city, and were married. Both the Rev. Mr. Wolfe and Magistrate Gluckman respected Schoenherr's wishes and refused until yesterday to make his name public.

GAMBLING HOUSE OWNERS EXPOSED

Waldo Supplies Whitman with Names of Those Renting Property for Resorts.

HUNDREDS IN OPERATION

Report Shows Commissioner Erred in Saying They Could Be Counted on One Hand.

BECKER TRIAL ON SEPT. 10

Policeman Will Be First of Alleged Rosenthal Slayers to Face a Jury —Justice Goff to Preside.

Police Commissioner Waldo sent to the District Attorney last evening, and made public at the same time, a list of the gambling resorts in this city, with the addresses and names of the owners and lessees of the buildings in which they are housed. The list is printed on Page 2.

Not so very long ago Commissioner Waldo declared that the gambling houses now doing business in the city could be counted on the fingers of one hand. This list, which he intended as an elaboration of his defense that the courts do not cooperate with the police, shows that gambling houses have existed here by the hundreds. The gambling resorts included in this list are the ones which have engaged Mr. Waldo's attention since he became Commissioner, sixteen months ago.

The record shows that some 200 alleged gambling houses have been raided by the police, prisoners taken, and notice served on the owners of the premises since Mr. Waldo took office. The record also shows that a very large percentage of the prisoners were released when they were brought into court. The Commissioner would not comment upon the report yesterday. He said he wanted the facts to speak for themselves. But he has declared that it was impossible for the police to suppress gambling houses so long as the courts refused to punish the prisoners.

No Evidence, Judges Say.

The Judges have declared that the reason the prisoners charged with gambling were not convicted was because the police failed to present legal evidence against them, and it has been declared that this failure was intentional and was part of the police method of extorting graft.

Notice that the list was to be made public greatly worried many owners and lessees of buildings that had been used in whole or in part for gambling resorts. Commissioner Waldo was asked if all of the buildings on his list still housed gambling, and he replied that they did not, so far as he knew. He declared that he expected in the future that serving notices on the men who rented their property for gambling purposes that they were breaking the law would prove a powerful weapon for driving this evil from the city.

Among the men who were much disturbed by the publication of Mr. Waldo's list was Congressman Jefferson M. Levy, who is a large realty owner in the city. He sent this letter to the Commissioner yesterday:

Jefferson M. Levy. 29 Pine Street,
128 Broadway, New York,
Aug. 27, 1912.

Hon. Rhinelander Waldo, Commissioner,
Police Department:

Dear Sir: I desire to earnestly protest against having my name printed as the owner of 588 Seventh Avenue in the list which I understand the District Attorney has of properties containing tenants engaged in unlawful practices. The fact is I made every effort, as the records of the Municipal Court will show, to remove the tenant in question, immediately upon receiving notice from the police that the law was being violated, which was my first notice of any such violation. Two dispossess proceedings were brought in the Fifty-fourth Street court, as the record in that court will show, and every effort was made on my part to oust them, but we were bombarded with technicalities and delays and were unable to get a warrant.

The matter became such an annoyance to me that in April last I sold the property for less than its value to Felix Isman, who immediately conveyed to C. William Funk of Philadelphia.

Yours very truly,
JEFFERSON M. LEVY.

The difficulties that the Commissioner's raiding squads encountered were made plain by the record. It showed that Sam Paul was a most difficult person to suppress. As soon as he was driven out of one house he seemed to find quarters in another within an incredible short time. It looked as if Paul was always prepared for a raid by having a few empty rooms in the neighborhood where he could move his paraphernalia and go on with scarcely a minute's loss of time. It also appears that he had duplicate sets of implements so that in case his tools were seized he could go on with his work while he recovered the seized goods by a writ of replevin.

Few Prominent Names in List.

There was a marked scarcity of prominent names in the list of owners and lessees whose buildings afford shelter to the gamblers. The Sailors' Snug Harbor was unfortunate in having part of its building at 42 East Tenth Street in the possession of men who were raided by the police. The Lorillard estate fared even worse, for a part of one of its Broadway buildings was used for a crap game.

The record furnished evidence that Jack Rose and Harry Vallon were interested in one place, and went together to another. They apparently did a good business in partnership for a long time.

The way the courts treated the various cases was interesting. In one case seven prisoners were held in $1,000 bail each, four were fined $50 each, and three were discharged. In another case three were held in $1,000 bail, four in $500, one was fined $5, two were fined $50, and two were discharged. These prisoners were taken in a general gambling game in St. Mark's Place.

One peculiarity of the list is the absence of any of the really big gamblers who are said to ply their trade in the city. The men whose names are as well known all over the world as they are here were undisturbed.

WILL TRY BECKER FIRST.

Policeman Likely to Face Murder Jury on Sept. 10.

Lieut. Charles Becker, indicted for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who accused Becker of having been his silent partner, will face Justice Goff on next Tuesday in an extraordinary session of the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, there to enter a plea to the indictment. Whether Becker enters a plea of not guilty or declines to plead will make no difference, for District Attorney Whitman will at once move his trial, and Justice Goff will set the day when Becker must appear before him and a jury and begin his fight for life.

The earliest date on which Becker's trial can begin is Sept. 10, the Tuesday after next, for, under the law, five days must elapse between the motion for trial and the date set for it to open, and, with Sunday to intervene, the date can be no earlier than the following Tuesday.

John F. McIntyre, Becker's counsel, made it possible for District Attorney Whitman to present Becker's case to Justice Goff on the very first day that the Justice sits in extraordinary term, for he served an order yesterday on Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions and on the District Attorney providing for a stay in all proceedings against Becker until Sept. 3. it was generally believed when the order was served that it was intended to prevent Mr. Whitman from transferring Becker's case to Justice Goff's court.

The order was granted by Justice Amend on the affidavit of John W. Hart of counsel for Becker, that he believed the indictment of Becker to have resulted from answers Hart was forced to make to the Grand Jury by direction of Judge Mulqueen. Mr. Hart declared that he felt that the rights of his client were violated when his lawyer was compelled to answer questions before the Grand Jury. Mr. Hart was called before the jury after it had been learned that he had gone to the home of Harry Pollok to get an affidavit from "Billiard Ball" Jack Rose.

McIntyre Stays Proceedings.

Mr. McIntyre served the order when Becker was arraigned yesterday before Judge Mulqueen to plead to the blanket indictment in which he was charged with the four gunmen, William Shapiro, driver of the murder car, and Jacob Reich, the newsboy friend of Becker, with murder in the first degree. Judge Mulqueen remanded Becker to the Tombs after he had read the order, which was mandatory.

The cases of the other men were disposed of quickly, as counsel for none of them appeared, and their pleas of not guilty were considered therefore to have been made final.

It was observed that the order which was drawn by Mr. McIntyre originally extended to Sept. 11. Justice Amend struck this date out with ink and inserted the date of Sept. 3. Mr. Whitman was overjoyed when he saw it, for it made it possible for him to have Becker's case transferred as soon as court convened on Sept. 3. When the accused Lieutenant is led across the Bridge of Sighs from the Tombs on that date he will be conducted directly before Justice Goff. There can be no further stay, and no matter whether the Lieutenant pleads or not the motion for his trial will be made immediately by the District Attorney, and Justice Goff will fix the date. This was settled when Mr. Whitman definitely decided to put Becker on trial before Justice Goff ahead of any one else involved in the Rosenthal case.

These proceedings will leave several days to intervene between the arraignment of Becker and the beginning of his trial. In the meantime the work of getting the John Doe inquiry in graft conditions under way will be begun. The formality by which this inquiry will be started will be for the District Attorney to lay an information before Justice Goff, reciting conditions as he believes them to exist in this city, especially so far as concerns the Police Department, gambling, vice, and graft, and the inter-relations of all these, and to pray for an investigation into such conditions.

Assistant District Attorney William A. De Ford was designated by Mr. Whitman some days ago to represent the District Attorney's office at this inquiry, and since his appointment Mr. De Ford has been working night and day to prepare his information in time for the opening of the extraordinary term. He completed it yesterday in eighty typewritten pages, and the document was sent to the printer.

While this document has not been made public, its is understood that it enters exhaustively into such conditions as the investigation of the death of Rosenthal has revealed and presents data to show that these conditions demand immediate investigation. It is known that Justice Goff is in one mind with the District Attorney in the determination to make this inquiry more far-reachng and thorough than any other which ever has been held in this city. Some time ago the District Attorney made a request on Police Commissioner Waldo for information concerning his department, and yesterday this was received.

Besides the list of suspected places, which is published elsewhere, there was included in the material which Mr. Waldo forwarded to Mr. Whitman lists of the police rules and regulations, a list of special instructions to Inspectors, and a list of persons under surveillance by the police. The list of suspected places alone includes the addresses of more than 200 resorts, with the names of the owners of the property.

How many, if any, of these property owners will be called before Justice Goff and the Special Grand Jury is not known, but it is believed that almost every one mentioned will have an opportunity to explain how their property came to be leased to tenants who have used it for illegal purposes.

Whitman to Confer with Goff.

These lists, together with Mr. De Ford's information, probably will form a part of Mr. Whitman's baggage to-night when he leaves for Millbrook, N. Y., Justice Goff's Summer home. The District Attorney received a telegraphic invitation yesterday to visit Justice Goff, and he determined to accept this opportunity of conferring with the Justice on the scope and conduct of the John Doe inquiry.

The District Attorney spent a busy day yesterday on his return from his Summer home in Manchester Vt., sorting and arranging the mass of material which had been gathered in his absence by his aids. It was learned that information concerning four other bank accounts of Becker had come into possession of the District Attorney, but at present these have not been examined into sufficiently to reveal their amounts or the dates when they were opened. All this information it is expected will be obtained today.

Several members of Mr. Whitman's staff are working steadily on the bank accounts of Becker, and also on that of the four Inspectors and the civilian official at Police Headquarters who is under suspicion, so that this information may be ready for presentation before the extraordinary Grand Jury. Mr. Whitman has what he considers ample evidence to force from this official an explanation of his accounts, but it is probable that nothing will be done by the District Attorney's office in this matter for several weeks. More important matters will be presented first to the extraordinary Grand Jury.

The report that "Jimmy" March had aided Becker to accumulate the wealth which the District Attorney's investigators have disclosed, by giving him tips in the stock market, started Mr. Whitman's force to work on this phase of the case, with the result that last night it became known that Mr. Whitman had learned that some $1,800 would cover every penny Becker ever made in the stock market. His deposits in various banks total in the neighborhood of $100,000, according to information which Mr. Whitman gained.

Eight bank officials have been subpoenaed to appear at Mr. Whitman's office to-day, and it is understood that Mr. Whitman expects them to throw much additional light, not only on the accounts of Becker, but on those of the four Inspectors and the civilian police official.

LOST $1,000 TO WEBBER.

"Bridgey's" Resort Got Firm's Cash, Philip Stadler Tells Creditors.

Gambling losses are urged as an explanation of the alleged insolvency of the firm of Stadler & Reisler, shoe dealers, at 43 and 45 Stanton Street, according to Benjamin Lesser, an attorney for the creditors, who filed a petition in bankruptcy against the firm yesterday. The partners are Philip Stadler and Morris Reisler, the latter being a brother of "John, the Barber," who figured as a reluctant witness in the Rosenthal murder inquest, and was threatened with prosecution for perjury by District Attorney Whitman. More than $1,000 of the firm's money, Attorney Lesser declares, was lost by Stadler through playing poker in "Bridgey" Webber's resort at Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue.

"There is an interesting story back of the bankruptcy petition," said Benjamin Lesser yesterday. "Mr. Stadler was examined at a recent creditors' meeting in my office, and he endeavored to explain the disappearance of large sums of money by saying that he lost several thousand dollars during the past few months in gambling at poker and roulette and following the ponies. More than a thousand dollars, he asserted, had been lost in 'Bridgey' Webber's place. When questioned, he was unable to recall with whom he had played poker. He declared that he had won on only one or two occasions, and as the creditors were not satisfied with his explanation it was decided to file a petition in bankruptcy against the firm to get at the facts. We will ask to have Webber and several other witnesses examined."

The lawyer explained that he had caused stenographic minutes to be taken of the examination of Stadler. These minutes showed that the latter had said he had borrowed $3,300 from Morris Reisler, his partner, of which only $300 was repaid. Firm notes were given for the balance, Stadler asserted. The examination revealed the fact that Stadler was acquainted with numerous gambling houses. He had played roulette or poker, he said, in West Thirty-eighth Street, West Forty-fourth Street, East Fourteenth Street, and at "Bridgey" Webber's. He always went to these places alone and almost invariably lost, he declared. He obtained part of the money upon which to conduct his play from his partner, some from the business, and still more from a friend, a physician. When he was asked how long he had been gambling he replied:

"All my life."

He explained that he had never kept any accountof his losses, but he estimated them for the last six months at $4,000. He played last, he said, at "Bridgey" Webber's about two months ago. He contended that he had lost about $1,000 there in three visits. Stadler explained that he divided his operations among seven places. When he completed his list he returned to the first place and began over again. He did this, he asserted, that he might avoid being known as a regular in any one resort.

WALDO'S LIST OF GAMBLING RESORTS.

Here is the list of gambling houses raided under Police Commissioner Waldo's administration and prepared under his instructions for District Attorney Whitman. It names the owners or lessees of the premises, gives dates of raids and disposition of the cases against the men arrested. The hand-book cases are not included.

MAKE FIRST ARREST FOR LICENSE GRAFT

Cigar Seller in Curran's District Held in $2,000 Bail for Extortion.

HE DEFENDS THE ALDERMAN

Testifies That Curran's Name Was Not Used in Transaction, Though Others Say It Was.

The first arrest in the news and fruit stand graft cases, which Acting Commissioner of Accounts Harry M. Rice has been investigating, was made yesterday. Abraham Wirtenberg of 138 Fourth Avenue, the cigar store keeper who was charged with taking $125 from Samuel Gordon for an application signed by Alderman Curran for a license for a fruit stand at 34 West Twenty-fourth Street, and $50 for an application for another license for a stand at 51 West Twenty-second Street, was taken into custody on a warrant obtained by Acting Commissioner Rice and arraigned before Magistrate Appleton in the Jefferson Market Court. He was held in $2,000 bail for examination on Thursday on a charge of extortion.

Both Gordon and Wiener told Acting Commissioner Rice on Monday how they had paid nearly $500 for applications signed by Alderman Curran, who is Chairman of the Aldermanic Police Investigating Committee, for the licenses for these two stands, and their testimony was corroborated in large measure yesterday by Wirtenberg, Moskowitz, and Philip Juravel, brother-in-law of Gordon.

It was early in March last that Gordon went to Wirtenberg and said he wanted to obtain a license for the Twenty-fourth Street stand. Wirtenberg said it would cost $100, whereupon Gordon's partner, Wiener, and Wirtenberg went to Alderman Curran's club, the Madison Square Republican Club, at 240 West Four

ROOSEVELT STARTS VERMONT TRIP TO-DAY

Colonel Will Spend Three Days on an Automobile Tour Throughout the State.

HIS BROADSIDE NOT READY

Promised Letter to Clapp Which Is to Smite His Enemies May Not Come Out Until Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 27.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt passed part of his time to-day dictating his reply to the Archbold and Penrose charges, and the rest in discussing New York State political conditions with Mr. Prendergast. Col. Roosevelt was reticent to-night regarding political affairs. He declined to discuss conditions in New York, and would not venture a prediction as to the result of his trip into Vermont at the end of this week.

It is understood here that the Taft forces have received such encouraging reports as to conditions in Vermont that they are hopeful of carrying the State over the Bull Moose forces. Col. Roosevelt will attempt to offset this condition with a three days' campaign trip in an automobile through the State. Every town that can be reached in this time will receive a visit from the Colonel. Roosevelt's visitors to-day were Mr. Prendergast, Robert Bacon, Robert Collier, Mr. Hotchkiss and Vergil Kellogg. With Mr. Prendergast the Colonel talked over the State situation. In this he is much interested, as he will not be here for the Bull Moose Convention, at which Mr. Prendergast is likely to be named for Governor. Bainbridge Colby, one of the Colonel's guests, has been mentioned as a candidate on the Bull Moose ticket for Governor, and so has Mr. Hotchkiss. They all wished to obtain the Colonel's official indorsement before he departed upon his campaign trip.

Col. Roosevelt was asked regarding a report that Senator Penrose, Congressman Sibley, and Mr. Archbold had visited him at the White House, and that the same persons with Congressman Joe Cannon and Senator Aldrich had visited him at Oyster Bay for the purpose of trying to prevent Mr. Taft being a candidate and to prevent action upon the tariff.

"I do not know who could have said such a thing," said Col. Roosevelt, "but there is an old ladies' home still open."

In regard to Hearst's demand that Roosevelt should make public all the facts in the Archbold controversy, Col. Roosevelt said: "If Mr. Hearst will let me know within a year, or a year and a half of the date these letters were written, and to whom they were written, I will make them public myself.

"Any one can readily appreciate how difficult it would be for me to go through my entire correspondence for a number of years to find a letter in which I referred to this matter. It would be a tremendous undertaking. I do not think I er wrote Mr. Sibley on this matter, although I may have done so. I can't find any letter to him.

"I shall include in my letter to Senator Clapp," the Colonel said, "the letter which I wrote to Judge Parker in 1904 and my letter to 'Jim' Sherman on the Harriman contribution. I think they are pertinent to the inquiry, and I want to get them on the record.

Col. Roosevelt declared he would not allow to go unchallenged the report that Philander C. Knox, now Secretary of State, saw him in 1904 as he was dictating a letter to George B. Cortelyou about the alleged Standard Oil contribution, and told him that the money had been spent and could not be returned, and that Col. Roosevelt remarked that the letter was being "written for the record."

"Mr. Knox may have heard me say 'these letters will put the record straight,'" Col. Roosevelt said. "Or 'this will establish a record of my attitude,' but it is certainly not to be inferred from this remark (I don't say that I did make it, but I may have) that they were written solely for the record. They were genuine letters and expressed just what I wanted to express when I first heard a report that the Standard Oil had contributed or wanted to contribute to my campaign."

It will be several days before Col. Roosevelt's letter to Senator Clapp will be made public. The Colonel said to-night that he did not receive until late to-day a copy of John D. Archbold's testimony before the Senate investigating committee, which is to form the basis of an important part of his letter. It is probable that the letter will be given out early next week.

Plans for Col. Roosevelt's tour through Vermont were completed to-day. The Colonel will depart from Oyster Bay to-morrow evening, to take a train from New York at 12:25 A. M.

HOTCHKISS TESTS LEVY LAW.

Joins in Putnam County Petition for Order Against Commissioners.

William H. Hotchkiss, as Provisional State Chairman of the National Progressive Party, and Hamilton Fish, Jr., as Provisional Chairman of the County Committee in Putnam, joined yesterday in a petition for an order directed to the Election Commissioners of Putnam County to show cause why they should not accept petitions from the Progressives for the nomination of candidates for county offices when those petitions have only 500 signatures instead of 1,500 required under the provisions of the Levy election law.

The order was signed yesterday by Chief Justice Jenks of the Appellate Division, and is returnable before Justice Tompkins of the Supreme Court at a Special Term to be held in White Plains next Friday.

The order was obtained with a view of testing the constitutionality of two provisions in the Levy election law. One is the provision requiring a minimum of 1,500 signatures on petitions in a county for the nomination of independent candidates for county offices, where under the former laws the requirement has been for 500 signatures, and in no instance for more than 1,000. The other point which it is proposed to test provides that where an independent organization nominates candidates by petition, and one of the established parties afterward indorses their candidacy, the signatures of all enrolled members of that party appearing on the petition shall be disqualified and eliminated.

Both provisions, Mr. Hotchkiss said, discriminated heavily against the Progressives and against any independent organization.

PENNSYLVANIA COMPROMISE.

Roosevelt Electors Will Run There as "Washington Party."

It was announced yesterday at the headquarters of the Republican National Committee, after Chairman Hilles had had a long conference with Henry G. Wasson, Chairman of the Pennsylvania State Committee; William T. Tilden, President of the Union League Club of Philadelphia, and Congressman Olmstead, who was general counsel for the Republican Party in the Kansas Electors case, that an agreement had been reached whereby the Roosevelt Electors on the regular Republican ticket in Pennsylvania would withdraw and two tickets for Electors would be put in the field.

This arrangement was arrived at as a result of a conference between William Flinn, the Roosevelt leader of Pennsylvania, and Messrs. Wasson, Tilden, and Olmstead in Philadelphia last Wednesday. Before agreeing to this arrangement, however, Flinn stipulated that the Roosevelt Electors would not be withdrawn from the ticket until he had filed an independent ticket containing the names of Roosevelt Electors. Under the law, the names cannot go on the ticket by petition until it has been signed by 3 per cent. of the entire number of voters in the State. The Roosevelt people have until Oct. 1 to file the petition.

The names "Progressive" and "National Progressive" having been preempted by the Taft people in Pennsylvania, the Roosevelt party in Pennsylvania will go on the ticket as the "Washington Party."

Of the thirty-eight Presidential Electors chosen in Pennsylvania, twenty or twenty-two are pro-Roosevelt, and after these have withdrawn from the regular Republican ticket and the petition has been filed by the Bull Moose people, the regular Republican State Committee will fill the vacancies. The State Committee is controlled by Boss Flinn, but Mr. Wasson said yesterday that he was satisfied that Flinn would play fair and see to it that only the names of good and true Taft candidates for Electors would go on the ticket.

Chairman Hilles said yesterday that the Kansas Electors case would come before the United States Circuit Court at Denver on Monday. He also said that reports the past few days from Vermont and Maine indicated that the Republican ticket in both States would win with ease. Former Gov. A. E. Willson of Kentucky was at headquarters yesterday, and said that as soon as he recovers from an attack of hay fever he intends to take an active speaking part in the campaign.

CORTELYOU STILL SILENT.

Politicians Puzzled by His Failure to Rush to Roosevelt's Defense.

George Bruce Cortelyou, who was Chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1904, refused again yesterday to make any comment on the statements of Col. Roosevelt and William Loeb, Jr., regarding the Standard Oil Company's contribution to the Colonel's 1904 campaign.

Mr. Loeb said that Mr. Cortelyou made no reply to Col. Roosevelt's two letters and telegram forbidding him to accept a contribution from the Standard Oil Co. He said that he then telephoned Mr. Cortelyou and was told that Cornelius N. Bliss, Treasurer of the committee, had assured Mr. Cortelyou that no Standard Oil money had been contributed.

Mr. Cortelyou's silence was construed in political circles yesterday as unfavorable to Col. Roosevelt. Politicians said that if he was prepared to sustain the Roosevelt-Loeb version of the affair, he was in a better position to do so than Mr. Loeb, who holds the Federal office of Collector of the Port as an appointee of President Taft. Mr. Cortelyou is President of the Consolidated Gas Company, and under no political obligations. It was thought that if Mr. Cortelyou was going to corroborate Col. Roosevelt, he would have done so at once.

It was also pointed out, though, that Mr Cortelyou might feel that he had acted in a confidential capacity, and that he was not at liberty to tell what he knew even though it would aid Col. Roosevelt.

WOMEN OUT FOR ROOSEVELT.

Big Meeting in City Hall Park by Their Branch of the Party.

A big meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Woman's Department of the Progressive Party in City Hall Park Thursday at 12:30. Miss Mary E. Dreier, President of the Woman's Trades Union League, and delegate from Kings County to the State convention of the Progressive Party; Miss Alice Carpenter of the Woman's Department, and Alfred E. Smith will speak. Wednesday evening there will be a meeting at the Queensboro Bridge Plaza, Long Island City. Meetings are held nightly at Ninety-sixth Street and Broadway.

NOT FOR ROOSEVELT.

G. F. Williams, Boston Democratic Leader, Denies Declaring for Him.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—George Fred Williams, the Democratic leader, on his return to Boston to-day from New York, denied that he had declared in favor of Theodore Roosevelt for President. Asked if he had called on Mr. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, Mr. Williams said:

"Yes. I received a telegram asking me to call on him, and I did so on Sunday, but I did not offer him my support. It would be my duty to confer with any candidate for the Presideney, regardless of party, if he indicated that he had a message for me.

"I have not declared in favor of Roosevelt to any person on earth."

ROOSEVELT ELECTORS STAY.

Kansas Party Council Won't Force Them Independently.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 27.—By a vote of 80 to 62 the Republican Party council late to-night defeated a resolution to force the Roosevelt Electors on an independent ticket.

Taft's followers had previously won in the State Committee, when a resolution was adopted by a vote of 40 to 37, asking the Roosevelt Electors to resign from the Republican ticket.

William Allen White, National Committeeman for the Progressive Party in Kansas, declared that this action meant practically a third party State ticket for Kansas.

GOV. BLEASE AHEAD IN VOTE.

Late Returns Show He Is Leading Jones in South Carolina Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 27.—Early returns of the voting in the Democratic primary to-day showed Gov. Blease running behind Ira B. Jones, ex-Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, for the Gubernatorial nomination, but later figures reversed the situation.

Returns from about three-fourths of the precincts in the State gave Blease a lead of nearly 1,500 votes over Jones. The figures were Blease, 48,895; Jones, 47,421, and Duncan, 1,439.

United States Senator Benjamin R. Tillman is leading both his opponents, J. K. Talbert and N. B. Dial, in his fight for re-election to the Senate.

Returns are coming in slowly and the indications are that the outcome of several of the contests will not be known until to-morrow.

Early returns also indicated the renomination of Representatives Byrnes in the Second, Aiken in the Third, and Finley in the Fifth Districts. Representative Ellerbe and J. W. Ragsdale are running close in the Sixth District, with the latter somewhat ahead.

To-day's primary ends what is admitted to be the bitterest campaign in South Carolina since the days of the Tillmanites. Opposed by the newspapers, or nearly all of them, and by many ministers, Gov. Blease has taken the position that he is a much oppressed man, and has made the welkin ring with his repeated charges of conspiracy. His language toward his opponents has been extremely warm.

DEMOCRATS TO SPEND LITTLE

Campaign to Cost Less Than a Mayor's Election, Says J. E. Davies.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin, Secretary of the Democratic National Committee, issued to-day a statement in which he declared the Democrats purposed establishing a new record in campaign management this year, and that Gov. Wilson's campaign would be made with less expense than had attended the election of many a city Mayor.

"We are running our headquarters in New York and Chicago on strict business principles," said Mr. Davies. "We have auditing departments in both offices and a continuous record is being kept of all receipts and disbursements, even petty office expenses being accounted for. Our books are open to investigation now, and will be until November and also after election."

MURPHY TURNS DOWN TRIED CONGRESSMEN

Henry George, Jr., Jefferson M. Levy, and Stephen B. Ayres Not Designated.

MORE PARTY SELECTIONS

Republicans Give Choice of Congressmen—Senate and Assembly Adjourned Meetings Held.

The Republican organization in Manhattan and the Bronx designated its candidates for the State Senate last night, and at adjourned meetings made designations for Congress and for the Assembly in some districts. The Democrats made designations for Congress and Assembly at some meetings which had been adjourned until last night. The Progressives also made some nominations.

With the Democratic Congress designations in Manhattan and the Bronx completed, the names of Henry George, Jr., who was elected two years ago from the heavily Republican Seventeenth District; Stephen B. Ayres, who represented the Eighteenth District, and Jefferson M. Levy, who represented the Thirteenth District, are missing in the list of designated men. Henry George, Jr., after being turned down by the Tammany boss, joined the Progressive Democrats, who are now fighting Charles F. Murphy.

Congressman Stephen B. Ayres, who has been serving his first term in the House of Representatives, has shown an independent streak not at all pleasing to Boss Murphy. Congressman Levy was turned down in order to make a place for Peter J. Dooling, the Tammany district leader, who is very close to the inner circle of Tammany Hall.

Here are the men named:

The Republican Congressional Committee of the Twentieth District designated Abraham Goodman, a lawyer of 1,265 Fifth Avenue, for Congress nomination.

The Democratic Senate Committee of the Fifteenth District designated John J. Boylan as the candidate.

Joseph W. Spencer, a lawyer of 104 West Forty-seventh Street, was designated by the Democrats of the Twenty-seventh District as Assembly candidate.

Michael H. Blake, Louis Brenner, William J. Clark, and Augustus A. Lorzer were named for delegates to the Republican State Convention from the Ninth Assembly District.

The following Bull Moose nominations were made last night in Manhattan and the Bronx:

Jerome F. Reilly, for Congress from the Twenty-first District.

Lawrence J. McMahon, for Senator from the Fourteenth District.

Henry Salent, for Senator from the Nineteenth District.

William Wachtel, Bull Moose candidate for Assembly from the Thirty-second District, has been indorsed by the Independence League.

CASSIDY SHUT OUT.

Queens Designations Made with Deposed Leader Silenced.

For the first time in years Joseph Cassidy and his followers were excluded from the councils in the naming of candidates on the Queens Democratic ticket and at the meeting of the Congress, the Senate, and the County Committees in Scheutzen Park, Long Island City, yesterday afternoon. The reform Democrats designated these candidates:

County Clerk—Leonard J. Rouff of Ozone Park.
Sheriff—George Emner of Ridgewood.
Senator, Second District—Bernard Patton.
Congress—Dennis J. O'Leary.

It was said that Cassidy would nominate an opposition ticket.

BRANDEIS SUPPORTS WILSON.

Calls on All True Progressives to Help Elect Him.

Louis D. Brandeis, the Boston lawyer, whose achievements as an economist and an expert in business efficiency are known all over the country, came out for Woodrow Wilson in a statement made public through the Democratic National Committee yesterday. Mr. Brandeis said:

"Progressives—irrespective of party affiliations—should, in my opinion, support Woodrow Wilson for the Presidency, should support him fully, actively, and enthusiastically, for he possesses in a high degree the qualities of an effective Progressive leader.

"Gov. Wilson is thoroughly democratic in spirit. He recognizes that all of the people are entitled to equal opportunities and appreciates that the development of all of the people is essential to the attainment of American ideals. He understands the dangers incident to the control by a few of our industries and finance. He sees that true democracy and social justice are unattainable unless this power of the few be curbed, and our democracy become industrial as well as political. He can meet the demands properly made upon a present-day Executive, to be able to lead in constructive statesmanship as well as to administer efficiently; for Wilson's character, intellectual power, and previous training fit him peculiarly to take an important part in progressive legislation. He is courageous and frank, able and firm, and always open minded—qualities indispensible to safe leadership.

"Progressives should support Wilson, not only in order to secure his election, but in order to enable him after election to carry out those Progressive policies which he has so much at heart. His nomination ranks among the most encouraging events in American history. Under the masterful and masterly leadership of Col. Bryan, the ideals of American Democracy triumphed over the reactionaries and their money bags; the will of the people prevailed over the devices of the machine."

REDFIELD DECLINES TO RUN.

His Own District Given to Another and He Named for a Hopeless One.

Congressman William C. Redfield sent yesterday to Col. James D. Bell a letter formally declining to run for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District of Kings County, from which he was designated last week. Col. Bell is the Chairman of the Designating Committee.

Two reasons are given by Mr. Redfield in his letter. In the first place he points out, the Fifth District, which he now represents, was so divided at the recent apportionment that three districts were formed of it, two of them being fairly even, while the sixth District, for which he is now nominated, has a Republican plurality of 11,500. Should he decide to run in this district he says all his time would be taken up by the local campaign and he would have to refuse the invitation extended to him by the National Committee to take an active part in the National campaign.

PALMER CALLS A MEETING.

State Committee to Assemble in Syracuse When Wilson Is There.

George M. Palmer, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, issued a call yesterday for the meeting in Syracuse on Sept. 12. The stated business will be the naming of Democratic Electors and a Temporary and Permanent Chairman for the Democratic State Convention which will be held in Syracuse on Oct. 1. Mr. Palmer said that no consideration had yet been given to candidates.

The meeting is scheduled for some day that Woodrow Wilson is to speak at the State Fair in Syracuse. Mr. Palmer said yesterday that in all probability Gov. Wilson would be invited to address the committee.

WOULD NOT INDORSE DIX.

Cayuga Democrats Defeat Resolution and Also Attack Murphy.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The Cayuga County Democratic Committee designated three anti-Murphy delegates to the State Convention to-day, and in a resolution attacked the present State control. The delegates named are Thomas Mott Osborne of Auburn, Jerry Murray of Niles, and Daniel Farrell of Montezuma.

A resolution indorsing Gov. Dix, offered by a few Tammany supporters, was taken from the table and overwhelmingly defeated, and a substitute adopted attacking Charles F. Murphy's control. The resolution read in part:

The Democratic Party of Cayuga County demands an open State Convention, where the State ticket shall not be named by a small clique in a back room, but by duly elected delegates in open convention. It calls upon Democrats from all over the State to rise in revolt against the corrupt domination now in control of the party organization, and asserts that the only way to carry New York is to free the party from control of its reactionary elements, as did the National Convention at Baltimore.

The substitute resolution was unanimously adopted. Supervisor John G. Langham of Fleming was nominated for Assembly.

PARTY CANDIDATES NAMED.

Fowler of Jamestown to Run for Congress as an Independent.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Former Assemblyman J. Samuel Fowler of Jamestown filed an independent certificate today with the Secretary of State for Congress nomination in the Chautauqua-Cattaraugus-Allegany district. Senator Charles M. Hamilton of Ripley has been designated as the organization's candidate.

Designations for Congress nominations have been made as follows: In the Albany district, Peter G. Ten Eyck, Dem., and Daniel H. Prior, Rep. In the Oneida district, Charles A. Talcott, Dem.

Designations for State Senators have been made as follows: In the Oneida district, W. D. Peckham, Den., Charles W. Wicks, Rep. In the Broome district, William Block of Delhi, defeating Senator Harvey D. Hinman.

These designations for Assembly nominations have been made: Tompkins County, Minor M. G. Michaels, Dem., J. D. Ross, Rep.; Tioga County, Cornelius O. Seabring, Dem., John G. Pembleton, Rep.; Orleans County, William H. Phipps, Rep., Marc W. Cole, Dem.; Orange County, Henry Hallock, Rep.; Chautauqua County, Second District, William L. Koch, Dem., and First District, Edgar W. Curtis, Dem.

The Progressive Party in the Sixth Judicial District has designated Prof. Alfred W. Hayes for Supreme Court Justice.

DOUBTS RIGHTS OF ELECTORS

Dr. Schouler Argues They Must Vote as People's Representatives.

In an article on "Our Presidential Electors," which is printed in the current issue of The Independent, Dr. James Schouler, the well known writer on history and law, discussed the question of whether Congress would not have the right to override the vote of Presidential Electors who do not abide by the mandate of the National convention of a party to which they owe their selection. The question is a pertinent one at the present time, because in several States the Republican Electors, chosen under Progressive auspices, have declared that if elected they will vote for Col. Roosevelt, though President Taft was nominated by the Republican National Convention.

"The question is asked, at this time," writes Dr. Schouler, "has a State Elector the right to cast his ballot in the college as he chooses, regardless of the wishes of those party voters he represents? Doubtless he had, under the original theory of our Constitution, for then he was considered no party representative at all. But the cardinal American idea, in our present age, is that the people rule and elect rulers, so that Presidential electors are in effect their chosen agents. No poll in November by the people of a State can now be a fair and honest one, unless each voter may feel assured that the whole list of State Electors for whom he casts his ballot stands morally pledged to his own candidates for President and Vice President."

Dr. Schouler refers to the two only instances in the political history of this country where Presidential Electors have failed to abide by their implied obligations. One instance was when Monroe was re-elected in 1820 by a vote of the Electoral College which would have been unanimous but for the fact than an Elector from New Hampshire, contending that such distinction should belong to George Washington alone, cast his ballot for John Quincy Adams. The other instance was in the Hayes-Tilden year. Oregon had gone Republican by popular vote. The vote of one Elector would have thrown the election to Tilden if accepted at Washington. The Democratic Governor of Oregon prevailed upon one of the Oregon Electors to change his vote. In the first instance, where the one vote would not affect the result, Congress respected the vote of the New Hampshire Elector. In the latter instance Congress proclaimed that the three electoral votes of Oregon had been cast for Hayes.

"From this I infer," writes Dr. Schouler, "that, under normal State conditions, the undisputed preference shown by the people at the polls in November will guide Congress in an electoral count, even though the Electors selected should seek with their own ballots to change the final outcome."

WILSON WELCOMES SENATE'S INQUIRY

Pre-Convention Money All Came from Unimpeachable Sources, He Says.

WAS NONE TOO PLENTIFUL

Campaign 'Went Broke' Three Times, as He Well Remembers—Pay for Office Force Sometimes in Doubt.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Aug. 27.—When Gov. Wilson was asked to-day to discuss the Senate resolution calling for a general inquiry into the pre-convention campaign funds of all the candidates of this year, as well as of the candidates in 1904 and 1908, he said at first that his attitude was too well known to need any further comment.

"I will welcome such an investigation, of course," he said. "You know, I have always approved of such an accounting. My position has been very explicit on that matter."

"Do you know off-hand how much your pre-convention campaign cost you?" the Governor was asked.

"No, I do not," he replied.

He was asked to estimate the sum, and he said he could not do so.

"The reason I cannot make an estimate," he continued, "is that Mr. McCombs handled the entire matter from headquarters in New York, and I hardly every visited headquarters.

"In single contributions," was suggested, "did you receive any conspicuously large checks?"

"Not that I know of," replied Gov. Wilson, "but I do know that several times we struck bottom. To be explicit, we went broke three times. One time I remember particularly when we struck bottom. It was just as I was leaving for Illinois on a speaking tour.

"Mr. McCombs knows all about the money we received. He could no doubt furnish the figures in detail. There were times when Mr. McCombs didn't know where the money was coming from to pay the office force. It was the same in Washington, where Mr. Pence had his troubles."

"Did you feel called upon to send back any contributions received?" was suggested.

"No, I did not," said the Governor. "The nearest I came to anything like that was in the instance of Mr. Ryan. I declined to meet Mr. Ryan. But of course all that became very well known through the statements of Mr. Watterson."

"Do you happen to recall the nature of your big expenses?" the Governor was asked.

Money Spent for Publicity.

"I do," he replied. "Practically all the money we spent was spent for publicity. That is, in sending out printed matter to the newspapers, and that proved to be an extremely expensive business. We did not send our matter to newspapers broadcast whether or not they wanted it. We did not ask them to take it, as we had agreed upon a rule that we should send it only to newspapers that asked for it."

Gov. Wilson spent the day in Trenton attending to matters of State business and holding conferences with visitors. He drove to Trenton in Henry Morgenthau's automobile early in the morning, occupying a seat beside the chauffeur. There were no other passengers in the car. When he returned to Sea Girt in the evening he also rode alone except for the chauffeur.

Among the first visitors of the day were a number of delegates representing the Anti-Saloon League of Newark. They came to protest that Newark was a wide-open town, in which vice was openly flaunted, and that James R. Nugent, the Corporation Counsel of Newark, interposed so many impracticable conditions to their plans to furnish evidence that their work of reform could not successfully be carried out.

There was considerable interest in the State House in the charges made against Nugent, as he was known to be one of the Governor's most bitter enemies, and many politicians were anxious to know whether the Newark reformers could enlist the Governor's aid against the former Democratic State Chairman.

The Governor listened to the spokesman for the delegation, the Rev. Dr. Edward I. Stearns, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and accepted from him a bulky petition asking him to take a hand in helping to clean up Newark's disorderly resorts. The Governor said he would read the petition carefully and determine whether there was any grounds for action on his part.

While at work at his desk in the afternoon, Gov. Wilson was constantly watched by Joseph Kratina, a sculptor, who made a diminutive portrait bust of the Governor in clay. Mr. Kratina had been sent by The London Daily Telegraph to prepare a bust of the Democratic candidate, on account of the fact that English newspapers had made many references to a supposed facial resemblance between Gov. Wilson and Joseph Chamberlain.

For to-morrow Gov. Wilson has appointments with Louis D. Brandeis and a number of Congressmen. Late in the afternoon he will leave for Harrisburg, Penn., where he is to speak on Thursday.

THE TIMES'S DAILY WIRELESS AND CABLE DISPATCHES

NORWICH, ENGLAND, CUT OFF BY FLOOD

City in Darkness—Schools and Chapels Shelter Refugees—Water Reaches Cathedral.

ROYALTIES ARE STORMBOUND

Winston Churchill in Similar Plight—Better Weather Yesterday, but Situation Is Very Grave.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The ancient City of Norwich is marooned by the floods almost as completely as if it were beleaguered.

A dispatch received to-night from the "Island of Norwich" says:

"Norwich was plunged into total darkness at 8:30 to-night. This was due to the water flooding the electric power station to a depth of six feet, putting the dynamos out of action. All the streets are in darkness. The fire brigade has sent an engine to try to keep the power station clear of water.

"All day long the police have been patrolling the district in boats. Carts stationed in the flooded area carry people from point to point. Ladders are reared up against houses where women and children took refuge in the top stories for many hours.

"Many have been conveyed by boats and carts to schools and chapels, where food and mattresses and bedding have been supplied to them.

"This evening men are to be seen sobbing in the streets because they are unable to reach their homes or get tidings about their families.

"Even the precincts of the cathedral are flooded. Trowse Church contains three feet of water in the nave, and gravestones have been swept away by the flood."

Since yesterday the Great Eastern Railway has been unable to run any train into the station at Norwich, and there is almost complete isolation, telegraphic and telephonic communication also being cut off. The Post Office has managed to get telegrams to Norwich conveyed by train to Wisbech, and thence it is hoped to send them in by motor cycle. No tickets are being issued by the railway beyond Stowmarket, 35 miles this side of Norwich, and eight branch lines are closed.

This afternoon Norwich passengers were being taken to Wymondham by train, completing the remaining twelve miles by brake. Passengers by the Midland & Great Northern route to Norwich from St. Pancras had to detrain at Lynn and proceed by road.

Yarmouth and Lowestoft are still in touch with the south, but not with the north. Midland mails for Manchester were sent last night via Ipswich and London.

The situation has been brought about as a result of seven weeks of almost steady rain, with its climax yesterday, when six inches of rain fell in the Norwich district in less than twelve hours, swamping the country and washing away miles of railway tracks. The country presents scenes of devastation the like of which has never been seen before.

Fortunately there was an improvement in the weather to-day all over the country, but the situation is still very grave in many places.

Queen Alexandra, Princess Victoria, and Prince Christopher of Greece are stormbound off Southwold in the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, and a similar experience has befallen Winston Churchill in the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, which is detained at Grimsby en route to the Tyne shipbuilding yards.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—A telephone message received from Norwich late to-night says it is estimated that 7,000 persons have been driven from their homes by the flood. The water has risen in some parts of the city to 13 feet. Many animals have been drowned.

The streets to-night present a weird appearance, the only lights being those of torches and candles.

Fears of a famine of drinking water are entertained, as the machinery in the water works is flooded and useless.

The viaduct carrying the railway between Flordon and Forncat, a few miles outside Norwich, has been destroyed, and the railroad has been swept away for a distance of five miles from Norwich to Brindall.

During Monday's hurricane one train from Yarmouth to Norwich took seven hours to make the journey of twenty-five miles.

Many travelers are stranded in various parts of Norfolk and Suffolk, and holidaymakers are unable to reach their homes.

A steam herring drifter returning to Lowestoft was caught in Monday's hurricane and has not been seen since. It is feared that the vessel foundered with all hands.

Norwich Cathedral is one of the finest specimens of early architecture in England and has preserved its original Norman plan more closely than any other in the country. It was begun in 1096 by the first Bishop of Norwich, Herbert de Losinga, and was finished by his successor about 1140. The most prominent feature is the Norman tower, surmounted by a spire rising 315 feet.

There are many other interesting old buildings in Norwich, which is one of the most ancient towns in England. Many of the houses are of stone. The Church of St. Peter Mancroft contains the tomb of Sir Thomas Browne, author of "Religio Medici."

She will sail from Southampton on Thursday, a day late, with nearly 800 first-cabin passengers.

ACTRESS TURNS OCCULTIST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Brown Potter has announced her intention of leaving the stage in order to deliver lectures on occultism.

This curious change from actress to visionary is an outcome of Mrs. Brown Potter's deep interest in psychical questions, of which she has given indications in the past.

ACCIDENT TO BONAR LAW.

Unionist Leader Gets a Bad Shaking in a Motor Car Collision.

MARGATE, Aug. 27.—Andrew Bonar Law, the leader of the Unionist Party, suffered a violent shock in a motor car collision near this seaside resort late last night.

Mr. Law had been playing golf and was returning in his car with a companion along the road from Ramsgate when another automobile, containing two men and two women, traveling in the opposite direction, dashed into them. Both cars were irreparably damaged and their occupants were extremely fortunate in escaping with a few bruises and a bad jolting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Although the parcels post provision of the general Post Office bill will not become operative until Jan. 1, work has begun in preparation for the establishment of the new system. The department officials believe the new system will be self-supporting, if not the means of wiping out the usual deficit in the year's business of the department.

Senator Bourne, Chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee and author of the parcels post plan, says it will take four months to get ready for the system.

One of the features of the new system will be the zone map, by which any Post Office clerk will be able in twenty seconds to tell the amount of postage to be put on any parcel offered for mailing. This map is drawn on the Mercator projection with each square of latitude and longitude divided into four sections and given a number. This map will be supplied to every Post Office in the country. A brass nail will be driven into it at the point where his Post Office is located, and each map will have a rule with a brass eyelet attached at one end.

When a parcel is brought in the clerk will look in a book, which will give the zone square of every office in the country. Then by swinging the scale around until the rule touches the square in which the office of destination lies, he will find the distance, number of zones through which the parcel must travel, and the rate of postage.

This map is the invention of J. H. Robinson, employed in the office of the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, and Senator Bourne had it patented at his own expense, the patent being dedicated to the United States of America for the perpetual use of the American people without cost.

GERMANY CHECKING PRESS ATTACK ON US

Newspapers' Tone More or Less Restrained in Discussing the Canal Act.

OPINION IS VERY BITTER

But It Is Believed the Anglo-American Dispute Will Benefit Germany—Paris Temps Supports England.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—President Taft's signature of the Panama Canal bill has released a flood of German comment, still, however, more or less restrained, on America's disregard of her treaty obligations.

There is no doubt whatever that, if the Kaiser's Government were not itself sitting on the lid, the people and Government of the United States would be treated to some expressions of German opinion which would make British comment a whisper by comparison.

A point on which increasing stress will be laid in Germany is the ludicrous light in which the affair places America's vaunted enthusiasm for the arbitration of international disputes.

The Vossische Zeitung strikes a new note in its editorial article, commenting almost glowingly on the "disruption of Anglo-American friendship." It asks ironically what has now become of Joseph Chamberlain's once cherished dream of an Anglo-Saxon alliance between Great Britain, Germany, and the United States. The Vossische Zeitung thinks the rift in the Anglo-American lute redounds to the benefit of the Fatherland, as the unity between the English-speaking countries has recently on more than one occasion been exploited against the German Empire.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—The French press continues to denounce those responsible for the Panama Canal measure. To-night the Temps returns to the charge in a scathing leading article. It says:

"Before the act again comes up for discussion in Congress the American elections will have been held and British diplomacy will perhaps have persuaded American statesmen of the truth of the salutary principle that honesty is the best policy.

"As a rule the old custom of American politicians at election time of twisting the British Lion's tail leaves England indifferent, but this will not be the case with the Panama Canal bill, which not only twists the Lion's tail, but violates a solemn treaty."

After citing Great Britain's claim to equal treatment the Temps says:

"The exemption of American coasting vessels from dues, which flagrantly violates the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, is of a very elastic character and is capable of being stretched to include liners running from New York to San Francisco and touching foreign ports. In such an event the equality clause of the treaty would be completely annulled in favor of American commerce.

"President Taft's memorandum only proves that the bill is open to discussion. Arbitration at The Hague will certainly be demanded by England, with the moral support of all the powers for whose benefit she negotiated the treaty now violated."

The Eclair says the Canal act is a cynical violation of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, but it regards it simply as an election manoeuvre.

The same view is taken by Excelsior.

KAISER ABLE TO WORK

But Suffers a Rise of Temperature Owing to His Exertion.

CASSEL, Aug. 27.—Emperor William, who spent some hours out of bed and working to-day, suffered a slight rise of temperature at bedtime.

His Majesty's physicians ascribe this change in his condition solely to overexertion, and no other unfavorable consequences of his getting up were observed. The swellings of the neck and jaw muscles and glands are no worse to-night. The general physical condition of the royal patient, however, is admittedly considerably disturbed.

While the Emperor's visit to Switzerland to attend the army manoeuvres has not definitely been canceled, it is extremely unlikely that it will take place, and it is certain that his Majesty will not make the trip if the weather continues unfavorable.

The Emperor has expressed a wish to observe the final three days of the "Kaiser manoeuvres" in Saxony, which seems to indicate his fear that he will be unable to witness the preliminaries.

The physicians are insisting that the Emperor exercise the greatest care and take no risk, since the possibility of a return of the unfavorable symptoms is by no means yet excluded.

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—The deep regret of the Swiss Federal Council at Emperor William's illness was to-day expressed by the Swiss Legation to the German Government. At the same time the Swiss Minister said he hoped that his Majesty would still be able to carry out his intended visit.

At the Swiss Legation it was stated later in the day that the Emperor would, it was expected, go to Switzerland, but that his programme would be restricted to participation in the manoeuvres and a State visit to Berne. The proposed trip on the Jungfrau Railway would be omitted.

AMERICAN TRANSPORT SINKS.

Cause of Accident to the Liscum at Shanghai Is Unknown.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 27.—The United States transport Liscum sank here to-day alongside the wharf where she was lying in forty feet of water.

The cause of the accident has not yet been ascertained. The vessel was undergoing repairs. The Captain and the shipbuilders are of the opinion that she can be raised with ease.

That people recognize in THE TURNSTILE those qualities that made famous "THE BROKEN ROAD" and "THE FOUR FEATHERS," the fact that it is now in a third large edition proves. As the CHICAGO RECORD says: "'The Turnstile' rests upon the double motive of love and ambition. Mr. Mason is a writer who never disappoints. Given a novel bearing his name, work at once thoughtful and dramatic, replete with warm and varied 'human interest,' confidently may be expected. 'THE TURNSTILE' proves no exception to this rule."

CALL RESERVES TO QUELL FUR STRIKERS

Policemen Forced to Draw Revolvers to Disperse Assailants of Jaekel Workers.

SPECIAL OFFICER DOWNED

Strikers, Led by a Woman, Take Away One Policeman's Club—Trouble Due to Union Jealousy.

The most serious fighting which has attended the strike of fur workers in this city since the beginning of the present labor troubles in that industry seven weeks ago occurred in front of the establishment of A. Jaekel, manufacturing furriers, at 384 Fifth Avenue, yesterday, when a crowd of strikers attacked a number of non-union employes. The strikers were not subdued until the reserves from the West Thirtieth Street station arrived and arrested seven of the ringleaders.

Fifth Avenue at Thirty-fifth Street was thronged with men and women workers who were returning to work after the lunch hour when the trouble began. A crowd of strikers gathered in front of the furrier establishment and charged the non-union employes who sought to enter the place. Two special policemen attempted to check the fighting which followed, but without success. The club of one of the policemen was wrested from him and he was thrown to one side by the infuriated strikers, who were led by a woman. This woman attacked one of the special policemen who attempted to restrain her. He was knocked down by a heavy blow in the face from the fist of one of the men strikers. He emerged from the scrimmage which followed with his uniform torn and his face scratched and bleeding. He succeeded in drawing his whistle, and with it summoned two regular patrolmen. One of these hastened to a patrol box and sent in a call for the reserves, while the other ran toward the fighters.

By the time that the police reserves arrived a general fight was in progress. The police were forced to draw their revolvers in order to impress the mob and compel the strikers to disperse. Of the seven prisoners taken, six were men strikers. In the Yorkville Police Court four were discharged for lack of evidence and two were fined $3 each for disorderly conduct. The prisoner held was David Altman of 305 East Fifty-sixth Street, who was charged with assaulting a girl striker. The employes of A. Jaekel & Co. have been singled out, the police say, for more annoyance than those of any other firm affected by the furriers' strike.

An investigation of the causes leading to the strike which was made yesterday by a TIMES reporter showed that the present trouble was the direct outcome of the activities of a number of professional east side agitators. An uptown manufacturing furrier, whose plant has been absolutely tied up as the result of the present strike, said yesterday:

"There are two unions involved in the present strike, and the manufacturers are being made the victims of their differences and jealousies. One of these unions is known as the Furriers' Union of Greater New York, and is composed almost exclusively of German fur workers. These men are the most skilled workers in the fur trade. Their union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and is of some importance. The other union is known as the Furriers' Union of New York and Vicinity. It is an independent organization, and has no standing in National labor circles. Its membership is recruited from fur workers who are for the most part unskilled and inferior workmen. It was organized by a group of east side agitators, and it was this organization which caused the present strike.

"The old union was apparently satisfied with conditions until the new organization called a strike of its members and demanded recognition, something which had never been accorded by the manufacturers to the old union. Incidentally, the new organization demanded that it should have the privilege of supplying workers for every shop in the city which granted it recognition. The German workers became alarmed and demanded similar recognition and privileges. Neither of the unions has made any demand for increases in the wage scale. A skilled fur worker makes from $25 to $30 a week in the Summer and from $40 to $50 in the Winter months. The season lasts from May 1 to March 1 for a skilled worker, and from March 1 to Jan. 1 for inferior workmen, who average some $25 a week for their season. Every workman gets a scale of 75 cents an hour for overtime.

"The reason for the difference in the Summer scale, even for skilled workers, is because it is in this period that the cheaper fur garments, such as pony skin and muskrat, which sell at fixed prices, are turned out. In the construction of these garments the manufacturers could not afford to pay the same scale as for more valuable skins, which bring prices gauged by skin value and workmanship.

"Many of the skilled workmen do not care to accept the Summer scale, but their labor is in absolute demand when it comes to handling the more valuable furs. Now, the situation of the manufacturers is simply this: We cannot afford to permit our business to be run by either of these two rival organizations. Both unions insist that workmen furnished by the respective organizations shall after two weeks' trial, be employed under contract for the rest of the season. This would permit a man or woman worker to work as little as possible, or to turn out inferior work and still be safe from discharge by their employers. No manufacturer could for a moment grant such a demand.

"Another demand which both organizations make is that workers shall be granted all holidays with pay. This demand is too indefinite. The manufacturers at present recognize such holidays as Christmas, New Years, and the Fourth of July, but we do not intend to have closed shops on Columbus Day, Washington's Birthday, and other such occasions. We all close on Labor Day."

Both unions demand an eight-hour day instead of the nine-hour day which has hitherto prevailed. This request, the manufacturers declare, they are willing to grant. They insist, however, that they cannot grant recognition on the grounds dictated by both unions, nor can they sign an arbitrary agreement to grant holidays to their employes in all instances with full pay.

WILLCOX PUSHES CONTRACTS

Utilities Board Head Shortens His Vacation to Speed Subway Work.

William R. Willcox, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, was in town yesterday to facilitate closing the operating contracts for the additional subways.

Because of his desire to expedite the preparation of the contracts, he has restricted his vacation to ten days, part of which he passed in a motor trip through the White Mountains. He will spend a few days at his country home at Locust Valley. He expects to give most of his attention from now on to the completion of all details of subway operating contracts.

The forms of the operating contracts are already under consideration by the lawyers for the operating companies, and it is hoped they will be ready for final signature in a few weeks. In the meantime bids will be open for four additional sections early in September.

ALCOHOL STOVE EXPLODES

Mrs. Traube Pours Fuel Into Lighted Lamp and Flames Envelop Her and Another.

Special to The New York Times.

AMITYVILLE, L. I., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Elizabeth Traube of 80 East Ninetieth Street, New York, died to-night in the Babylon Hospital, and Eliza Buechner, her maid, is not expected to live as a result of burns they suffered when an alcohol stove exploded in Mrs. Traube's Summer home in South Ireland Place, this town, this afternoon. Mrs. August Traube, a daughter-in-law, and Mrs. John McKay and Mrs. J. R. Garrison, daughters of Mrs. Traube, were also burned, but not seriously, in their efforts to save Mrs. Traube and the servant. After the explosion the house appeared to be in danger of destruction from the burning alcohol, and Mrs. McKay picked up her little girl from a hammock in which she was asleep on the porch and threw her to the ground. The child was badly bruised oy the fall. Neighbors put out the flames before the house was much damaged.

Mrs. Traube was pouring alcohol from a two-gallon can into a lighted stove when the explosion occurred. Both stove and can were blown to atoms and the burning liquid was scattered over the clothing of Mrs. Traube and her servant. The clothing of both women was set ablaze and they ran from the room. Mrs. Traube ran from the house into the rear yard, where she faced a brisk wind blowing in from Great South Bay. The wind fanned the flames and after running a few yards she fell unconscious to the ground. In the meantime Mrs. Garrison and the younger Mrs. Traube had run to her assistance. They managed to beat out the flames, but not until Mrs. Traube was fatally burned. While Mrs. August Traube and Mrs. Garrison were working over the elder Mrs. Traube Mrs. McKay ran to the aid of the servant. A neighbor ran to assist Mrs. McKay, and between them they put out the flames in the servant's clothing, but not until she, too, had been mortally burned.

Neighbors who heard the screams of the injured women came running from all directions. They found the elder Mrs. Traube and the servant unconscious and Mrs. McKay, Mrs. Garrison, and Mrs. August Traube all suffering from burns suffered in their efforts to save the other women.

Dr. Van Winkle and Dr. Murphy were among those who came to the house, and the physicians, as soon as they saw Mrs. Traube and the servant, realized that their condition was critical. Dr. Van Winkle took Mrs. Traube in his automobile to the Babylon Hospital and Dr. Murphy carried the servant to the same institution in his motor car.

BIG QUEENS LIBRARY BUDGET.

Trustees Ask $221,923, a $70,340 Increase—$6,000 for a Director.

Taxpayers and residents of Queens who look upon the public library system of that borough as more a matter of ornamentation than of usefulness were confounded yesterday when it was learned that in making up their budget for the forthcoming year the library trustees would ask the city to appropriate $221,923 to maintain its twenty-three free circulating branch libraries and its twelve traveling stations.

This new budget shows an increase of $70,340 over the budget of last year, and out of the increase $24,000 is to be spent in paying increased salaries and $6,000 a year to a new position, the incumbent of which is to be known as director of the Queens Borough Library.

It is said that the new director, who, according to the resolution authorizing his appointment, is to be a man "of broad intellectual training and experience," will be named by the trustees just as soon as the Board of Estimate approves of the budget.

DIES AS DETECTIVE COMES TO GET HIM

David M. Schurr, Head of Fake Drug Peddlers, Had Said They'd Never Get Him.

SWALLOWS A WHITE POWDER

Convulsions Seize Him at Once—Doctors Refuse a Death Certificate.

David M. Schurr of 250 Saratoga Avenue, Brooklyn, believed to be the head of the counterfeit drug peddlers, if not actually one of the men higher up in the manufacture of fake articles, died in convulsions early yesterday morning after swallowing a white powder. His death is being investigated by Coroner Brennan and Coroner's Physician Charles Wuest.

Alvin W. Hupfer, the detective who had gathered the evidence against Schurr, was coming up the walk before Schurr's house with Patrolman Reynolds of the East New York Police Station with a warrant for Schurr's arrest, when thirteen-year-old Sophie Schurr burst open the front door and cried:

"My father's just died. He's just left us."

Mrs. Mary Haessig of 248 Saratoga Avenue just then ran across the lawn. She had seen Schurr in his death agony, which she described as a series of frightful convulsions. Schurr's wife and daughter told Dr. Alexander Koch of 1,135 Herkimer Street, who was summoned, that he had left them to take a seidlitz powder. Dr. Koch refused to issue a certificate of death, declaring it was a Coroner's case. Dr. James Bernstein of 4,503 Thirteenth Avenue, the family physician of the Schurrs, and a third cousin of the dead man, also refused to issue a death certificate, but said that death had probably resulted from natural causes.

Magistrate Miller, in the New Jersey Avenue Court, had issued a warrant for Schurr's arrest on Monday. Last night Schurr in talking with Henry Balzhiser, a druggist, of 2,040 Fulton Street, had said:

"The detectives will never get me."

Balzhiser said he had told Schurr of the warrant, and advised him to give himself up and get immunity by disclosing the sources of the counterfeit drug supply.

The warrant against Schurr was obtained as the result of detective work by Hupfer, after the arrest of Gillen, the truckman, who did business under the name of the Oxley Drug Company in a stable, selling counterfeit "aspirin" and "pyramidon."

Died While Walking with Husband.

John McManus, a retired builder, of 35 Oakland Avenue, Orange, N. J., went out walking with his wife, Anna, on the Boulevard, Rockaway Beach, yesterday afternoon. They had been spending several days at the beach. As they neared Jackson Avenue Mrs. McManus fell dead of heart disease.

ADMITS STEALING $40,000.

Edgar Lord Held for Robbing Two New Bedford Banks.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 27.—The New Bedford Co-Operative Bank and the Acushnet Co-Operative Bank were closed to-day and placed in charge of bank examiners as a result of the investigation which led to the arrest last night of Edgar Lord, Treasurer of both institutions. Lord pleaded guilty in the District Court to-day to a charge of larceny of $40,000, the complaint alleging the taking of $20,000 from each bank. He was held in $25,000 bonds for a hearing on Sept. 9, and was committed to jail.

Although both banks have suspended for ninety days, bank officials said after a hurried examination of the books that there would be no loss to shareholders or depositors. The only loss, they said, would be in a shrinkage of the profit accounts. The officials expressed the opinion that the real cash loss would not exceed $25,000, part of the $40,000 alleged to have been stolen having been paid back.

These Men's Serge Suits, $14.75

Guaranteed Fast Blue; of a Fine Deep Shade; Full Lined. For Immediate Autumn and Winter Wear.

If we asked $19.75 for these Suits they would be a special value that would bring in the "merchandise reporters" of other stores to try to learn "how Macy's does it."

The serge is of a fine quality, closely woven, of a dignified, deep blue, and absolutely permanent. In weight the cloth is right for wear the year 'round, except that the vest would not be worn in the hottest weather, nor would a man wear one without an overcoat in coldest weather. Full lined, splendidly tailored. In the latest fashion.

Will you have one of these to wear over Labor Day and to begin the Autumn with?

Also at $14.75 Two hundred suits of other cloths, in grades that sell elsewhere, at from $20.00 to $25.00 each. Dressy, substantial and stylish for between season's wear. We recommend these without reservation as a remarkable value.

All sizes, 34 to 46, including special models for stout, short, and extra tall men.

BAR ASSOCIATION DENOUNCES RECALL

Movements Against Judges or to Change Decisions Considered Dangerous to the Country.

NEGRO MEMBERS RETAINED

Attorney General Wickersham Wins Fight for William H. Lewis—President Gregory's Address.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 27.—Fifty-four lawyers, with at least one from each State, to-day completed for presentation to the American Bar Association a report denouncing as "dangerous to the country" all movements for the recall of Judges or of judicial decisions.

The report cites that in Ohio the Constitutional Convention declined to apply recall to the Judges, but provided that laws should be passed for the prompt removal on complaint and hearing of Judges for any misconduct involving moral turpitude. The report says this substantially is the system used in Massachusetts, New York, and several other States, and says that, in addition to California and Oregon, where the judicial recall exists, the only other States which have taken steps toward recall are Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, and North Dakota. In the latter Staes, the report asserts, the bar associations have started campaigns against the recall.

Those who signed the report include Frank B. Kellogg, Minnesota; William B. Hornblower, New York; Lawrence Maxwell, Ohio, and Edmund F. Trabue, Kentucky. Jacob M. Dickinson, former Secretary of War, is named as one of those who originated the committee "to expose the fallacy of the judicial recall."

Objections to the Recall.

"We are pleased to report," says the committee, "that the Bar Associations of many States have taken action opposed to the principle of judicial recall. In numerous other States action undoubtedly will be taken.

"We maintain that the recall applied to Judges will tend to deprive the public of Judges of ability, character, high sense of duty, and a due regard to enlightened public sentiment, and that such a judiciary is absolutely necessary to the existence of a constitutional democracy.

"The application of the recall to an ordinary official may be a question of expediency, but it is not fundamentally wrong. To apply it to the judiciary is in violation of the principles of Government which ages of experience have demonstrated to be wise. In the States and in the Federal Government we have the right of impeachment, and in several of the States the right of removal of a Judge by the Legislature. If the right of impeachment is not sufficient, an adequate remedy can be created for the removal of a Judge for conduct inconsistent with his office after complaint is made and he has an opportunity to be heard in his own defense. In this way the independence of the judiciary is maintained and a Judge is removed simply for incapacity or misconduct in office.

"The advocates of this system claim that it is in the interest of the common people. This we deny. For more than 300 years the greatest bulwark for the protection of the mass of the people has been the courts. There never was a time in our country when any man, however poor or humble, could not apply to the courts and be assured of protection. Is it any reproach upon the courts that they have extended the same protection to the rich and powerful when assailed by popular prejudice?"

Negroes Remain Members.

Ten minutes was devoted by the association to settlement of the question whether negro lawyers should be admitted to membership. A resolution, presented by Mr. Dickinson, was adopted, providing that hereafter when a negro is nominated for membership his race must be indicated to the Executive Committee.

Attorney General George W. Wickersham declared the resolution created a permanent member of William H. Lewis, an assistant to the Attorney General, who with two other negro lawyers had been unseated by the Executive Committee because of their race.

"I hope this resolution will pass," said Mr. Wickersham, "for it recognizes the legality of these negro members. It was I who was chiefly responsible for bringing this subject up."

Scores of members protested against adoption of the resolution, saying it had always been the policy to exclude negro members. Others said, while the resolution allowed the present negro members to remain, it would preclude the admission of more negro members before the fact of their race would be made known to the Executive Committee.

The resolution offered by Mr. Dickinson was:

Whereas, three persons of the colored race were elected to membership in this association without knowledge upon the part of those electing them that they were of that race, and are now members of this association.

Resolved, That as it never has been contemplated that members of the colored race should become members of this association, the several local councils are directed if at any time any of them shall recommend a person of the colored race for membership to accompany the recommendation with a statement of the fact that he is of such race.

The motion was carried, and Lewis, Butler R. Wilson of Boston, and William R. Morris of Minneapolis were then said to be regularly seated.

Lorimer and Hanford.

S. S. Gregory, President of the association, reviewed the work of the recent session of Congress, and said that perhaps the most significant act was the adoption of a joint resolution proposing to the States an amendment to the Constitution providing for the election of members of the Senate by direct vote. Referring to the Lorimer case as strengthening the popular sentiment for the direct vote Mr. Gregory said:

"It is precisely this kind of gross abuse of power and dereliction in duty by Representatives to their constituents which has contributed so largely to the failure of representative government and destroyed the confidence of the American people in the entire representative system.

"There would seem to be but little doubt, judging from the present temper of our people, that this amendment will pass, although it will undoubtedly meet with considerable resistance in certain quarters.

"As to Judge Hanford, having read such of the evidence as has been printed in the newspapers, I venture to express the opinion, though possibly I ought not to, that the matter sought to be proved seems to have been for the most part trivial and falling far short of such high crimes and misdemeanors as would warrant impeachment of a Federal Judge.

"We ought not, however, to condone nor gloss over the shortcomings of the bench. There is altogether too much of an effort on the part of some lawyers to do this and to stand well with Judges, and to some extent to make this their stock in trade.

"A Judge ought to be held to high standards of public and official conduct. The bar ought, and I believe is, generally disposed to insist upon such standards."

Woman Suffrage.

Referring to the action of certain States in extending the suffrage to women, Mr. Gregory said:

"It certainly seems as if women were entitled to self-government as well as men. It is the Jeffersonian idea, and I believe it to be the true one, that all men are entitled not merely to wise government, not merely to honest government, not only to good government, but to self-government.

"It is difficult to see how, consistently with this principle, which lies at the foundation of American institutions, the political rights accorded to men can be denied to women. I am satisfied that if the ladies make up their minds with any considerable degree of unanimity that they want the ballot, they will get it; and at the present time there are strong indications that they have decided that they are entitled to and should have this vital and important political right."

FIGHT SURETY REINSURANCE.

Empire Stockholders Try to Enjoin Deal with National.

Injunction proceedings were begun in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday to enjoin the Empire State Surety Company from entering into any agreement with the National Surety Company to reinsure the Empire Surety Company's business. The case will be argued before Justice Aspinall in the Supreme Court at 10 o'clock on Aug. 30.

Acting on behalf of himself and other minority stockholders in the Empire State Surety Company, Fred G. Lemmermann, who owns thirteen shares of the company's stock, applied to Justice Aspinall for the injunction. He was represented by the law firm of Jonas, Lazansky & Neuburger, 44 Court Street, Brooklyn.

According to complaint filed with the petition for an injunction, it was asserted that at a meeting of the Directors of the Empire State Surety Company held on Aug. 22, David W. Armstrong, Jr., President of the company, and two other Directors, forming a committee, were instructed to find the best possible terms from other companies on which the business of the Empire State Surety Company could be reinsured, and that, if satisfactory replies were not received by noon on Aug. 28, an agreement should be made with the National Surety Company to take over the Empire's business for a sum equal to 70 per cent. of the amount of the unearned premium reserve of the company.

The petitioner said that he believed the Empire has already made some kind of a tentative agreement with the National, and he did not see any gain to the Empire stockholders by the proposed agreement with the National.

SURVIVES FALL UNDER TRAIN.

Two Subway Cars Pass Over Young Woman, but Hurt Her Little.

Miss Elizabeth Netterville, 18 years old, of 209 Waverley Place, was run over by two cars of a Subway train at the Seventy-second Street station yesterday and escaped with no more serious injury than a bruised head and limbs and shock to her nerves. She was seen to reel from the south end of the island platform directly in the path of a northbound West Farms express, the first two cars of which passed over her before the motorman, Ralph Graham, could stop his train. The girl was unconscious when the cars were backed away and employes and several policemen lifted her to the platform. Her scalp was torn where she had been struck by the motor box of the first car, the only external injury to be seen. She was taken to Flower Hospital by Dr. Graham, where she revived and denied any attempt at suicide.

Some of the spectators of the accident, including Battalion Chief Torpeny, according to the police, said they believed the girl had deliberately jumped in front of the train.

Miss Netterville, who is employed as a bookbinder, explained that she was subject to "weak spells," and an attack of vertigo caused her to fall. Her father and mother corroborated this statement.

Acting on the information of a suspected attempt at suicide, the police of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station questioned her, but have not placed her under arrest, it was said at the hospital. The physicians there say her story that it was an accident is undoubtedly corect.

NAVY ENFORCES VACCINATION

Punishes Seaman for Refusing Inoculation for Typhoid.

MARE ISLAND, Cal., Aug. 27. — The Navy Department, despite protests by Senator Works and others, seems determined to go ahead with its policy of punishing seamen who refuse to undergo vaccination. This attitude was indicated here to-day by a dispatch from Washington ordering the confinement of J. M. Holloman, ordinary seaman, for one year at the Bremerton Navy Yard for refusing vaccination with typhoid serum.

Holloman is now confined on the prison ship Manila.

December 16, 1773

The Boston Tea Party

"There's a Reason"

An English King had told his subject colonists that if they drank tea they must pay a tax on it—an unjust tax that made revenue, not for Americans but for Englishmen.

It was a tax that increased the high cost of living of those days—and our forefathers went to the wharf where the tea ships were moored, split open the tea chests and spilled their contents into Boston Harbor, thus producing the largest and most expensive bowl of tea the world has ever seen.

Today

Is repeated practically the same thing.

The Brazilian Coffee Trust, operated by foreign money kings, working outside the control of our National Anti-trust laws, have imposed a tax upon American Citizens which has raised the price of even the cheapest grade of coffee from 15c to 25c per lb.

During three past years this trust has taken Hundreds of Millions of Dollars from the pockets of American Citizens.

It has given Brazil 85 Millions of Dollars with which to retire her National Bonds.

It has given Brazil 10 Millions of Dollars to pay interest on her bonds.

It has given Brazil a "bought and paid for" supply of coffee on hand worth 90 Millions of Dollars and—

It has paid millions upon millions of profit into the coffers of the Foreign Money Kings, and yet the coffee people report a falling off in sales of about 200 million pounds in the past two years.

Why this Heavy Reduction?

Until recently the ever increasing army of Postum users, thought only of health as a "reason" for quitting coffee. Now Economy is another "reason." A third "reason," Improved Flavor, has come in with prepared instantly by placing a spoonful in a cup and pouring hot water over it.

This presents a delicious beverage much resembling high grade Java in color and taste, but absolutely pure and free from the coffee drug "caffeine" or any other harmful ingredient.

Health, convenience, flavor and economy have induced people to change from coffee to Postum, then follows better health, freedom from headache, indigestion, nervousness, and other coffee ills.

The Result—

In hundreds of thousands of American homes today, coffee is forgotten and Postum has become the regular table beverage. It is an American drink made by Americans from American products.

A 100-cup tin Instant Postum, 50c, (equals ½c per cup), at Grocers. (Smaller tins at 30c.) Regular Postum, large package, (must be boiled 15 minutes), 25c.

"There's a Reason"

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 27.—A National League pitching record for the season of 1912, in so far as a single contest is concerned, was shattered this afternoon when Art Fromme handed out one lone hit to the slugging New York Giants, leaders of the National League, and managed to annex another victory over the dreaded New Yorkers, by a score of 2 to 0.

A single in the third inning deprived Fromme of the opportunity of having his name added to the hall of fame for pitchers. While he handed out four bases on balls, the breaks did not annoy or even cause the local pitcher any worry, and only two of the New York players were able to reach second base, while none proceeded beyond that station.

The Reds beat Mathewson for the second time this season. Big Six faced Fromme, and it was a confident bunch of ball tossers that lined up back of him. They were undismayed by the defeat handed to Marquard the day before and were confident that with Mathewson in the box the Reds would be easy for their team.

The Reds produced hits when they were needed, and Hoblitzel and Mitchell were the swatters. Each of these batters made three hits in four trips to the plate, and two of Mitchell's followed extra-base clouts by Hoblitzel and won the game.

Fromme was never in trouble. While the Giants had a runner on second base in the first inning and another in the third inning, when Fletcher made the only hit for the Giants ad stole second, the situation was never dangerous, and Fromme never let up for one instant.

As inning after inning passed without the Giants securing a run and without any more hits being made the fans began to sit up and take notice of the high-class work of Fromme. He had the best-pitched contest of the year in sight, and they were rooting for him not only to win the game, but also to blank the Giants for the second straight time.

Mathewson was batted hard and often, and it was the brilliant support he received that prevented the Reds from piling up a score of the same proportions as on Monday. The Reds found Matty, the idol of many Cincinnati fans, for eight safe hits, two of them being for extra bases, and each of the latter counted for a run. In the eighth Mathewson was taken out of the game to allow "Moose" McCormick to bat in his place, and then Crandall finished the game. There was no need for any runs off the latter, as the game was as good as won at that stage and the slim total of the locals was large enough to get away with the game.

Thus, while Fromme accomplished wonders in the hurling line, the Reds again smashed a record, for they defeated Mathewson for the second time in five series, an impossibility up to last season.

The Giants wanted to-day's game very much, with the Cubs adding another game to their total and the Giants dropping another, the margin between the clubs being a full game lessened, the Giants' margin being five and a half games in the lead.

Hoblitzel and Mitchell won the game by their batting, and they accounted for the pair of runs. In the first inning Hobby bounded one to the bleachers in right field for three bases, and he scored when Mitchell beat out a grounder to third.

Again in the third round Hobby connected for a double past Merkle, and came to the plate on a short single to right field by Mitchell. Thereafter Mathewson pitched better ball in the pinches and his teammates pulled off a couple of double plays that killed chances to get runners around the paths.

Only two of the other Cincinnati players were able to connect for safeties, these being Grant and McLean, but there were no runners on the bases when their hits were made. Then, too, Matty was a trifle wild and gave three bases on balls and made a wild pitch.

Brilliant fielding aided Fromme greatly. Fast fielding cut off hits for the Giants, and this was especially true of the work of Egan, Grant, and Mitchell. Capt. Mike dashed almost to the infield for a short fly off Becker's bat, with a runner on first base, and robbed the batter of a hit. Mike caught the ball at his shoetops, and it was the best fielding play of the contest.

In the eighth inning Phelan was benched by Umpire Johnstone for protesting a decision made at third base. The latter did not waste any time in sending the Redleg off the field, and a change in the line-up of the locals was necessary. Jimmy Esmond again got a chance to break into the game at short field, Grant being shifted to third, but neither of these players received a chance in the final inning.

Cheney's Fine Pitching, with Perfect Support, Downs Brooklyn.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27. — Pitcher Cheney held Brooklyn to six scattered hits today and with perfect support shut out the visitors 6 to 0 in the final game of the series, thereby gaining a full game on New York in the race for the pennant. The distance between the two leaders is now 5½ games. Chicago bunched hits off Yingling. The score:

Time of game—Two hours and four minutes.

The Yankees went after Cleveland in yesterday's double-header on the Hilltop in a fashion which made the fans sigh and remark, "Oh, if they only had played that way earlier in the season!" New York won the first game, 8 to 4, and won the second by a count of 6 to 4.

Jack Lelivelt, one time of Washington and until yesterday of Rochester, made his debut as a Yankee, and looked good. He had a single and a three-bagger in the first game and three singles in the second, and played centre field just as it should be played. George McConnell, the human lath, pitched the first game for the Yankees, while Baskette was knocked off the mound in the fourth inning, and Kaler, his successor, was jostled rudely also before the game was over.

Davis, the Williams College pitcher, pitched fine ball for six innings in the second game, and in that time held the Naps to two hits. He was easier for the visiting batsmen in the last three innings, although they were unable to hit him hard enough to endanger New York's lead. However, it was just as well that the game ended when it did in the ninth inning, for Blanding had just started to make Davis nervous when he poled a homer into the centre field bleachers on the bound.

Some 8,000 citizens sat in at the long entertainment, and attention was divided between the double-header, a fire in the neighborhood, and the Giant-Cincinnati score board. The groan that was emitted when there was no longer any question about the Reds beating the Giants was just like the expression of sadness which comes from a man after he puts his hand in his pocket and finds his watch gone. Three tired-looking fans walked into a field box in the seventh inning of the second game, and the crowd took its attention from the game and asked the latest men where they had been. The three replied that they had come early so as to be in at the beginning of to-day's double-header.

Hal Chase was a busy bee with his ashen club, and, with a home run, a three-bagger, and a couple of singles, helped to keep the score-board boy busy putting up Yankee runs. There is no telling what Joe Jackson would have done in the two games, because his batting career was cut short in the first game, when he loudly differed with Umpire O'Brien's decision on a strike and was ordered off the field for the afternoon.

Ryan's hit, a sacrifice, an error, and Lajoie's single gave the Naps a run in the first inning. This New York eclipsed in the third, when McConnell and McMillan got on with singles and were driven home by Chase's three-bagger. Ital scored on Paddock's single. New York had the bases jammed in the fourth, with no one out, and managed to get two runs out of two hits, an error, and a passed ball. Three runners in this inning were out trying to connect with the plate.

Erratic fielding by Simmons and Chase and a wild pitch helped the Naps to two runs in the fifth, and they got a fourth run in the ninth on two hits and a steal. The Yankees made a good finish with Lelivelt's three-bagger, singles by Simmons and Hartzell, and a double steal netted three runs.

The second game was a surprising reception for Steen, the Nap pitcher. McMillan doubled to left and Chase whacked a home run between the centre and right gardens. That rather disturbed Steen, but the Yankees dislodged him completely in the fifth. With two out in that round, Chase singled and Daniels walked. Bang and Paddock rode a three-bagger to centre, scoring two runs, and rushed home himself on Lelivelt's single.

Cleveland was completely under the spell of young Davis until the seventh inning. Then Olson and O'Neill singled and Nash walked, filling the bases. While Griggs, batting for Mitchell, forced Nash at second, Olson scored the Naps' first run. Birmingham's single, two outs, and Johnston's single gave the visitors one more in the eighth, and in the ninth, with one out, Nash beat out an infield hit, and then Blanding threatened to break up the game. As it was he made a very deep impression on Davis. His clout was a home run into the bleachers in centre field, a jolt which sent Nash over the plate ahead of him.

They play another double-header to-day.

Boston and Chicago Tied.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—Boston and Chicago played twelve innings to an 8 to 8 tie to-day, darkness ending the game after electric lights appeared. The game was full of exciting moments. Chicago's early lead was lost when Boston scored five runs off Ciootte in the fourth inning, largely on Speaker's home run and two passes. Chicago scored a like number of tallies on Bedient and Hall in the sixth inning, errors contributing. The two runs which Boston lacked of a tie came in the seventh inning, Ciootte being replaced by Walsh after the first was scored on Carrigan's hit. Hall's hit off Walsh then drove in the tying run. Both teams made stiff bids to score the deciding run, but darkness fell without decision being reached. Strenuous kicking over a decision by Umpire Westervelt resulted in the banishment of Rath and Weaver of Chicago, and led to the first major league appearance of Kid Gleason in a long time, when he went to second base. Schalik's all-around playing was noteworthy. The score:

Senators Strike Snag in Browns.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—St. Louis drove Cashion from the box in the fifth inning of to-day's game, also hit Schegg hard, and easily defeated Washington, 9 to 3. Baumgardner was a great puzzle and only let up in the ninth, with the game safe, the locals making five of their eight hits in that inning. Score:

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 28, 1912.

CHANCELLOR DAY KNEW OF IT.

Now comes into court Chancellor DAY of Syracuse University, who deposes and says that Mr. ARCHBOLD told him, just after the election of 1904, of the contribution of $100,000 to the Roosevelt campaign fund by the Standard Oil Company; that Mr. ARCHBOLD spoke of the visit of Col. BLISS to his office, of the condition imposed that Mr. ROOSEVELT was to be apprised of the company's gift of money; that Mr. BLISS never intimated that the Standard Oil Company's contribution was not as acceptable as that of any other corporation—all substantially as set forth in the statement of Mr. ARCHBOLD before the Senate Committee.

This is the testimony of a witness contemporary to the event. It is well known that such testimony is of high credibility. The value of this corroboration of Mr. ARCHBOLD's testimony is evident. Our memory may be at fault, but it is our recollection that Chancellor DAY was projected into the Ananias Club some years ago. The trouble is that the number of persons who are coming forward as witnesses to the giving and acceptance of corporation contributions in that campaign is rather rapidly increasing. Mr. ROOSEVELT, naturally, will make his conventional reply to all these witnesses, that they are liars. It is hard, indeed, to believe that so many men of stainless reputations have joined in what the Colonel calls this "frame-up." In fact, it is impossible to believe such a thing. It is a very distressing business, for the Colonel has made much political capital out of his protestations that his campaign was not financed by the corporations. He is the poorer for these exposures. The only really pleasant, cheerful, and satisfying feature of the whole transaction is that after giving $100,000 to the Roosevelt campaign fund, which was a highly improper thing to do, the Standard Oil Company was so wofully mishandled in the subsequent proceedings.

THE SUNDAY MAIL LAW.

Postmaster General HITCHCOCK announced last night that the provisions of the new Sunday mail law will be liberally interpreted by his department, and that, though there will be, hereafter, no general delivery of mail at the windows in Post Offices of the first and second class, (the only ones affected by the law,) the lock boxes will contain, as usual, all the mails regularly distributed in the railway mail service, and will be accessible, as hitherto, to the persons who hire them. Presumably, also, a way will be found to overcome the difficulties placed by this unnecessary specimen of "jay" legislation in the way of distributing the Sunday newspapers. All the same, the law is a bad law, and should be repealed as soon as possible.

There is a crying need for an amendment to the United States Constitution empowering the President to reject clauses of an appropriation bill without vetoing the entire bill. In this State the Governor is constitutionally empowered to reject parts of appropriation bills. The President of the United States should have the same authority over the "riders" imposed upon appropriation bills by Congress. It is obvious that Congress will never confer that authority upon the Chief Magistrate. If we are ever to get rid of the "rider" it must be through a Constitutional amendment. Some of the most deplorable work of the deplorable session of Congress just terminated has been effected by means of "riders." The President by his vetoes has killed some of them, but in the rush at the close of the session the Post Office bill was disfigured by a rider or amendment practically prohibiting all mail distribution on Sundays in offices of the first and second class.

This backwoods legislation has been carefully designed to affect only the large cities. In offices of the third and fourth class there will be no curtailment of Sunday work. The fishermen and Summer sojourners of Siasconset will get their Sunday letters and newspapers as usual. But in New York, Chicago, and Boston, and other large cities Sunday mail service will inevitably be less effective than it has been.

The large cities have always had a crippled mail service on Sundays, but holders of mail boxes have been permitted to get their own letters in the Post Offices, and many merchants have derived benefit from this privilege. This so-called Sabbatarian measure, born of the meddlesome methods of a lot of self-appointed reformers, was placed before the House of Representatives a year or more ago by Representative MANN of Illinois, of whom more intelligence might have been expected. It has naturally appealed to the notions of "social uplift" held by the "jay" members, especially when the embargo was lifted from the smaller offices. In the published drafts of the Post Office bill the rider was omitted. It was attached and slipped through Congress almost at the last minute.

No good citizen believes in compelling the employés of the Federal Government to work seven days a week. The United States Government is rich enough, and its appropriation for Post Office expenses large enough, to justify giving every employé one day for rest. But a modified mail service on Sundays in all cities, in fact in all Post Offices, ought not to inflict much hardship on any employé. The new Sunday law was conceived in a petty and meddlesome spirit.

It is gravely announced that "hearings" were held on this bill. They have not attracted general notice. Few believed that even the jay Congress of 1912 would try to carry us back to the methods of the first quarter of the last century. That the people are not satisfied with the law is clearly indicated in the rising storm of protest. But the Postmaster General's announcement of his plans for Sunday distribution will measurably appease the people, and perhaps the law can be repealed at the next session.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON'S DICTUM.

In his flirtation with the suffragists Mr. ROOSEVELT invites ridicule. Ridicule in copious measure is meted out by GERTRUDE ATHERTON in her letter to THE TIMES, printed elsewhere, in which she represents the man, surcharged with dramatic fire, with the "dynamic masculinity of the self-styled Bull Moose," cogitating: "The "women! the women! They can vote "in six States. They love a real man, "and so many of them are fools."

Mrs. ATHERTON is an ardent suffragist. She is not fooled, nor are the other women leaders of the suffrage movement, by these sudden manifestations of liking from the Progressive chieftain. What did he do for the causes he now proclaims, she asks, while he was President and in power? Now he is the ambitious politician with his astral ear out for vibrations of all sorts, particularly for the cries of women voters in the six equal suffrage States.

But he has committed himself this time. He will be managed, and managed by petticoat government. They will henpeck him, says Mrs. ATHERTON, day and night, to translate his words into deeds. Attractions and antagonisms of sex are in store for him. The letter is meant to be a psychologic study of the Bull Moose movement. It succeeds.

THE LABOR LEGISLATION OF THE SESSION.

While the country in general is dissatisfied with the record of Congress, "labor" regards this Congress as one of the best ever known, and a special bulletin of congratulation has been issued by The American Federationist. Included in the list of sixteen measures either fully enacted or advanced further than ever before, there is not one in the interest of the country as a whole, and there are many opposed to the National interests.

The proposals to limit the issue of injunctions in labor cases and to provide a jury trial in cases of contempt of court are strictly class legislation, wanted by labor alone, and prejudicial to every interest except unionized labor. The eight-hour bill can be claimed as of general interest only so far as it advances an eight-hour day outside of Government employ, those in Government employ being previously a favored class at the expense of the taxpayers. The demand that capital shall be efficiently worked in the public interest does not apply to labor, in labor's opinion, for much stress is laid upon the defeat of the "inhuman stop-watch-"high-speed schemes of employers to "drive workmen." The Plate Printers' bill is praised as a means of "protect-"ing the people's money from the sharp "practice of counterfeiters," although it is in fact rather a limitation than an authorization of modern methods of printing currency. The provision that Post Office employés may be unionized is characterized as restoring them to the full rights of citizenship in the manner "written and urged by the Federation of Labor."

This does not complete the list, which occupies more than a page of The Federationist, but it suffices to show the character of the measures. The manner in which these bills were advanced is also interesting. The Chairman of the House Labor Committee was formerly an official of the United Mine Workers. Among his colleagues were officials or members of the United Hatters, the Bridge and Structural Ironworkers, and another a member of the United Mine Workers. In addition to these unionists The Federationist vouches for the sympathetic attitude toward labor of other committeemen. It is not explained how the committee came to be composed in this suggestive manner, nor is it clear why labor should not be subjected to the same criticism labor would declaim if capitalist trusts organized committees in that manner, as indeed is not unknown.

The committee thus constituted did not find it necessary to hold hearings on some of the measures it reported, and the debate on them was perfunctory. It was otherwise when the projects reached the Senate. Representatives from thirteen industrial States appeared to oppose the Eight-Hour bill. Thirty-nine railways officially objected to the Injunction bill. Judges and lawyers without number criticised and opposed the contempt bills. There were fourteen bills introduced not mentioned in the list of sixteen. Whatever the merits of any of these measures, all are open to the objection that they are class legislation, advanced by the methods of privilege in a year when the people have decreed that privilege shall cease. All of those supporting this group of legislation have placed their selfish interests above those of the rest of the community, and to that extent have qualified themselves as being unionists before they are citizens.

Some of these measures strike at the roots of the administration of justice and of the principle of equality before the law. Those favored by such statutes live under one system of law, and those not favored live under other conditions of law. Laws of that sort, although advanced in support of humanity, strike at the rights of man, and create privileged classes. Privilege is bad enough when for the benefit of those who support government, even for selfish reasons, but privilege for the assailants of government by insidious processes is doubly obnoxious.

THE PEOPLE DO RULE.

One of the most insistent pleas made by Mr. ROOSEVELT at Chicago related to "the rule of the people." "We "should provide throughout this "Union," he declared, "for giving the "people in every State the real right "to rule themselves, and really and "not nominally to control their public "servants and their agencies for doing "the public business," &c. What are the facts?

Forty of the States hold elections for the choice of members of the Legislatures every two years, seven hold annual elections for the same purpose, and in only one of the States—Alabama, and one of the best governed and most prosperous of the Southern Commonwealths—is an election held of members of the Legislature quadrennially. At all these elections every man, and in six of the States every woman, who is qualified to exercise the franchise has the right to vote, and in all of them, speaking generally, does vote.

It is his own fault if he fail to go to the ballot box. If the men whom the people have placed in office do not discharge their duties faithfully, the people already have all the power necessary to retire them from the public service and put better men in their place. More frequent elections are on no account desirable, but if there should be State and county and Congressional elections every three months, or every week, they would be in vain if the people should fail to take an intelligent interest in their own affairs.

Asked what he thought of the Bull Moose demand for "the rule of the people," Gov. MARSHALL, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, said: "That's a fraudulent issue. The "people do rule as fully as they take "the trouble to rule, and when they take "more trouble to rule they will rule "more." That simple and direct statement of Gov. MARSHALL is worth a wagonload of declarations of the sort made by Mr. ROOSEVELT.

INVESTIGATING TOBACCO BUYERS.

Nothing is more characteristic of present-day legislation than that it is on the single-entry system. The idea that there are two sides to every account is something that has never occurred to Congress. One of its last acts was to name the Representatives to conduct the investigation into the manner in which foreigners buy our tobacco. An investigation of the entire tobacco trade might be unnecessary, since the facts are known, but this investigation must be fruitless, because conducted under instructions to inquire into only one side or phase of it.

The moving cause of the investigation is that there is a combination of foreign buyers. But tobacco is sold as well as bought, and the combination of foreign buyers followed, and may have been caused by, the combination of American sellers. A week or two ago it was announced that a crop which had been held for three years had been marketed at last at prices satisfactory to sellers. Dispatches from the tobacco district of Kentucky bring this information:

> Declarations by planters that they will withdraw from the tobacco pool in the "dark district" have paved the way toward another tobacco war and activities on the part of "night riders." Many of the planters who withdrew from the pool have been notified through Black Hand letters that fire and whippings await them unless they change.

This tobacco pool is a very American affair, much easier either to investigate or to control than any foreign combination. Yet on the single-entry system of legislation it is only the combination of buyers which is to be investigated, and the farmers' combination is to be allowed to continue its method of controlling prices.

It would seem, really, that the American Bar Association might better have let Attorney General WICKERSHAM's assistant, Mr. LEWIS, retain his membership, even though he be a negro, rather than stir up so much discussion by trying to deprive him of it. The association has done much harm to itself, and no harm whatever to Mr. LEWIS, by this exhibition of narrowness.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Circumstances Not Wholly Against Him.

Perhaps it is more the fault of the Philadelphia reporters than of the now famous WILLIAM BURKE that he is making daily protestations of his virtuous purpose to "live down" the regrettable portion of his highly variegated past. Those announcements, however, are becoming just a little tiresome, and, should they be much oftener repeated, there is at least a chance that sooner or later somebody will express right out loud the opinion that Mr. BURKE is making—or his new employer is making for him—a rather too obvious effort to capitalize his abandoned sins.

And it is not at all certain, by the way, that Mr. BURKE'S struggle for rehabilitation and an honest living is going to be as desperately hard as he seems to expect. Of course, there is a widespread distrust of ex-convicts and of their professed reformations, and this is not all prejudice and cruelty by any means. But, on the other hand, there is a more widespread inclination to be kind and generous whenever there is even a colorable excuse for believing or hoping that the reform is real.

The case of Mr. BURKE has excited much interest of a sort that is going to be helpful to him. Attention is fixed more on what he has become than upon what he was, and nobody is laying any emphasis at all on the fact that even in his later and better days he did not refrain from taking an office to which he was legally ineligible. In that respect the circumstances were considered a sufficient explanation of the offense committed, and this is largely true of his earlier violations of the law. It is now generally assumed, and fairly can be, that environment, not nature, made Mr. BURKE a thief for a while, and that he is not so much a reformed man as one who has escaped from misfortunes.

The prospects are, therefore, that he will have no great difficulty in making his way, and it may easily be that he will soon have material as well as moral reasons to be grateful to the blackmailer who so simplified his life. To be the well-advertised hero of a romantic and pathetic story has its advantages for those who know how to utilize them, and Mr. BURKE seems to know how. Of all qualities, however, modesty and reticence most become such a hero, and the best advice Mr. BURKE can receive—and follow—is to cultivate them assiduously. Nobody is going to persecute him now, and he is going to have a "chance" at least as good as he can reasonably ask for.

Millionaires Harshly Criticised.

One of the London papers seems to be much excited over two more than ordinarily expensive manifestations of hospitality recently given in much-scolded Newport. On rather inadequate grounds it accepts as true the uncharitable theory that these entertainments resulted from the efforts of two social rivals to show which of them could and would spend the most money, and "pitiable," "vulgar," and "sordid" are among the epithets which it finds necessary to use in expressing its opinion of such a competition.

The most, perhaps the only, worrisome feature of this eruptive tirade is the clear implication by the London paper that this sort of thing is distinctly and distinctively "American." That irritates—it is almost enough to make a New York paper undertake the unfamiliar and perhaps difficult task of defending Newport and the way its notable or notorious inhabitants spend their money. Of them it could at least be said that, even when yielding to their most extravagant impulses, they probably do not expend, in entertaining their friends and establishing their social position, anything like as much, in proportion to their capitals and incomes, as commonly do people of narrow means in both the United States and England.

That's as may be, but why are these products of barbaric taste, if such they be, "American" as well as pitiable, vulgar, and sordid? Even over here we read an occasional English paper, and no end of English novels. Are we mistaken in thinking that both not infrequently tell of expenditures by South African and Australian millionaires that are marked by something else than delicacy and moderation? And once in a while, it memory serves, these same authorities compel us to believe that some members of the home-grown nobility occasionally put their money to other than the highest and best of uses.

The truth is, probably, that our millionaires are much like those elsewhere—no wiser and no more unwise. They haven't had as long practice in the handling of huge fortunes as have certain British beneficiaries of old wars and old spoliations and old trades, but they are at least equally prone to employ sizable fractions of their wealth for the advancement of assorted sciences, arts, and philanthropies, and perhaps in both manners and morals they compare well enough to the average lord or baron whose blazon ought to be a beer barrel but isn't.

A Grievance Purely Imaginary.

One of our correspondents who patronizes public telephones is not satisfied with getting his fee back when "Central" is able to elicit no response after calling the subscriber to the service whom he demanded. He insists that restitution should also be made when somebody at the other end of the wire answers, only to say that the particular person wanted isn't there.

This seems hardly reasonable. At least it is no more reasonable than it would be to expect a street-car company to refund money expended in going to the house or office of somebody who was "out" and so made the journey useless. Indeed, it is not quite clear why the telephone fee should be given back when, for no fault of the company's, the payer of the fee gets nothing for his money except "They don't answer." A part of it, if not the whole, seems to have been earned, for a service has been rendered, and, though negative, it is not the less real.

Everybody who makes frequent resort to the telephone has his troubles, but, in comparison with the conveniences and the advantages and the economies which this most wonderful instrument provides, the troubles are almost negligible. And, as all who do much traveling know, New Yorkers are specially favored as to telephone service, if not as to telephone prices. The majority of our telephonic woes, however it may be with those of other people, are due to the carelessness, the incompetency, or the discourtesy of the people called or calling. Some of them never will learn how to talk telephone, others habitually commit the crying outrage of having you called to the telephone by an underling and then told to "wait a minute" until they get ready to talk to you, and still others make stupid mistakes as to the numbers they want, to the bitter annoyance of perfect strangers. With these evils reformed, scoldings of "Central" and her employers would be more just. And then we will begin doing it ourselves. We could find excuses enough.

HANDICAPPED.

Ex-Convict Finds Doors of Honest Toil Not Ajar.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What would you do if you were out of employment, had no family, no relatives, no friends, nobody in this country to depend on? What would you do if, on top of all this, you were just released from State prison? Why, go to work and make an honest living, you say. Well, this is exactly what I did and am still trying to do. But all the business concerns and people I stopped with prior to my incarceration have severed the last tie that bound me to them.

If I had an opportunity I could convince people of my ability and sincere endeavor to make good. I have the goods with me. But the sad fact is that no good is expected from a man who has come in contact with the law and bent his back under its heavy hand. The ex-prisoner is always conscious that the world does not expect anything or very little from him. Wouldn't it, under such circumstances, be much better to keep him in prison or kill him outright, instead of granting him again his liberty and then blocking every possible way for him to make good and to evolve into a better man?

I need only a clerical position, not one of trust. The attitude toward me ranges from a short, cynical "No" to "How could it enter your head that we should find any use for a man like you?" It's enough to fill one's heart with despair. It is something that those who have not been through can never realize. It makes me wince to have it said that I do not amount to much. I might never astonish the world by any brilliancy of intellect or moral grandeur, but I can eliminate that moral kink in my life and keep from growing zigzag.

May I wake up some fine morning, I hope, and find myself, after all this struggling and despairing, really and truly adjusted to the world. Then and there I shall get the first pleasurable sensation of self-respect.

THE BOOTH LETTERS.

Volunteers of America Not Responsible for Their Publication.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On behalf of Gen. Ballington Booth, I write to ask if you will give prominent notice in the columns of your esteemed paper to the fact that neither Gen. Ballington Booth nor any of his staff at the Volunteer headquarters, nor, so far as we can ascertain, any one connected with our movement in an official capacity or otherwise, gave the two letters published in THE SUNDAY TIMES of the 25th inst. I refer to the letters exchanged between Gen. William Booth and his son, Gen. Ballington Booth, some sixteen years ago, at the time of the latter's separation from the Salvation Army.

Our President has purposely and persistently refused to in any way allude to the controversy of that period since his father's illness and death. Seeing such has been the attitude of the Volunteers, it would be little short of a calamity for your many readers to attribute the responsibility for the reproduction of these letters at this late date to our leader or our organization.

JAMES W. MERRILL,
Secretary the Volunteers of America.

THE "TRICKED" SUFFRAGISTS.

Will They Have Mr. Roosevelt's Senate Print Corrected?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Senate document containing the referendum statement referred to by Mrs. Harper will no doubt be franked and sent broadcast at the Government's expense for use as campaign literature. It will be especially useful in States where the justice of obtaining the consent of the majority vitally concerned to any change of political status is recognized. It will correct much of the impression made by suffrage speakers. Is this the wish of suffragists?

Will they suppress it? Miss Alice Carpenter has declared that every Bull Moose campaigner will be expected to discuss suffrage, and "we are in a position to demand it." Are "we" in a position to demand that, if the document cannot be suppressed, it be accompanied by an erratum slip stating that the third-term candidate has always and everywhere vehemently favored woman suffrage, and that the offensive (to suffragists) paragraph was inserted by a venomous, malignant, and dastardly enemy—a Senate page, perhaps, or the foreman of the Government Printing Office? R. G.

New York, Aug. 26, 1912.

Hypocrisy of the Canal Bill.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The men who are responsible for the clauses in the Panama Canal bill which are causing Europe and Canada to question our National probity and sense of honor are placing us in a position by no means enviable, and one which we, as a people, must surely be disgusted with. If the greatest republic the world has yet seen cannot make a "square deal" and abide by a treaty made with another power in all sincerity, however disadvantageous to ourselves the terms of the treaty may be, we cannot hope to retain our position among nations and our fair name as peacemakers and ardent supporters of the principle of arbitration.

Let us make our voices heard through the press and public meetings and demonstrations protesting against the action of our Senators in disregarding what should be a sacred thing, the terms of a treaty with a foreign power.

New York, Aug. 26, 1912. AMERICAN.

No One to Dust the Records?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I had some work to do in the Register's office in the ten-million-dollar Hall of Records last week, and in taking down the libers of conveyances and mortgages from the racks I found all of them covered with thick coatings of dust. The Borough President, who provided and paid the men to dust in the past, has refused to do so any longer, saying the Register should have his own force.

I talked with another lawyer about this and he said the Register had plenty of men to do this work if he would set to work some of those who were standing around and take others from making useless copies of records. This is apparently another case where our splendid (?) system of divided responsibility works to the detriment of the public.

Appreciates Impartial News.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to express my appreciation of the fair way in which you are reporting the speeches, &c., of Theodore Roosevelt, even though you are not supporting him editorially. By your course you demonstrate that the function of a newspaper is to give the news to its readers, and by so doing you have gained one.

The Situation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning Mr. Loeb is reported as saying: "No one can possibly impeach the integrity of Col. Roosevelt." This is positively funny. It recalls the ancient story of the man who had been locked up charged with some offense. "Why," said his lawyer, "they can't put you in jail for that." "But," replied the profane but matter-of-fact client, "damn it, I am in jail." ARTHUR CLENNAN.

MRS. ATHERTON ON WOMEN MOOSERS

"T. R. Will Have a Harem That Will Henpeck Him to Translate Words Into Deeds."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This so-called Progressive Party, (which has cunningly vaudevillized the Democratic platform,) appeals to our American people chiefly through their ineradicable love of a show. We love brass bands, torchlight processions, church weddings of our plutocratic daughters with belted earls—witness the 10,000 disgruntled democrats cheering in the street—mass meetings on any pretext, spectacular fires; and, after a visit to Washington, lament that the daily theatrical entrance of the Supreme Court of the United States is our only inheritance of the great monarchical drama still enacted across the water. Nobody knows this better than Theodore Roosevelt, and, being surcharged with dramatic fire himself, he has never found the position of leading man the least bit onerous. In and out of office, absent treatment in Africa, tickling American patriotism (or conceit) by insulting his hosts in Europe, all is one to him, and accomplished with a consummate ease and versatility which dazzle all but the strongest brains.

A Political Matinee Idol.

Whether this sudden desertion of the legitimate for the vaudeville stage was planned from the first with La Follette as pawn, only history can decide; but certainly for swift succession of surprises, spectacular effects, and unexpected climaxes, no continuous performance invented by any of our more circumscribed actor-managers has approached it. No wonder the great dull middle-class public, whose thinking is always done for them, (or we never would have had machine politics,) and who welcome any irruption of drama into the dreary round of their lives, are fighting for front seats in the greatest show of the twentieth century, and shouting themselves not only hoarse but silly. Of course they love to be roused, thrilled, excited, taken out of themselves—why shouldn't they, poor devils? And although the public is an ungrateful dog, and may vote for some one else when the time comes, T. R. will ever be its favorite showman.

This, aside from the men whose political ambitions are bound up with his, and those whose friendship has so far stood every test, is the psychology of the new Roosevelt boom. I doubt if the thinking men among the working class take any stock in him at all. The Socialists believe in no other remedy than Socialism, either evolutionary or revolutionary, and laugh at the tiny red flag among his new collection of properties. They know that Socialism is spelt only one way, and that although the word sounds well, that is to say broad and liberal, to the general public open to new ideas, it is not for a moment synonymous with either reform or democracy. As for the higher class of laborers not yet Socialists, as well as the many thousands too tired to think at all, it is probable they will enjoy the show with the bulk of the middle class, and vote their old party ticket.

T. R. is essentially the idol of the bourgeois, the rich being intensely conservative and fearful, the artistic and professional class—the active brain workers in general—too keen and critical to be impressed with noise and calcium, the immense mass of labor too hot on the trail of really better things, and too weary of sounding promises and hope deferred.

"I Must Have the Women."

Roosevelt, whose astral ear is always moving over a great range and bringing back valuable garnerings, no doubt discovered all this while scampering about the country calling Taft names, and, with the volubility of the old-time traveling quack, promising a brand-new nostrum for every ill. When he fell exhausted upon Oyster Bay, and thought succeeded action, we may picture him at work upon that always disconcerting process of separating the wheat from the chaff. We may further picture him making a wry face, swallowing the bitter pill, and muttering: "The women! I must have the women! They can vote in six States, they love a real man, and so many of them are fools. Owing to the subtle manipulation of the male ever since public opinion forbade the beating of the female into submission they love to be bamboozled." So he arose and thundered "Votes for women!" The clever women, and there are a few hundred of them, smiled, but were quite as willing to make use of him as he of them; the unclever women, of whom there are a few million, at once became hysterical and talked about "the religious crusade."

Miss Jane Addams, I make no doubt, not only became convinced, by personal conversations with Roosevelt, of his sincerity and powers of usefulness, but, with other sociological women, enrolled herself under the lone star banner with the deliberate intention of making use of Roosevelt to further her own great ends. He has publicly implored the help of women, he has made them specific promises. Well, let him prepare himself—should by any mischance he mount the throne once more—for troubles that never beset his former terms. These women will keep his nose to the grindstone, or know the reason why; they will see that he abolishes child labor, criminals, low wages, long hours for the poor of their sex. When women are out for reform they mean business. Between idealism, optimism, plenty of time for real work, the maternal sense, the practical sense which taking care of man's dollars throughout the ages has bred in them, and the dedication of their lives to the amelioration of abominable conditions, they have no patience with the men who talk reform, and live for themselves.

Petticoat Rule of Canonical Boss.

I notice that Mr. Roosevelt in a recent speech anathematized both the Republican Party and the Democratic Party (among other things!) as being boss-ridden; shouted that no reforms were possible where machine politics ruled; and then went on to extol the new Progressive Party as being utterly free of this old pernicious boss system. Yes, there will be no bosses in the new Progressive Party, but there will be one big, lone, canonical boss—T. Roosevelt. That is his present purpose, and should he be President again, that will be the front side of the picture. But although the country might for an interval be free of the old familiar hum and whirr of the political machine, no such rest for T. R. In wedding the Suffrage Party he will have accumulated a harem which will henpeck him day and night to translate his words into deeds.

There are other women who are under no delusions, who are also impervious to the dynamic masculinity of our self-styled Bull Moose. They know that throughout the former seven years of his incumbency he did nothing for labor, child or otherwise, although children then as now were working sixteen hours a day in the Southern cotton mills; women were the victims of "speeding up" wherever there were factories, wages shamefully low for shop girls were one of the reasons for the prosperity of the "white slaver," whose cadets were as numerous as the sands of the sea. But during his administrations these great questions, at which Jane Addams and other devoted women had been working for years, had not become "news." The daily papers and the magazines had not made the public so familiar with them that its conscience was roused and cried out indignantly for reform. When this did happen it meant forcing all these evils, so long ignored, into the domain of politics. Moreover, since Mr. Roosevelt's Administrations, women, with or without suffrage, have become a power in the land. What magnificent material for a new party platform! That it so closely resembles the Democratic, the wonder is T. R. didn't save time by taking a double somersault from Chicago to Baltimore, is perhaps beside the question. Verbum sap.

Engenders Camp-Meeting Hysteria.

It is needless to reiterate that all the clever and public-spirited women are not for Roosevelt, nor yet the majority. In the first place, women of brains and experience have grown to distrust the influence exerted upon them by the 100 per cent. male, (I dislike repeating myself, but am told it is inevitable in political campaigns.) They know just what that agitation of the senses means, how long it lasts, and just how utterly selfish, self-seeking, and unsympathetic is the man able to play that facile tune on the feminine instrument. But alas! the great majority of women in any land are not clever, (no more are the men;) they also lead narrow, dull lives, with a bare memory of romance at the beginning of a monotonous married existence, in which the same man comes home every night, too tired to talk, much less to make himself interesting, and with little in the way of travel or society to plan for and dream of. Too virtuous to have lovers, they find a vicarious excitement in novels, many of them, as I have observed before, reading a novel a day. If the heroes are wildly exciting they fall in love with them for the time being, as they do with matinée idols, or, if a bit better read, with certain violent men in history. Here is just the material for an ambitious politician with his astral ear out for vibrations of all sorts; and the fact that in six States these women have found a new interest in the ballot is a matter of deep rejoicing. For this order of woman cannot be much improved in one generation, cannot be given a new brain with the ballot; although enabled to make a little more of herself than formerly. The best argument of the antis was that this sort of woman would vote for the man that appealed to her personally. To be in love with a public man turns life from gray to rose for a few months. To be able in addition to do something for this man, to be able to help him, appeals to the subtlest and most powerful instinct that centuries of submission have bred in them. He can also whip them up into a state of excitement which makes them, with the instinct of self-defense, coin the phrase "religious crusade," but which is no more nor less than the hysteria of the camp meeting. The Roosevelt women are making a public exhibition of their fundamental instincts, while they put their heads in the sand like the ostrich and gasp about purifying politics and their country. But life is so dull for most women, and so unfruitful for the ambitious women without originality or any sort of mental power, that while it is as well to understand them, they should be judged with a good deal of charity. WAY TO TURKISH PEACE.

Sultan Should Remain the Religious Head of Tripoli.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Commenting editorially in last Sunday's issue of THE TIMES upon the probable grounds for peace between Turkey and Italy, you emphasized first of all the necessity of Italy's conceding to the Sultan the retention by him in Tripoli of his religious jurisdiction. The opinion thus expressed is apparently based upon the knowledge of the keen jealousy of the Mohammedan for the preservation of his religious institution and his irreconcilable antipathy against the non-Mohammedan conqueror.

In conceding the point in question Italy would not be divesting herself of any right or privilege that she should or would care to retain. It is easier for her to supervise the religious institutions of a Mohammedan community through Mohammedan agencies rather than through an alien agency. In recognizing the said right of the Sultan over Tripoli Italy would be following precisely in the footsteps of Great Britain, France, and Russia in the manner they deal with their Mohammedan subjects. In making this so-called concession she would be following a universal custom, which prescribes that a given community professing a faith other than that of the political sovereign of its allegiance may do so, and submit to the religious jurisdiction of the head of its faith, whose domicile or citizenship may be other than its own.

It is to be admitted that in a treaty such as the one suggested one of the points to be mentioned would be the religious jurisdiction of the Sultan, which is, as I stated, nothing else but a matter of form.

The most difficult point in the premises is to evolve a basis of settlement which would not conflict with the national dignity of the contestants.

Be that as it may, the existing conditions in the territories of the contending parties, as well as the alignment and attitude of the powers interested, should lead one to the reasonable belief that the existing state of warfare between Italy and Turkey will terminate before the second anniversary of its beginning.

The Banana Trust.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to the statement contained in a letter printed in THE TIMES, to the effect that the banana is almost the only common food product which has gone down rather than up in price to the ultimate consumer during the last dozen years, in the absence of an import tariff, it may be of further interest to cite the fact that the increase in the supply of this nutritious article of food has been the result in great measure of the operations of a wicked combination in restraint of trade.

A Congressional Nursery Rhyme.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A nursery rhyme may be revamped to fit the case of Theron Catlin, just refused a seat in Congress on account of his papa spending too much on his election:

UPON THE HILLS.

Down there in the valley, the city lies
a-calling,
Clear and loud I hear the call the wind
bears up to me—
But, ah! upon the hills the purple night is falling,
And breezes lull the birds to sleep upon the swaying tree.

Down there in the valley, my unfinished work is lying,
Book and pen lie idle there throughout the livelong day—
But, ah! within the west the opal light is dying,
And from the upland meadow comes the fragrance of the hay.

Down there in the valley, the world's work is a-stirring;
The air is thrilling with the noise of forges and of mills—
But, ah! I hear the sound of the night birds' wings a-whirring,
And far away the blue-gray mist lies heavy on the hills.

Down there in the valley, the city lies
a-calling,
With weary feet and troubled heart the beaten paths are trod—
But on the silver lake the veil of night is falling,
And over hill and wood there lies the

SHOW GIRLS ANNOYED AT THE VANDERBILTS

"The Merry Countess" Had a Sad Time at the Newport Party.

RODE TWO MILES IN MAKE-UP

But Turkey Trotting in Street and Popularity with Men Guests Eased the Hurt Somewhat.

Ever since "The Merry Countess" company played at Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt's party at Newport last Friday night the members of the organization have been regaling Broadway restaurants with stories of what happened on that occasion. The young women who condescend to appear in the chorus of the piece, and who drive up to the Casino every night in their private motors, naturally objected to being asked to ride in express wagons when they were projected out of the railway train at Newport, and one French actor, who has had tea with the Princess Christian at Aix-les-Bains, said that parties at Sandringham were not the same thing at all.

The managers of the entertainment say that Mrs. Vanderbilt was not in any way to blame for what happened, and that she did the best she could, considering the short time she had at her disposal to arrange matters. "The Merry Countess" was produced in New York only a week ago Monday, and it was on the evening of that day that Mr. Vanderbilt contracted to pay the Shuberts $5,000 and to take the entire organization to Newport Friday evening as an extra added attraction at the ball, for which invitations had already been issued. Naturally, there was not very much opportunity during the week to arrange for the members of the chorus the luxuries to which they are accustomed.

Trains to Newport are infrequent, and one is forced to change cars at a way station. The members of the company were not asked to appear by Mrs. Vanderbilt until midnight, but the organization arrived in the American Trouville at 4 P. M. The story from here on is best told by a member of the company:

"When we got off the train we asked if the Vanderbilts had sent carriages to meet us, and we were told that there was nothing about but express wagons. Later, some 'hacks' turned up. Yes, 'hack' is the only word which describes these special vehicles. There were eighty of us. Some of us took the express wagons rather than wait for the hacks to return. We were driven to a hotel called the Acquindinck, and asked to divide a room among five or six of us.

"From then on until midnight we had nothing to do but amuse ourselves, and it seemed difficult to find a way of doing this for a time. Finally we decided to go to Freebody Park, where there was vaudeville. Somebody suggested that if we talked all the time that we would be taken for society people. We tried it and it worked. The theatre held some of the unfortunate beings who had not been bidden to Beaulieu, and they seemed to enjoy us more than the performance on the stage.

"Then we paraded en masse through the streets of Newport. Some of us even turkey trotted. You see, as the Vanderbilts had not provided any amusement for us during the evening, we had to furnish our own.

"Some member of the company had seen Mrs. Vanderbilt, which is more than the rest of us did during the course of the entire evening. He asked her where the members of the company were to dress. She had not considered that point, it seems, but she yielded up two bedrooms on the second floor of her house. These served for the principals. The chorus and ballet dressed and made up in the hotel and drove two miles with their costumes and make-up on.

"The dressing rooms in the house were locked when the principals arrived to dress, and it was with the greatest difficulty that one of the servants was persuaded to give up the keys. Miss Collins, Mlle. Dazie, and the Doily sisters were allotted to one room, and the men to the other. The balconies outside these rooms were in use, and people were passing in and out all the time that the company was dressing.

"To go to the improvised stage, which was out of doors, we passed through the dining room and then out of doors under a canopy, the length, I should say, of a city block. It was cold and disagreeable. The men in the orchestra had to leave the stage to go to their places in the orchestra pit, carrying their music, their music racks, and their chairs with them.

"After the play was over we were served supper, such as it was, in a tent out of doors. There was cold soup, cold salmon, and a little cold chicken. I was hungry enough by that time to eat a regular Rector supper. We got even later, however. The men gradually left the dance inside and came in and had supper with us until the tent was quite full of them. None of the women came in, however. We had a good time then. In fact, at the end the stage manager had to ask Mr. Vanderbilt to call his guests away so that we could catch our train."

"I met Mr. Vanderbilt," said Maurice Farkoa, one of the principals of the play, last night, "and he said extremely nice things to me, but I did not meet Mrs. Vanderbilt."

"It was an amusing experience," said Mlle. Dazie, the dancer, "more like playing a one-night stand than anything else."

"The company received every courtesy it had a right to expect," said Lee Shubert. "Mr. Vanderbilt engaged the company to entertain his guests; they were not invited as guests. If any details were lacking in their comfort, it was not the fault of Mrs. Vanderbilt, who had very little time to arrange the details for the performance, and who danced herself in the quadrille which was performed after the performance of 'The Merry Countess.'

"It was not her fault if her servants did not take into consideration the desires of all the members of the company. Many of them were presented with gifts after the performance, and they received all the attention they could have required. There is no occasion for any complaint of any sort."

Mrs. Vanderbilt was altogether too busy to look after the company," said Melville Ellis, who went up to Newport with the entertainers. "She offered to arrange what she could to assist us in getting ready, but you could not expect her to build a theatre equipped with dressing rooms inside of four days."

Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, who spent several days in town, has returned to her Summer home at Nahant, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, who are at Bar Harbor, are to entertain Champ Clark over Friday at their villa.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan sailed yesterday for Europe, and on their return in October will go to Newport for the late Autumn.

BELMONT DANCE ON BEACH

With Pail and Shovel Souvenirs and Suffrage Attachments.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont to-night introduced an original entertainment, a dance at Easton's Beach for more than 300 guests, foremost members of the Summer colony. The whole beach had been taken over by Mrs. Belmont, including the merry-go-round. The affair was in honor of Miss Inez Milholland, the suffragette who has been Mrs. Belmont's guest for a month. The big dancing pavilion was decorated with flowers and electric lights. The guests came in from the many dinners and were received by Mrs. Belmont, costumed in white silk, assisted by Miss Milholland in a pretty costume of blue with white and gold embroidery.

While the dancing was on the guests adjourned to the merry-go-round for the fun of riding on giraffes, cars, rabbits, horses, and lions. Those who secured the brass rings received tin pails, wooden shovels, rakes for the sand and other souvenirs of the beach. This part of the entertainment furnished much fun. At midnight the supper prepared by the cooks at Easton's Beach was served in the public dining hall, which was arranged with floral effects. The supper was served by pretty young waitresses in white frocks. After the supper the guests continued dancing.

Members of the German and Russian Embassies enjoyed the fun immensely, and so did hundreds of uninvited guests from places of vantage. Prince de Beauvau and Count Helie de Talleyrand-Perigord came with Mrs. William B. Leeds. Before the dance Mrs. Belmont gave a dinner for forty in honor of Miss Milholland at Marble House. Her guests were principally young people, and included Miss Eleanor Soars.

Jack McGee, a Rhode Island aviator, who flew his biplane from Pawtucket to Easton's Beach early to-night, covering thirty-five miles in thirty-six minutes, stopped into the dance pavilion and presented Mrs. Belmont with a yellow banner on which were the words in black, "Votes for Women." This was brought from Boston as a gift to Mrs. Belmont from Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis of that city. Mrs. Belmont accepted the banner with thanks.

The aviator invited Mrs. Belmont to take a flight in his biplane during his stay.

STILL HAS FAITH IN NEWPORT

I. Townsend Burden Denies He Predicted Downfall of Summer Resort.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 27.—Returning from a month's tour of California, I. Townsend Burden of New York and Newport was greeted at the office of his father-in-law, Dennis Sheedy, a banker, by a heap of assorted mail missives postmarked Newport, Long Island, New York, and elsewhere.

They revealed, upon examination, newspaper clippings and scribbled reproaches. In them he was quoted as predicting the downfall of Newport and lauding Los Angeles as a social hub, and the correspondents expressed themselves freely as to his repudiation of the New York Summer capital. Most all of New York clubdom and the social colony at Narragansett Pier was represented.

"Never saw a reporter while I was in California," he commented. "I never made any such statements. Nothing can alter my opinion that Newport has no superior as a Summer resort."

NEW HIGHWAY ENGINEER.

Supt. Reel Appoints Paul McLoud with Approval of Supt. Peck.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Another assault on the civil service is charged in the appointment to-day by C. Gordon Reel, Superintendent of Highways, of Paul McLoud as Chief Engineer of the Highway Department in place of Harry P. Willis, whom Mr. Reel forced out of the position several weeks ago.

There is pending before the State Civil Service Commission an application to transfer the position of chief engineer from the competitive to the non-competitive class.

Under the law appointments in the department are made by the Superintendent subject to confirmation by one of the other members of the commission. At to-day's meeting of the commission State Engineer Bensel refused to confirm, and Superintendent of Public Works Peck refused at first, but later consented to the appointment. Gov. Dix made a brief visit to the Capitol this morning, and it is believed by some that he influenced Supt. Peck to change his mind relative to Mr. McLoud.

Mr. McLoud comes from Central New York, is a Democrat, and has been in charge of the eastern division of the highway work. The salary is $5,000 a year.

LEE LEONARD KEEDICK WEDS.

Secretary of Peace Forum Marries Miss Ferris, Dramatist.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 27.—Miss Mabel Alice Ferris, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Ferris of 1,815 Lenox Avenue, was married to-night to Lee Leonard Keedick of New York City. The Rev. Charles Edward Loche of the First Methodist Church performed the ceremony at the Ferris home.

Miss Ferris is the dramatist of "The Bridge of the Gods," presented at the Astoria centennial. She also is well known as a reader.

Mr. Keedick is a manager of lecturers. He is also Secretary of the International Peace Forum, of which organization Dr. John Wesley Hill is President, and Henry Clews, the Wall Street banker, is Treasurer. The bride and bridegroom will spend the next three months in travel in the United States and Canada. Their future home is to be at 400 Riverside Drive, New York.

Miss Owen to Wed C. B. Struthers.

The engagement of Miss Frances J. Owen, a daughter of Mrs. Edmund C. Owen, to Charles B. Struthers, a son of Mrs. Robert Struthers and a brother of Robert Struthers, is announced. Miss Owen is a sister of the Misses Mary H. and Georgiana H. Owen. Her mother was Miss Rosamond Harriman, a cousin of the late E. H. Harriman and of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Sr., Mrs. Stephen Olin, and Mrs. Frederick C. Havemeyer.

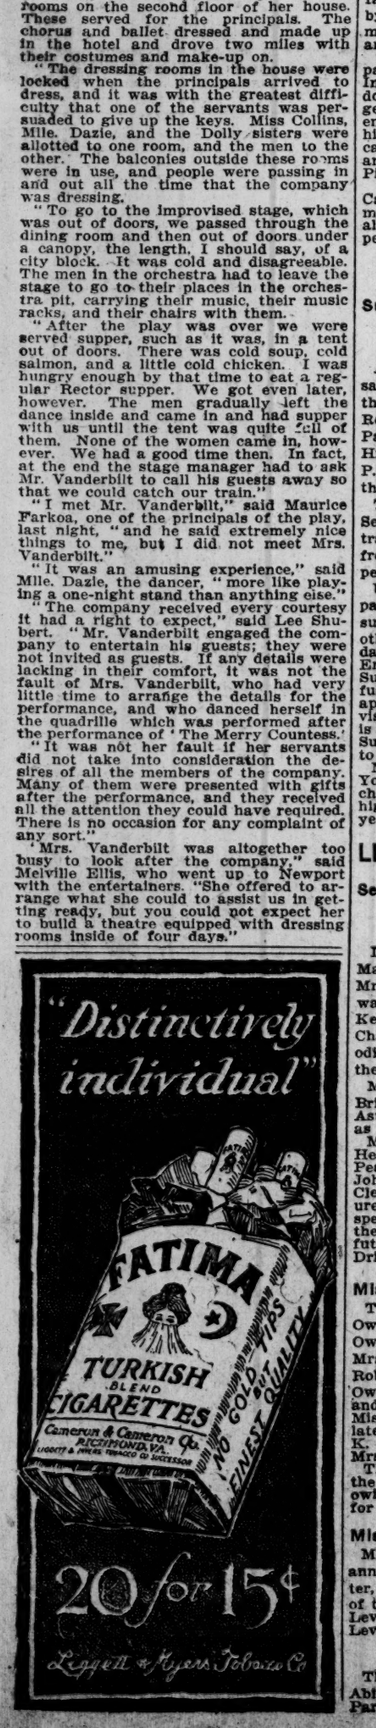
The wedding will probably take place in the Autumn, and will be a quiet one owing to Miss Owen being in mourning for her brother, Arthur Dixon Owen.

Miss Lillie Levy to Wed Emil Maas.

Mrs. Julia Levy of 202 Riverside Drive announces the engagement of her daughter, Lillie L. Levy, to Emil Maas. Notice of the reception will be given later. Miss Levy is a daughter of the late Philip Levy of Brooklyn.

Music in the Parks.

There will be concerts in Central Park, Abingdon Square, Columbus and Alaska Parks at 8 o'clock this evening.



SEARCH MANY TOWNS FOR KIDNAPPED BOY

Italian Father from Passaic Then Comes Here to Hunt Blackhanders.

CARRIED OFF IN A WAGON

After Threats Had Been Sent Demanding $5,000—Only Clue Fails When Trace Out.

Following the receipt of threatening blackhand letters by Charles Cannizarro, a prosperous banker at 37 Aspen Street, Passaic, N. J., his infant son disappeared while at play in front of his home yesterday, and under circumstances which led his father to report to the police that the boy had been kidnapped. At 6 P. M., when Cannizarro discovered that his son Frank, 2½ years old, was gone, the missing boy's playmates told him that a stranger had carried the boy away in a wagon. This was after the boy declined to take a ride, and was finally coaxed to go to the wagon by the gift of 5 cents. His playmates were driven away when they offered to accompany him, they said.

Mrs. Annie Fail of 35 Aspen Street, a neighbor of Cannizarro, said she had seen a wagon such as the boys described standing in the vicinity at various times during the last three days. The wagon was marked "Express" and bore the number "38 Chrystle Street," she said. She described the driver as 5 feet 7 inches tall, with a black mustache and dark complexion. According to others who saw the wagon, it went away in the direction of Garfield, apparently going toward the Hudson River at Fort Lee.

After Cannizarro and his friends had searched through many of the neighboring towns and roads for the kidnapper they came to this city, and with James Cannizarro of 202 Elizabeth Street, they piled into an automobile and searched various quarters of the east side and the Italian colonies. Cannizarro then became discouraged and reported the case to Commissioner Waldo at Police Headquarters. Detective Hayes of the Clinton Street Station, who was assigned to the case, found there was no such number as "38 Chrystle Street," as marked on the kidnapper's wagon. The building bearing that number was removed to make way for the approach to the Manhattan Bridge.

Explaining his fear of enemies having taken the boy in revenge or to hold for a ransom, Cannizarro said he had received a Black Hand letter four years ago, demanding that he leave $5,000 in a certain place. He ignored the letter. Two months ago came a similar letter, demanding $500, coupled with threats of what would follow his refusal to produce the money.

MRS. NICHOLS WANTS CHILD.

Father Replies That Daughter Does Not Wish to See Her.

Complaining that her divorced husband had alienated the affections of her sixteen-year-old daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Nichols, who obtained a decree from William Wallace Nichols, Vice President of the Allis-Chalmers Company of 30 Church Street, in 1907, pleaded yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Amend for the temporary custody of her child.

"Mrs. Nichols does not ask for the permanent custody of her daughter, Marian," declared T. A. McCole of counsel for the mother, "but she does insist that her right to see her during the Summer months should not be taken from her, as it was this year, through the hurried removal of the child to Manitou, Col., where Mrs. Nichols could not afford to follow her."

In opposing even this short meeting, which was provided for in the divorce agreement, Mr. Nichols said that daughter did not wish to see her mother. Mrs. Nichols answered that her daughter and she had always been on the most affectionate terms until Mr. Nichols's recent visit to the child's school in Wisconsin. Since then, she said, her child's letters had ceased, and the evidence of active prejudice against her had become manifest.

Mrs. Nichols wrote her husband last June to send Marian to her in New York. Mr. Nichols wrote back that the child had already been sent to Colorado, and would stay there until she went back to school in September.

For relief from this, Mrs. Nichols swore out a writ of habeas corpus in the Supreme Court. Justice Amend reserved his decision.

$3,882 in Jack Phillips Fund.

Further contributions to the Jack Phillips Titanic Memorial Fund, amounting to $42.80, were acknowledged yesterday by C. C. Galbraith, Chairman of the committee, at his office, 27 William Street. This brings the total subscribed to $3,882.75.

LOEB CUTS OFF TELEPHONES.

Inconvenience to Deputies Made Necessary by Treasury Order.

Acting Deputy Collectors and Acting Deputy Surveyors, who number about forty-five, and higher-grade officials of the New York Custom House, including Gen. Nelson Henry, the Surveyor of the Port, were disagreeably surprised yesterday by an order from Collector Loeb discontinuing all private telephones at the homes of the officials if not maintained hereafter at their individual expense. The instructions to the Collector came from the Secretary of the Treasury.

All officials above the grade of Inspector have been allowed a telephone by the Treasury Department in order to enable the Deputy Collector and Deputy Surveyor to keep in touch with them, according to the movement of ships, and it would be a severe hardship, it was said yesterday, for these officials, who were not overpaid, to get on with their work, as ships dock in Hoboken, Brooklyn, and Jersey City as well on the East and North River water fronts in New York. Many of these men live a long way from the city, and the telephone rate is 25 and 35 cents a call.

Already they have many extra expenses through having to pay for rooms and meals when working at night.

FINDS WEST FLOURISHING.

President Mellen Says Prosperity Is Written All Over It.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 27.—The West is where money is being made, and prosperity is writtten all over it, according to Charles S. Mellen, President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who was here to-day on his way home from the Yellowstone.

"One goes West to make money," Mr. Mellen said, "and he comes East to spend it. Your big crops out here will affect our business only in a general way. But when you make money you come East to spend it, and our income is thus increased. Crops generally are good in the East this year, and I know the West is in splendid condition. Every one seems to have a prosperity story to tell."

FREDERICK McKAY'S PLANS.

Manager to Present Nodo Minty, a Dancer, and New Play, "The Piker."

Frederick McKay announced his plans for the coming season yesterday, after his return last Saturday from a European trip. He has arranged for the American appearance of Nodo Minty, a dancer, who is now under contract to the Folles Marigny and the Folles Bergere, Paris. She is to appear in a revue.

He has obtained from Augustin McHugh, author of "Officer 666," the rights to his new drama, "The Piker," which is to be presented shortly. Emmy Wehlen, who is now at Deauville, France, will return to America after the New Year to appear in a musical comedy called "The Queen's Conquest." Marguerite Machery, a pupil of Jean de Reske, will make her American début in light opera under Mr. McKay's direction.

In association with A. H. Woods, Mr. McKay will be interested in the production of a French musical comedy, the rights to which he purchased while abroad. On account of Blanche Ring's recent illness, her season in "The Wall Street Girl" will not begin until Sept. 23, when she will open in Atlantic City. In November Mr. McKay intends to return to France to arrange for several performers to appear with Mlle. Minty.

SHERIFF ACTS AT THEATRE.

Harburger Releases a Prisoner While Seeing "Robin Hood."

Sheriff Harburger made use of a theatre box office as his official place of business last night, when he signed release papers for Max Rozinsky, who has been languishing in Ludlow Street Jail for days as defendant in a breach of promise suit brought by Mary Kisilewsky. The Sheriff had been invited to see "Robin Hood" and to express his opinion of the Sheriff of Nottingham as portrayed at the Knickerbocker Theatre.

At the end of the second act, just as he was about to go behind the scenes to meet the play Sheriff, papers were brought him showing that Mr. Rosinsky had found the $500 bail required and desired ot be free. Sheriff Harburger went to the box office, borrowed pen and ink, and signed the slip that released the incarcerated Rosinsky. Miss Kisilewsky, the plaintiff in the case, arrived in New York a short time ago from Europe and said that she expected to marry the defendant. She entered suit when the marriage did not take place.

Mr. Goldstein of Goldstein & Goldstein, counsel for the defendant, hurried back to the jail to free his client.

OPENING BILL OF THE OPERA.

"Les Huguenots" May Be Substituted for "The Magic Flute."

"Les Huguenots" may be the opening bill at the Metropolitan Opera House on Nov. 11 instead of "The Magic Flute" as has been announced. Mr. Gatti-Casazza has a decided liking for Meyerbeer's opera and has suggested before now that he would give it a production. That it would be revived some time this season was a foregone conclusion.

The opening bill this year will serve to introduce Frieda Hempel, the German coloratura soprano. If it is "The Magic Flute" she will, of course, sing the rôle of the Queen of the Night. If it is "Les Huguenots" she will also sing the rôle of the Queen. The cast will further include Mr. Caruso as Raoul, Miss Destinn as Valentine, Mme. Matzenauer as the page, and Mr. Scotti as de Nevers.

This opera was last heard in New York at the Manhattan Opera House. It has not been sung at the Metropolitan in several seasons.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Basil Gill, who is to play the role of the Emperor of the Manchus in the Liebler company's production of "The Daughter of Heaven," will arrive in New York on the Minnewaska next Sunday.

The Scotch company that is to appear in Graham Moffatt's new comedy, "The Scrape o' the Pen," will sail from Liverpool Saturday for Montreal and will begin its season at Sherbrook, Canada, on Sept. 16, coming to Weber's Theatre, New York, a week later.

Walter Damrosch has returned from his Summer home at Lake Champlain to superintend the rehearsals of his new comic opera, "The Dove of Peace," which is to open out of town on Oct. 7. The New York premier will be at the Broadway Theatre on Nov. 4.

Lionel Belmore, stage director for William Faversham's production of "Julius Caesar," arrived in New York yesterday on the Minnehaha after a month spent in England in Shakespearean research.

Richard Carle introduced a new topical song into "The Girl from Montmartre" at the Criterion Theatre last night. It is called "Why Is It?" and is sung in the last act by Mr. Carle and William Danforth.

The Cohan & Harris company in "The Polish Wedding" will leave New York to-morrow on a special train, to open in Syracuse on Saturday night. After performances in a few other cities the piece will open at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, on Sept. 8. The cast includes William Burress, Louis Cassavant, Sidney Bracey, Jack J. Horwitz, Armand Kaliez, Lincoln Pulmer, Valli Valli, Winona Winter, Carrie Graham, Louise Aichel, Marie Gerard, and Ann Pennington.

Maude Rockwell, Harry First, and Harry Landis have replaced Cecil Cunningham, Harry Wardell, and Josephine Reilis in "The Girl from Brighton," which is to open at the Academy of Music Saturday night.

Margaret Turnbull is the author of a new play that has been accepted by Henry W. Savage without his knowing the name of the author or the title of the piece. The manuscript was submitted by a play agency and was read by Mr. Savage and purchased some time ago. Yesterday Miss Turnbull called at the Savage offices and announced herself the author. She was asked to find a title for her work, which will be put in rehearsal at once.

Edna Goodrich will enter vaudeville this season in a new sketch called "The Awakening of Minerva," and will make her first appearance at the Colonial Theatre on Sept. 9. Her supporting company will include Henry Mortimer, Catherine Cherry, Claire Armstrong, and John Logan. Eva Davenport is also to enter vaudeville on the same date in a repertoire of Gilbert & Sullivan songs and some new numbers.

John P. Phillips, who is rehearsing with "The Bird of Paradise" company, has been singing the role of Robin Hood in the opera of that name during the illness of Walter Hyde. Mr. Hyde has been suffering with a stomach disorder for several days, but expects to be back in the cast to-night. Mr. Phillips sang the part several years ago in a revival of the piece, and was able to go on without rehearsals.

DR. BLAUSTEIN DEAD, NOTED EDUCATOR

Superintendent of Educational Alliance Dies Suddenly at Summer Camp, Cold Spring, N. Y.

PROFESSOR AT COLUMBIA

Made Alliance an Institution Where Immigrant Youths Could Be Thoroughly Americanized.

Dr. David Blaustein, for many years Superintendent of the Educational Alliance in this city, a member of the Faculty of the School of Philanthropy at Columbia University, and known as an educator throughout the country, died suddenly at the Young Men's Hebrew Association Camp of the Educational Alliance at Cold Spring, on the Hudson, on Monday night, according to a telegram received in this city yesterday. Dr. Blaustein, who had been at the Summer camp since Aug. 10, was taking dinner with Ferdinand Kuhn, a Director of the Educational Alliance, and several other friends, when he was stricken with apoplexy. He died two hours later without having regained consciousness.

Dr. Blaustein was 46 years old. He was born in Lida, near Wilna, Russia, and was educated in the Jewish schools of his native city. At the age of 18 years, however, yearning for a wider outlook than the schools of his own country could give him, he went to Prussia, where he pursued his studies in German universities, studying especially Hebrew and rabbinical literature under Israel Lipkin and Jewish history and philosophy under Dr. Feilchenfeld at Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

In 1886, being still a Russian subject, he was ordered to leave Germany, and came to this country. He settled at Boston, where he opened a private school and became active in educational and communal work. He was one of the founders of the Sheltering Home for Immigrants there. In 1890 he entered Harvard University, where he studied for three years. From 1892 to 1896 he was rabbi of a congregation in Providence, R. I. In 1896 he was appointed Lecturer on Semitic Languages at Brown University. Two years later he became connected with the Educational Alliance in this city, an institution then still in its swaddling clothes, and with which he remained as Superintendent for nine years.

Dr. Blaustein, in larger measure than any other man, perhaps, molded the policy of the Educational Alliance in those early days, striving to make it, above all else, an institution where the youth of the immigrant classes could be speedily and thoroughly Americanized.

"The alliance endeavors to give the immigrant what has been denied to him in his native land," he said. "It is progressive in spirit, yet conservative; conservative, yet progressive. It speaks to the older generation of immigrants to consider the future, and addresses itself to the rising generation to have regard for the past. It reconciles the heart of the parent to the heart of the child. It stands as a mediator between the different classes of people of the neighborhood, as well as the city at large. It brings about a better feeling between the different classes, and, above all, makes the foreigner understand American institutions—makes him realize that liberty and law go together, that the rights of citizenship imply also duties, and that Americans are a Nation governed by the people for the benefit of the people."

In 1900 Dr. Blaustein accompanied the then Commissioner of Immigration, Robert Wachorn, as a delegate of the United States Government to Roumania to study the Jewish question.

In 1907 he resigned his post at the Educational Alliance, in order to enter commercial life, and for a year thereafter he was manager of the Houston Street Branch of the Jefferson Bank. He left this to resume settlement work, going to Chicago and taking charge of the Educational Alliance there. He remained there for three years, until 1910, when he was appointed to a chair in the Faculty of the School of Philanthropy in this city, which he held to the time of his death.

Dr. Blaustein left a widow. Upon learning of his death yesterday, members of the Board of Directors of the Educational Alliance met and adopted resolutions expressing the high esteem and respect in which Dr. Blaustein was held by them and the community at large.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 27.—"We Jewish people of Chicago consider the death of Dr. Blaustein to be the greatest loss that our race has suffered in a number of years," A. M. Liebling, publisher of The Daily Jewish Press, said to-night. "He probably has done more for the advancement of the philanthropies among our people than has any other man. Chicago particularly feels his loss, for he was the moving spirit of our Hebrew Institute here."

Dr. Blaustein came to Chicago with the founding of the Hebrew Institute by Julius Rosenwald. During his stay here he established many Jewish philanthropies and was a worker in all that were organized.

EX-SENATOR WILCOX DIES.

Opponent of Hughes Who Shared Leadership with Raines.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Ex-State Senator Benjamin Martin Wilcox died today after being ill nearly a year with hardening arteries. His death removes the last but one of the Old Guard organization of which Sereno E. Payne alone survives. In the State Senate he shared leadership with the late John Raines and was one of the leading opponents to the reform policies of Gov. Hughes.

His vote on the Race Track bill, which was the decisive vote in the first trial, Mr. Wilcox being last on the roll call, aroused such antagonism that he failed in renomination after a deadlock that brought State Committeeman Woodruff up from New York.

Senator Wilcox was prominent in Albany as head of the Committee on Railroads.

ADELE BUCK, ACTRESS, DEAD.

Wellesley College Graduate Hid Her Identity Until Operated Upon.

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 27.—Miss Adele Buck, who hid her identity as a motion picture actress under an assumed name, died here to-day following an operation for appendicitis.

Just before the operation she told her true name, and left word that her father, a Boston author and her brother, a New York attorney, were to be notified if she died, but not otherwise.

Miss Buck was a graduate of Wellesley College, and told her friends that her family opposed her career.

Mrs. Florence Elizabeth Lockwood.

Mrs. Florence Elizabeth Lockwood, Vice President of the Contemporary Club of Brooklyn, which was founded by her mother, the late Mrs. Luella Bradford Clark, died on Sunday at her residence, 678 McDonough Street, Brooklyn. She was a well-known Shakespearean reader, and was under engagement to the Brooklyn Institute for the coming Winter. Mrs. Lockwood was born in Bangor, Me., thirty-eight years ago, a daughter of the late Judge Whiting H. Clark. Mrs. Lockwood was the wife of James Frederic Lockwood, the Manhattan manager of the Otis Elevator Company. She was a member of Plymouth Church. Besides her husband she is survived by four children, James Frederic Lockwood, Jr., and the Misses Florence, Alice, and Mary Lockwood.

DR. JAMES E. NEWCOMB DEAD.

Prominent New York Physician Dies in the Adirondacks.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 27.—Dr. James Edward Newcomb of 118 West Sixty-ninth Street, New York, died at his Summer home, Lake Kushaqua, in the Adirondacks, to-day. Dr. Newcomb was born in New London, Aug. 27, 1857. He was graduated from Yale College in 1880, and studied for three years at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City.

He was a member of the New York County Medical Society, the New York Academy of Medicine, the Hospital Graduates' Club, the West End Medical Society, the American Academy of Medicine, and the Physicians' Mutual Aid Association. He contributed a number of articles on his special line of diseases to medical journals.

Dr. Newcomb was also connected with Columbia College as lecturer for several years. He was a Trustee of Calvary Baptist Church, Fifty-seventh Street, New York, for many years, also holding the office of Treasurer. He married in 1887 Miss Elizabeth Wilmot of New York, who survives him. Mrs. Newcomb has been largely identified with anti-tuberculosis work, especially for working girls, in New York State. This has led to her building up of Stonywold Sanitarium at Lake Kushaqua, N. Y., of which she has been President since its organization in 1901.

CHARLES W. COLE DEAD.

Ex-State Superintendent of Schools Succumbs at Raquette Lake.

Charles Wadsworth Cole of Albany, for many years Superintendent of Schools of New York State and formerly President of the Council of School Superintendents of this State, died yesterday at Racquette Lake. He was born in Albany March 9, 1840, received his education in the public schools there, and in 1861 was graduated from Hamilton College, where the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy were later conferred on him. He was married to Joan McKown in Albany in 1864, and they had three children.

From 1883 to 1865 Mr. Cole was chief clerk to the Provost Marshal of the United States at Albany and Poughkeepsie. From 1868 to 1878 he was a Professor in the Albany High School. Since 1884 he had been a Chairman of the Committee on Legislation of the Council of School Superintendents of New York State, and in 1896 he was Vice President of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association. Mr. Cole was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and the Aurania Club.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Close at Their Best Price for the Day—Big Gains by Specialties.

There was a better tone to yesterday's stock market, and at the close of the session there were surface indications that the improvement would be continued today. The opening was firm and the activity of the first few minutes gave promise of a considerably larger total than has been recorded in any day recently. Before noon, interest had waned perceptibly and the trading seemed to be dropping back to the level of Monday. Prices rallied quickly in the final hour and the market appeared to have been moved from the dead centre on which it has been resting for several days. There was a disposition on the part of the floor traders to look for a continuation of the upward movement, but with a three-day holiday approaching it is not likely that business will continue to grow in volume during the three Stock Exchange days remaining before the holiday.

The more Wall Street thought over James J. Hill's prosaic utterance on the situation in the Northwest the better it liked it. Mr. Hill enunciated no new epigrams, but his conservative views on the crop situation were appraised at full weight by those who remembered his success in summarizing previous crop situations. Great Northern was not actively dealt in, but it closed 1¼ points higher than on Monday and there was a renewal of the talk of ultimate benefits to be derived by the stockholders from the substantial surplus which the company is piling up. Canadian Pacific was another transcontinental to recover favor. It had a swing of 4¼ points, from 272½ to 276¾, where it closed with a gain of 5⅜ points for the day. All of the railroads were helped to some extent by the Government's weekly weather report. While the report showed a general deficiency in rainfall throughout the entire country, this made little difference to the growing crops in view of the heavy rains of the previous week, and with continued warmth over the great agricultural districts to the eastward of the Rocky Mountains grain was brought nearer maturity at a rapid rate. The weather in the corn-growing and cotton States was particularly favorable.

The features of yesterday's stock market were the rapid advances made by some of the specialties. Mexican Petroleum, which has been moving up steadily on reports of increased dividends, closed at 78¾, a gain of another full point, and with Liggett & Myers and American Snuff made a new high record for the year. The first sale of Colorado Fuel and Iron preferred since the resumption of the dividend was made at an advance of 22½ points, while Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, another inactive issue, advanced 13 points on a sale of 100 shares. New York Air Brake declined 3½ points on its only sale, but most of the issues, both railroad and industrial, ended the day with gains.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2¾@3 per cent., with the last loan at 2¾ per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 2¾ per cent.

Time money rates, 3⅜@4 per cent. for sixty days, 4@4¼ per cent. for ninety days, 4¼@4½ per cent. for four months, 4½@4¾ per cent. for five and six months. Commercial paper was quoted at 5@5½ per cent. for prime names.

New York Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $269,892,354; balances, $15,987,816. Sub-Treasury debit balance, $537,989.

The local banks have lost $4,298,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations since Friday.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 3 1-16@3¼ per cent. for short bills and 3 5-16@3⅜ per cent. for three months' bills; Paris, 2¾ per cent. and Berlin, 4 per cent. The money rates were 1¼@1½ per cent. in London and 3 per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25 francs 27½ centimes, and the Berlin check rate on London, 20 marks 46 pfennigs.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows at the close of business yesterday:

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable, $4.8770; demand, $4.8730.
Paris—Cable, 5.18⅛ less 1-64; check, 5.18⅛ plus 1-64.
Berlin—Cable, 95 5-16; check, 95⅛ less 1-64.
Switzerland—Cable, 5.18⅝ plus 1-32; check, 5.18⅝ less 3-64.
Holland—Cable, 40⅝; check, 40¾.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers', 60 days, $4.8415; 90 days, $4.8260.
London—Commercial, 60 days, $4.83⅝; 90 days, $4.82⅝.
Paris—Bankers', 60 days, 5.21¼ less 1-32; 90 days, 5.22½ plus 1-32.
Paris—Commercial, 60 days, 5.21¼ less 1-32; 90 days, 5.22¼ less 1-32.
Berlin—Bankers', 60 days, 94¼ less 1-16; 90 days, 94½ plus 1-16.
Berlin—Commercial, 60 days, 94 7-16; 90 days, 94¼.

DOMESTIC EXCHANGE RATES.

Boston, par; Chicago, 5c discount; St. Louis, 15c discount; St. Paul, 10c premium; San Francisco, 25c premium; Montreal, 31¼c discount.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was quoted 3-16d lower in London, at 28⅝d, and ⅝c lower in New York, at 61⅝c per ounce.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Three-Day Holiday on 'Change.

The financial district will be practically deserted from Friday night until Tuesday morning, for the Stock Exchange, the Consolidated Stock Exchange, the Cotton and Coffee Exchanges, and the Curb market will be closed on Saturday, preceding Labor Day, and, of course, on the holiday itself. A number of business establishments also have announced the extra holiday on Saturday.

Market Holidays.

The decision of the Board of Governors of the Stock Exchange to close from Friday night until Tuesday was not unexpected, for the reason that there had been no opposition to the petition circulated on the floor. Had business in the past few weeks justified the expectation of those who predicted a great bull market as soon as a good crop yield became a certainty, the sentiment of the members would probably have been in favor of remaining open for the usual short session on Saturday. But business has not been good, and the loss from commissions through the extra day's closing will not be considerable. It has been nearly two months since the Exchange members have had a holiday, but from now on until the end of the year they will come more often. Columbus Day, Oct. 12, falls on a Saturday this year and will supply the next opportunity for the brokers to get in week-end trips.

Bank Exhibit for State Fair.

It is a far cry from the prize pumpkins and home-made quilts that originally made State fairs famous to exhibits such as George C. Van Tuyl, Jr., Superintendent of the State Banking Department, has prepared for the coming event at Syracuse. One of its purposes is to give country bankers an opportunity to examine devices the use of which at present is largely confined to the big cities, such as the telautograph and the coin wrapper. The exhibit will also include placards containing statistics showing the great growth of banking institutions under the supervision of the State Department, specimens of reports and transactions illustrating its daily work, and old State banknotes, with counterfeits of them. The State Banking Department dates from 1851, and Supt. Van Tuyl has under his supervision a great variety of financial institutions, including banks of deposit and discount, savings banks, trust companies, mortgage, loan and investment companies, savings and loan associations, safe deposit companies, personal loan associations, and branch banks, the aggregate resources of which are $4,248,886,448.

Affairs of the Pere Marquette.

The appointment of Samuel M. Felton to succeed Newman Erb as one of the receivers of the Père Marquette Railroad yesterday was commended by Mr. Erb as likely to result in conditions more satisfactory to the security holders and the people of Michigan than the administration of President Cotter. It is apparent from the recent report of H. I. Miller, attributing the road's difficulties largely to a lack of co-operation in the management, that Mr. Erb, as Chairman of the board, and Mr. Cotter have been at loggerheads. As the road is controlled by J. P. Morgan & Co., whose confidence Mr. Erb has, the situation is not thought to augur well for Mr. Cotter's continuance, and reports are persistent that changes are about to take place among other officials of the company.

Copper Prices Stiffer.

There were reports of sales of copper at 17⅞ cents per pound yesterday, and the largest agency was credited with having sold metal at a shade higher than the 17⅝ cent rate which has been practically a standard price now for several months. The metal has been sold in fair quantity as far ahead as December, but there has been no such volume of business as characterized the movement up toward the present level last Spring. Producers say that such large sales would be impossible because of the paucity of surplus metal, and they point to heavy specifications against existing contracts as a demonstration of the strength of the market.

Stilwell Road in Mexico.

American railroads which have crossed into Mexico have paid dearly for the business they have obtained there. Following the statement from the Harriman offices last week, which told of the destruction of several hundred thousand dollars' worth of bridges and other property of the Southern Pacific, comes a dispatch from Kansas City telling of the troubles of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient line. The new line is operating its 350 miles in Mexico at a heavy loss as the result of the activities of the rebels. The revenues south of the Rio Grande have been reduced to almost nothing and the operation of trains suspended for as much as a week at a time. The National Railways of Mexico lost heavily during the last revolution, but eventually succeeded in collecting actual damages for the property destroyed. It is supposed that the American roads will be repaid for their bridges and right of way torn up by the combatants, but the greater loss from business suspended can only be made up by heavy tonnage through a long period of peaceful operation.

Routine Steel Meeting.

Although from Oyster Bay had come an explicit denial from George W. Perkins that he had any intention of resigning from either the United States Steel Corporation or the International Harvester Company, there was a large attendance of Wall Street reporters at yesterday's meeting of the Steel Directors, expecting developments. Mr. Perkins did not appear at the meeting. The session was as brief as the mid-Summer meetings usually are, and after it was over the announcement was made that only routine business had been transacted.

Mexican Petroleum's Rise.

At yesterday's high price of 79¼ Mexican Petroleum showed a gain of 10 points from last Friday's low price. American Snuff is the only other issue to show such an advance. Some of the advance was accounted for in market gossip as a squeeze of shorts, but a significant factor is the English and Continental speculation. There has never been anything here to compare with the European craze for oil stocks except, perhaps, the boom in Standard Oil shares during the last ten months.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The Treasury statement issued to-day gives receipts and expenditures for yesterday and for the elapsed periods of the month and of the fiscal year as follows:

	Aug. 26.	Month.	Fiscal Year.
Internal rev.	346,303	20,178,696	44,906,269
Corporat'n tax.	1,086	255,293	1,600,289
Miscellaneous	38,807	2,432,656	7,745,059
Tot. receipts	$1,002,348	$46,822,354	$106,358,827
Expenditures	1,167,629	48,312,940	108,582,458
Deficit	165,281	1,490,585	2,223,770

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

At the beginning of business to-day the condition of the United States Treasury was:

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Trading in Moderate Volume, with Price Movements Irregular on the Curb.

Trading was in moderate volume on the Curb yesterday and price movements were irregular, with gains predominating. Sharp upturns were made in a number of the unlisted Standard Oil issues. Atlantic Refining, on which the over-the-counter bid price was 765 at the close of the day, an advance of 45 points from Monday's price was reported sold at 780 in the open market. Standard Oil of Ohio, which has also been strong in the past few days, reported sales unofficially at 340, which was the bid price over-the-counter at the close. Standard Oil of New Jersey on the regular list sold 850 shares from 410, down and closed at 409. Standard Oil of New York sold 50 shares from 590 to 595. There were a number of fractional gains among the mining issues, and in the industrial list there was an advance of one point, from 77 to 78, in B. F. Goodrich, which was admitted yesterday to listing on the Stock Exchange.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN.

Mining Shares Strong at Boston—Cambria Steel Moves Up.

Most stocks on the Exchanges at other cities scored gains yesterday, as shown in special reports to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

United Railways issues, especially the shares and notes, were active and strong at Baltimore. Maryland & Pennsylvania income bonds advanced another point.

On the Boston Exchange Old Dominion was active, and went up to 61, the highest point it has touched in a long time. Calumet and Arizona, North Butte, Granby, and Mayflower also were strong and active. Mayflower was up 1, at 183; Granby, 1¾, at 57, and Copper Range, 1, at 60¾, while Butte and Superior reached 44⅞. Old Colony 9½, Superior 48, and American Zinc 31¼. North Butte reached 34⅞. It was a good market, and prices held all through the usual afternoon period of quiet. United Shoe Machinery fell back 1, to 53¾.

The Chicago Stock Exchange failed to reflect strength in sympathy with the Eastern market. Sears-Roebuck common was the feature, advancing nearly a point, while Studebaker common was also higher. Quaker Oats common sold off some 2 points, while Booth Fisheries was a point lower. There were freer offerings of Chicago Pneumatic Tool shares, which forced the prices fractionally lower. American Shipbuilding shares continue to find ready absorption whenever offered.

Throughout the greater part of the session on the Philadelphia Exchange attention was concentrated on Cambria Steel, which advanced from 45 to 46½ before midday. This is another new top for the year, and within about 7 points of the highest at which the stock ever sold. In 1910 it touched 53½, when the rate of dividend was raised from 3 to 5 per cent. The Street is convinced that another increase is foreshadowed by the present swing, and that the outstanding notes will be retired through the issue of $5,000,000 of treasury stock at par. It was also suggested that the Pennsylvania Railroad might seize such an opportunity to dispose of its holdings of Cambria to a syndicate which is said to be ready to purchase them. Activity developed in Rapid Transit, although there was not much change in the quotation of the stock. Lehigh Valley Transit preferred moved up half a point in the afternoon. American Railways created a new top for the year at 45.

50 WORDS ABOUT ODD LOTS

No. 12.

THERE are scores of small towns in Canada served by banks each with resources of around $50,000,000.

We have no such branch banking system in the United States as Canada has. But wherever you live, you may invest your money in sound securities—the great "savings bank" of the thrifty.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

BIG SALES OF DRESS GOODS.

Popularity of Light Hosiery Lessens Demand for Fall Weight.

Trading broadened visibly in the New York dry goods market yesterday, under the stimulus afforded by the arrival of a large number of out-of-town buyers in the last day or two, and from all accounts the jobbing end of the trade experienced one of the best days of the present season. Prominent city buyers were in the market looking around, and while their purchases yesterday contributed only a small part of the aggregate business, the next week or two is expected to see this trade buying earnestly.

There was no particular feature to the day's activities in jobbing circles, except, perhaps, the volume of merchandise disposed of by a prominent dress goods factor. Business in this quarter was reported to have been the best of the season so far. Wash goods, silks, ribbons, laces, and embroideries moved in a generally active way, as did household linens, prints, percales, ginghams, and flannels. Floor coverings and domestics were not so active, from all accounts.

Fall weight hosiery and underwear showed some improvement, but the movement of this merchandise in certain quarters of the market was not sufficient to cause elation on the part of sellers. The growing custom of wearing light-weight hosiery all the year around is retarding the buying of Fall lines to some extent, as is the tendency on the part of the smaller and medium-sized retailer to turn over the buying of hosiery and underwear to some capable assistant who does not come into this market. Because of this, according to a statement made recently by a well-known wholesaler of these lines, road sales are constantly increasing at the expense of house business.

PREPARED HARD COAL SCARCE

Company Stocking Yards Bare—Conditions Favor Bituminous Trade.

In its weekly review of coal conditions in this market the current issue of The Coal Trade Journal will say to-day:

Pressure on the anthracite producers, both company and individual, increased week by week with the approach of Fall and the growing volume of orders from domestic buyers, which in turn is reflected in the wholesale offices. The retail trade is making little headway in accumulating stocks, and it is now too late to do more than a trifle during before the early Fall demand assumes its full proportions and makes inroads on the meagre reserves in dealers' yards. The situation is made all the more serious by the fact that the company stocking plants are virtually bare of prepared coal of any size or description, whereas normally at the close of the Summer season they contain 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 tons, exclusive of the steam sizes.

Current developments favor the bituminous trade, but the change for the better is being brought about so gradually that no decided improvement during the past week can be reported. Consumption is heavy for practically all lines of manufacture are on at least a normally active basis. Contract buyers are ordering tonnage forward freely, and those without contracts are appearing in the open market in increasing numbers. The buying movement has not yet reached a point, however, where it is having a pronounced effect on the price situation.

RUBBER BUYERS ACTIVE.

Consumers, Realizing the Market's Strength, Cover Their Near-by Wants.

According to cable advices received late yesterday afternoon in the New York crude rubber market, 850 tons of plantation and Ceylon grades were offered at auction in London, 306 tons of which were reported sold. Opening prices for first latex crepe and smoked sheets were 4s. 9¾d. and 4s. 10¾d. respectively, and some sales were made at those figures. Closing prices were slightly easier, a decline of ¼d having been shown in both instances. Buyers were reported active at the sale, and the general London market reflected this activity to some extent.

A rather gratifying business for manufacturing account was reported in this market by a prominent trader, with prices having shown no recessions from figures that prevailed at the opening of the week. Consumers apparently appreciate the present strength of the market, and are covering their near-by wants at least. Consequently, good business is looked for during the remainder of the week. Upriver fine was quoted here yesterday at $1.22@$1.26, according to position.

Estimates of Russian Crops.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—A cablegram, dated Aug. 24, from the International Institute of Agriculture, Rome, Italy, has been received by the United States Department of Agriculture, giving the following information: In Russia, estimates of production in 73 Governments are as follows, expressed in bushels: Wheat, 749,947,000; rye, 984,728,000; barley, 458,183,000; oats, 1,032,605,000; corn, 61,908,000.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Boston shoe jobbers are reported to be very enthusiastic over the outlook for the new season. There have been evidences of late of a demand for a lower heel in women's shoes. Patent leathers for men are not shown to any great extent.

Gold and silver bands of domestic production, conspicuous for merit and originality, are incorporated in the new season's lines of a prominent New York trimmings house.

Long velvet mantles, some with deep collars of fur and fur trimmings, are prominent among the offerings for Fall and Winter of one of the leading Parisian style creators.

The worsted yarn market has apparently recovered its strength since the Wool bill was laid away by the Senate. According to a recognized trade authority, prices have in several instances been advanced five cents a pound.

BIG MARKET IN BRAZIL

But We Neglect Its Opportunities, Says Coffee Man Just Back.

With the return of J. J. Schotten of St. Louis, President of the National Coffee Roasters' Traffic and Pure Food Association, who is expected to arrive in New York shortly, the visit to Brazil of a committee representing the association at the invitation of the Brazilian Government will come to an end. The committee left this country on May 20 on the Lamport & Holt steamer Vasari and spent several weeks studying Brazilian coffee conditions at close range.

According to Charles Lewis, head of the James Heekin Company, Cincinnati, a member of the committee, who returned Saturday by way of Europe on the Auguste Victoria, the trip was most enjoyable, both from an instructive and social point of view.

"Pending the return of Mr. Schotten, I must ask to be excused from discussing the trip so far as the association is concerned," said Mr. Lewis yesterday, "but personally I can say that it was a wonderful experience.

"The thing that impressed me most strongly in my observations of the country was the small amount of business done there by American interests in comparison with the big trade that is done with the United States by Brazilians. This country is the largest customer Brazil has, and yet the business we do there is exceeded by every country of importance in Europe. Flour is about the only commodity in which Americans share Brazilian trade to any extent. I am very much interested in the future development of American business there, as it is a tremendous market, and is now being touched only lightly by our interests or entirely neglected. The future holds wonderful things for Brazil, and I firmly believe that the business development of that country in the next twenty years will amaze the world."

The committee that made the trip comprised J. J. Schotten, Carl Stoffregen, and Felix Coste of St. Louis; W. H. Harrison and Charles Lewis of Cincinnati, E. W. Hiscox of New York, A. J. Casper of Chicago, W. T. Jones of New Orleans, and W. P. Witherspoon of Fort Smith, Ark.

EXPORTS ADVANCE RAPIDLY.

For Last Week $6,000,000 Over the One Previous.

Figures issued yesterday by the New York Custom House show the value of exports, exclusive of specie, forwarded from this port in the week ended Aug. 24 to have been $15,768,950, against $9,731,567 in the preceding week, and $14,359,044 in the corresponding week last year. Exports to the British possessions valued at $2,788,398, headed the week's list, with shipments to England valued at $2,741,237 second.

Exports of beef for the week aggregated 519 barrels and 371 tierces, while shipments of wheat amounted to 469,490 bushels. Exports of other important commodities follow:

Corn, 24,655 bushels; oats, 31,755 bushels; barley, 16,912 bushels; peas, 3,378 bushels; beans, 4,274 bushels; flour, 15,957 barrels, 92,427 sacks; corn meal, 7,125 barrels; feed, 118,200 pounds; bran, 69,500 pounds; hay, 1,429 bales; hops, 326 bales; alcohol, 327,350 gallons; whisky, 7,090 gallons; oil meal, 106,250 pounds; oil cake, 9,859,500 pounds; pork, 2,561 barrels; bacon, 3,399,920 pounds; hams, 118,800 pounds; stearine, 126,800 pounds; tallow, 505,600 pounds; grease, 1,530,490 pounds; butter, 31,600 pounds; cheese, 53,940 pounds; lard oil, 2,000 gallons; cottonseed oil, 2,483,706 pounds; lubricating oils, 3,120,990 gallons; turpentine, 37,790 gallons; resin, 6,058 barrels; refined petroleum, 13,997,166 gallons; naphtha, 1,318,807 gallons; benzine, 401,752 gallons; gasoline, 89,100 gallons, and residuum, 1,119,573 gallons.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

This year's crop of English walnuts in France is estimated at only 20,000 bales of 100 kilos (220.46 pounds) each. In 1911 and 1910 the crop amounted to 30,000 bales, and in 1909 to 40,000 bales.

The text of a contract for a $4,000,000 loan between the Government of Uruguay and Emilio Ettlinger & Co. and the Anglo-South American Bank, Ltd., for the issue of this amount of Treasury bills for purchasing the shares of the Banco Hipotecario of Uruguay has just been made public. A translated copy of the contract will be loaned by the Bureau of Manufactures to those interested.

Sir Henry McCallum, Governor of Ceylon, has appointed F. C. Roles, editor of The Times of Ceylon, as Commissioner for Ceylon at the International Rubber and Allied Trades Exhibition to be held in New York during September and October.

BUSINESS NOTES.

There is a strong probability of the annual convention of the National Coffee Roasters' Traffic and Pure Food Association being held in this city this year. While no definite date has yet been decided on, it was said yesterday that the first two weeks in October were favorably considered.

The movement now on foot in the New York dry goods market to close all day this Saturday is being favorably received from all accounts. A number of prominent commission houses are reported to have decided to close, but the jobbing houses will be open till the usual hour. Most of them will be open a half day on Monday.

NEW INCORPORATIONS.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

9,429. BINDING CLOTH.—Tenders are invited by the Egyptian Ministry of Finance for the supply of about 115,000 feet of black binding cloth for the printing department during 1913. The proposals will be received by the Director, Printing Department, Cairo, up to Sept. 12, 1912, from whom copies of the conditions with form of tender may be obtained.

9,430. CAMP OUTFIT.—A large importer in South Africa requested an American Consular officer to place him in touch with manufacturers of camp outfitting supplies in the United States. Duplicate sets of catalogues and price lists are requested for the inquirer and a set for the files of the commercial information bureau attached to the Consulate General.

9,431. RESERVOIR CONSTRUCTION.—The American Consulate at Bombay, India, advises the Bureau of Manufactures that the date of submitting tenders for the construction of the Maramsill Reservoir (Trade Opportunity 9,181, July 5) has been extended to Nov. 15, and that no tenders would be considered unless the site had been inspected by the person making the tender or his agent.

9,432. CENTRAL CLOCK SYSTEM.—The Consulate General at Vienna, Austria, reports that bids will be received up to Nov. 30, 1912, for a central electric clock system to be installed in that city. A copy of the specifications, in German, is on file in the Bureau of Manufactures and may be loaned to interested parties.

9,433. PIPE-BENDING MACHINES.—An American Consular officer in South Africa reports that a machinist in his district desires catalogues and price lists from American manufacturers of machines, both hand and power, for bending pipes up to 2½ inches.

9,434. REPRESENTATION IN SOUTH AMERICA.—A communication from a New York firm to the Bureau of Manufactures states that one of its members recently left for Panama and will visit Colombia and Venezuela. He will represent the firm in the wholesale grocery trade, but is also prepared to represent American firms in other lines who desire his service.

9,435. SAWMILL MACHINERY.—An American Consul in Mexico transmits the name of a person in his district who is in the market for a sawmill plant. Correspondence in English.

9,436. WIRE-WEAVING MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consular officer in South Africa states that a business man desires catalogues, with both prices, of machines for weaving wire into fencing as well as into mattresses. He also desires information as to horse power required for operating such machines, the gauge of wire to be employed, and the quantity of wire necessary to make a given number of feet of fence and mattresses.

9,437. SAWMILL AND OTHER MACHINERY.—A business man in Mexico informs an American Consul that he wishes to purchase a sawmill outfit, a fiber machine, a corn sheller, (power,) and a grinder and chopper. Correspondence in English.

9,438. CEMENT.—A prominent builder and manufacturer of cement work and building blocks and designs in Canada informs an American Consul that he desires quotations, free on board, in carload lots, both in bags and barrels, from manufacturers of Portland cement, preferably in the New England States.

9,439. HOTEL FIXTURES.—An American Consul in Mexico transmits the name of the owner of a hotel which is being remodeled, and suggests that manufacturers of office, buffet, and dining room fixtures communicate with the owner. Correspondence in English.

9,440. NETS, CORDS, &c.—An American Consul in Canada reports that there is a demand for seines, nets, maitre cord, and linen cord for repairing nets, &c., in his district, and suggests that American manufacturers in these lines send catalogues and price lists to the Consulate.

9,441. ASPHALT.—A report from an American Consul in Germany states that a firm in his district which has extensive connections is desirous of securing an agency for asphalt or other raw material which may be used in manufacture.

9,442. APPARATUS FOR FILLING HYPODERMIC AMPULES, &c.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from an American firm located in Mexico requesting the names and addresses of American firms making apparatus for filling hypodermic ampules, also the filtration and sterilization of solutions for same.

9,443. AUTOMATIC SORTING AND TABULATING MACHINE.—A report from an American Consulate General in a European country states that the Government's statistical service wishes the name of the manufacturer of a machine for automatically sorting cards and tabulating the results. The communication stated that whatever make of machine adopted will be continued in use by that Government.

9,444. CHEMICALS AND RAW MATERIALS.—An American Consular officer in Germany transmits the address of a firm of high standing in his district which desires to be placed in communication with American firms wishing to establish agencies for chemicals and raw materials.

9,445. IRON ORE.—A business man in Portugal requested an American Consular officer to place him in communication with American firms, particularly in New York, which are in a position to export iron ore. Correspondence preferred in French, but English will be acceptable.

9,446. MULES.—An American Consular officer in a European country reports that the representative of a firm in South Africa visited some countries in Europe for the purpose of buying mules, but not having found suitable animals in sufficient numbers he was advised by the Consular officer to come to the United States, and has expressed his intention of visiting this country in a few weeks. The firm intends importing large numbers of mules yearly into South Africa, and therefore every effort should be made to secure the trade.

9,447. AMERICAN GOODS FOR SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.—An American Consular officer has transmitted the name of a merchant in Southwest Africa who desires catalogues and price lists for the following articles: Wind motors, gas motors, small steam engines, agricultural implements, incubators, pumps, circular saws, sand grinders and milling machines. Weights and measures should be in kilos and meters.

9,448. CANNED PINEAPPLES.—A firm in Germany informs an American Consular officer that it is in the market for Hawaiian pineapples or possibly the Porto Rican product in the event that Porto Rican planters are in a position to push their fruit for the trade. The fruit comes packed in cases of 24 and 48 cans, each can containing one whole pineapple and of a gross weight of 2½ or 3 pounds. The contents should be preserved in their own juice—that is, cooked without sugar—in order to enter at 4 marks per 100 kilos (95 cents per 220 pounds.) At present pineapples packed as above are received in the Hamburg free port, where the contents of the cans are emptied into barrels and the full barrels are thereupon passed through customs. Under these circumstances it is not necessary to put fancy labels on the cans. The firm proposes to establish a bank credit at the place of shipment against which shippers can draw on the deposit of shipping documents.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

STADLER & REISLER.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday against Philip Stadler and Morris Reisler, who compose the firm of Stadler & Reisler, shoe dealers, 43 and 45 Staton Street, by Lesser Brothers, attorneys for these creditors: Merritt, Elliott & Co., $306; W. L. Douglas Shoe Company, $169, and Rice-Hutchins New York Company, $641. The liabilities are said to be about $8,500 and assets about $5,000.

FECHHEIMER-FISHEL CO.—A meeting of creditors of the Fechheimer-Fishel Company, manufacturers of clothing, 750 Broadway, was held yesterday at the Astor House to discuss the affairs of the company, which was put into bankruptcy on Aug. 22. Abram I. Elkus, one of the receivers, was elected Chairman and Samuel J. Goldsmith of Myers & Goldsmith Secretary. Perley, Morse & Co., accountants, made a report on the condition of the company, which showed total liabilities $788,881, including deferred liabilities on bonds. The net liabilities, which must be paid first, are $534,589, against which there are good assets of $581,885. Among the assets are inventory, $248,872; accounts receivable, $211,668, and interest in other concerns, $70,216. There are also bad or doubtful assets, $71,649. It was asserted that there were sufficient assets if they could be collected to pay creditors in full. President Golland was asked if he had any offer of settlement to submit to the meeting. He said that he was not ready to make any offer now, but that he would devote his whole energy to conserve the assets, and later on he would see what could be done. A resolution offered by James N. Rosenberg was adopted that a committee of three creditors, representing the banks and merchants, be appointed to advise with the receivers as to the continuance of the business and the administration of the estate in general. Mr. Elkus said that he would announce the names of the committee to-day.

B. & H. COHEN.—Judge Hough has granted a discharge to Barney and Henry Cohen, who composed the firm of B. & H. Cohen, clothing manufacturers, formerly at 28 West Fourth Street, whose liabilities were $15,947.

ABRAHAM ROSENSTOCK.—Judge Hough has appointed Hirsch Hommel receiver for Abraham Rosenstock, dealer in dry goods and women's apparel at Mount Vernon, at the request of creditors; bond, $500. The stock on hand is estimated at $1,000.

HENRY MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Schedules of the Henry Manufacturing Company, automobile starters, 141 West Fifty-fifth Street, show liabilities $5,936 and assets $1,465. Among the creditors are Edward Schroeder Lamp Works, Jersey City, $1,003; Barney Estate Company, $416; F. L. Hutton, $750; Sterling Postley, $750, and Edward E. B. Adams, $450.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Horses Imported Into Alaska Temporarily Must Pay Full Duty.

As the Board of United States General Appraisers is without equity jurisdiction, it was unable to grant relief in the case of the protest of James Greenfield of Juneau, Alaska, that no duty should have been assessed on nine horses taken into Alaska from Canada for fifty days' work in moving a dredge thirty miles. The board had before it only the official record of the Collector and the protestant relied entirely on the "equity and justice," declaring that the scarcity of horses in Alaska made it necessary to import them temporarily.

Cylinders of blown glass with a shoulder and neck resembling a bottle, and used as the inner shell of thermos bottles, had been assessed at 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 98, and the American Thermos Bottle Company asked that they be taxed at 45 per cent. under Paragraph 100 or 199. The Collector's decision was affirmed.

Saks & Co. succeeded in establishing that pocket cigar cases should pay 60 per cent. as "smokers' articles," and coin purses, 45 per cent, as "articles of utility." An order of reversal had been consented to by the Collector, who had assessed both articles at 85 per cent. under Paragraph 448.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Grains Go Higher; Cotton Sinks Still Lower; Coffee Strong.

Wheat advanced on large export business and firm cash markets. Corn advanced with higher interior cash markets and disappointing movement. Oats were active and higher on continued large domestic and foreign demand. Provisions were dull and slightly easier. Cottonseed oil weakened under liquidations, with lower cotton and lard values having effect. Cotton scored further declines to new low records. The weather remains generally favorable. Spots were easier. Shorts covered late and Manchester reported greater activity. Coffee showed firmness on some unfavorable crop news with support from large interests.

WHEAT.

The wheat market developed decided strength and closed at the highest of the day at a net gain of about ⅞c on the active deliveries, due to the good export business in American wheats. The English cables were rather disappointing, but the Continental cables were very steady, and the bids were apparently on a good basis notwithstanding the high ocean freights, as sales of about 400,000 bushels, mainly of new hard Winter were reported. The sales included some new Spring, it is understood. While the English markets were influenced by somewhat better weather conditions, foreign reports as a whole are decidedly unfavorable as to weather. There have been several weeks of wet weather in England, France, and Germany, materially affecting the quality of the wheat and reducing the milling value. Considerable good dry wheat seems to be absolutely needed in all these countries, also Holland and Belgium as well. The quality of the American wheat, considering the fine harvest weather, makes it very desirable. Weather conditions were again favorable through the West and Northwest, although a storm centre was reported over the western part of the Canadian Provinces. Temperatures were low, but higher temperatures were expected. An estimate of the Canadian crop by a Western house made it practically the same as last year. The American Spring wheat crop was placed at 350,000,000 bushels, or 40,000,000 bushels more than the August Government figures. Western receipts were a little larger than last year, but in two days have decreased nearly 600,000 bushels from last week, while interior shipments increased 800,000 bushels. The visible supply of the Rocky Mountains increased 889,000 bushels, West increased 290,000 bushels, Canada decreased 958,000 bushels, European stocks increased 2,100,000 bushels, making a net gain in the world's visible of 2,321,000 bushels, against 2,200,000 bushels' gain last year. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.07, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.04¼; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.03½; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.05.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—The corn market was also firm and closed at ⅛c to 1⅛c advance. The September delivery was strong, with higher cash markets at the interior. Western receipts increased a little over last week, but are only about two-thirds of last year. The visible decreased 638,000 bushels, against an increase of 1,126,000 bushels last year. New crop deliveries were firm, although weather conditions were considered generally very favorable. Export corn, December to March loading, was quoted at 61c, free on board. Spot corn was quoted at 88c to 91c, cost, insurance, and freight, according to grade.

OATS.—Trading was fairly active and the market very firm. Good cash demand at the West was again reported, with export sales east and west of about 500,000 bushels. The visible supply showed an increase of 1,013,000 bushels, but the total is only 7,365,000 bushels, against 28,193,000 bushels last year. Interior receipts were large, amounting to 1,098,000 bushels, against 693,000 bushels last year. Cash oats were somewhat irregular locally, with standards and No. 3 whites, 39c; No. 2 Whites, 39½c; white clipped, 41c to 44c.

PROVISIONS.

Hog products opened steady, but met with very little support and closed at a small net decline for the day. Hog receipts were small, amounting to only 51,000 head.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The entire list was affected by the weakness of the near positions. Liquidation was obvious, with some selling for other accounts, but it was apparent that support was lacking. Some of the leading refining concerns, which were bullish a short time ago, have evidently reversed their position. Advices as to the crude situation are rather conflicting, and while the general disposition is to attribute only a minor part of the selling to hedging operations, an increase in the movement of crude is to be expected. The reactionary tendency of the lard market and a further lowering of cotton values, this latter partly reflecting absence of complaint as to the progress of the cotton plant, were factors militating against enthusiasm on the buying side. To-morrow is first notice day for deliveries on September contracts.

COTTON.

A moderate net decline occurred during yesterday's session, with no appreciable change in the bearish average of sentiment. Maximum losses of nearly ¼c per pound were registered early, but in the ensuing trading, under the influence of profit taking by recent sellers, some buying credited to trade accounts, and an increase in the demand from Southern speculative quarters, this latter dubiously said to be predicated on bullish crop news to be issued, a partial recovery was seen. The weakness during the morning was in further adjustment to the belief that the coming crop report will result in larger crop ideas. The correspondents of Weld & Co. made the condition of the plant 79, indicating a loss for the month of 2.7, and comparing with their report of 76.8 a year ago. It was added, however, that the figures foreshadowed a Government report of 73.5, which would compare with the Government estimate of 73.2 last year. Generally, a higher showing is anticipated.

A favorable weather map and disappointing Liverpool cables contributed to the accumulation of over-night selling orders and resulted in the declines at the outset of from 7 to 14 points. There were showers in many of the Eastern States and parts of the Central West, with later advices that parts of the Carolinas had been relieved from drought. It was also reported that Southeastern Texas had been benefited by rain, but the consensus of opinion was that in these droughty districts more precipitation is desired to check deterioration. The weekly weather report was quite bearish, but had been expected. Conditions over all parts of the belt were said to have been conducive to rapid crop advancement, although there were the dry conditions in parts of Texas and the Carolinas spoken of. The reports on the crops of Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi to The Journal of Commerce confirmed recent private dispatches of general improvement, but from Louisiana there is apprehension of serious insect damage. The season is from two to three weeks late in these States, so that the frost question was again mentioned as an important factor in the ultimate outturn.

Large spot interests sold freely during the morning, but later were among the principal buyers. Hedge selling from the South was in moderate volume, and there seemed to be an increase of bear pressure from some quarters, especially during the forenoon. Spots were offered more freely, and it still seems as though the pressure in the nature of hedges and other selling more than counterbalanced the trade buying and purchasing for other accounts. Despite the fact that the cables from Liverpool were below a parity, foreigners were buyers on this side, and while some of this demand represented the operations of straddlers, the late private cables indicating a larger Manchester business may have actuated part of the demand.

COFFEE.

Coffee was very active, with sales of 195,250 bags and prices firm, closing at best with a net gain of 10 to 15 points. Havre advanced ¾@1f, while Hamburg was 1⅛@¼ pfennig higher. Private cables were that the strength abroad was due to reports of drouth in Brazil having damaged the August flowering. There was active switching from September to the later months, and out of the total day's business, 65,500 bags were in the form of exchanges. Reports of temperatures as low as 37 degrees in Brazil caused further apprehension of frost, but the maximum temperatures were said to be still high and conditions were dry. Private cables from Brazil said that the growing crop is still an enigma depending upon rain. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were firm, but little business was reported.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Operators Buying Property Along Lines of New Transit Routes — Reported Deal on Lexington Avenue— Western Syndicate to Build Ten Big Apartment Houses at Steinway Tunnel Entrance.

The influence of proposed rapid transit improvements upon real estate was evident in two big deals, each involving about a half-million dollars, which were reported pending yesterday. One was the sale of a half block on Lexington Avenue in the 60s to a syndicate of builders, and the other a transaction involving the erection of ten big apartment houses in the Hunter's Point section of Long Island City.

Both of these sections have lain dormant for several years, and what few improvements were made were ordinary in character and had little or no effect from a development standpoint. Until very recently values showed no increase even in the assessment rolls.

This is especially true of Long Island City property, but with the opening of the Steinway tunnel a building boom is expected. A syndicate of Western capitalists proposes to take advantage of this boom, and will build for speculation ten modern flats on the property just to the east of the Long Island City exit of the Steinway tunnel.

This is the land which was developed several years ago by the Degnon Terminal and Realty Company.

The apartments will be for workingmen and will rent, it is understood, for from $16 to $20 a month. It is believed that all those who reside here will ultimately find employment in factories that will be located in this vicinity.

The construction work will be done by the Tubes Realty Company.

During the past couple of months there have been a number of investment deals along the line of the Lexington Avenue subway, and prices are on the increase.

Emily Court Apartments Sold.

The Emily Court Apartments, at 503 and 505 West 164th Street, on a plot 50 by 100, have been sold by Emily J. Rothwell to an investor. The buyer gave three dwellings in Yonkers in part payment.

$250,000 Midtown Lease.

A $250,000 lease in the heart of the midtown loft zone that calls for the demolition of three more fine old private dwellings was announced yesterday by S. E. Kelly & Co., who in conjunction with Emerson Latting leased for the Collingwood Realty Company the three houses at 52, 54, and 56 West Thirty-sixth Street.

The property was leased for a term of ten years, with the privilege of renewal of eleven years, at an aggregate rental of about $250,000. The premises will be immediately altered into stores and apartments.

Bronx Borough.

A builder has purchased from Steinman & Son, a plot of five lots on Webster Avenue, 120 feet south of 183d Street. The property will be improved with flats.

The same brokers have also sold to an investor, for Henry Schneider, 879 East 165th Street, a four-story tenement, on plot 25 by 113. This property has not changed hands in twenty-five years.

The Brady-Blackbourne Company has sold to M. Engel the five-story triple flat, on plot 28 by 100, at 295 East 157th Street. The property was held at $24,000. Jonas & Co. were the brokers.

Long Island.

Dr. Augustus M. Anderson has purchased from the Rickert-Finlay Realty Company a large plot on the southeast corner of Beverly Road and Netherwood Road, Kensington, Great Neck, on which the buyer will build a residence for his own occupancy. The land purchased is in the highest part of the woods section of Kensington, being 145 feet above Manhasset Bay.

The Thomas B. Jeffery Auto Company has bought a plot of ground at the corner of Jackson and Harold Avenues, Long Island City, and will commence biulding operations on a modern service station at once. It will be three stories high, of concrete and steel construction, and will afford 50,000 square feet of floor space.

Brooklyn.

The Meister & Bache Realty Company has sold 22 Seigel Street, a five-and-one-half-story double tenement, on plot 25 by 100. This property was owned by the company for the past decade.

$100,000 Apartment for Brooklyn.

A hundred-thousand-dollar apartment house is to be erected on the corner of Dean Street and Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, sold several months ago by Oscar Hammerstein to the Levy Brothers Realty Company.

The property, which is opposite the Union League Club, was secured several years ago, with several other parcels, by Mr. Hammerstein as a site for an opera house. It was never built upon, however. Plans for the new apartment house were filed yesterday, and call for a structure with a frontage of 88 feet on Bedford Avenue and a depth of 90 feet. Ground will be broken at once.

Bondholders May Get Money Back.

The bondholders of the New York Realty Company, which went into the hands of a receiver last March, will get back about one-third of their money, according to a statement given out by the Bondholders' Committee of the concern.

The return of the money will be through real estate, which was put in the hands of a trustee by William H. Cooper and other officials of the company before it failed.

Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased 18 West Fiftieth Street for Mrs. E. A. Morgan to Augustine J. Smith, for a long term of years.

Charles S. Kohler has leased for Laura A. Degenhardt the three-story brownstone dwelling 77 Manhattan Avenue, for a term of three years, to William Lieber.

The French Museum of Art has leased, through S. Osgood Pell & Co., a large suite of offices, as its present headquarters in this country, in the Carlton Chambers, which has just been completed at Madison Avenue and Forty-seventh Street. The Society is represented by McDougall Hawkes, formerly Dock Commissioner of the City of New York, its Vice President.

Real Estate Notes.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company has loaned to Jessie Farquharson and Margaret Wheelock $250,000 on first mortgage on the five-story and basement building at 724 Fifth Avenue, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Streets.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The disturbance that was over the great lakes Monday night passed rapidly eastward to the Canadian Maritime Provinces and has been followed by clearing and considerably cooler weather over the Middle Atlantic States and New England, the Ohio Valley, and the lake region.

Another disturbance covers the Rocky Mountain region and is causing showers in the Northwest and the South Rocky Mountains. There were scattering rains Monday night in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, and Tuesday along the South Atlantic and East Gulf Coasts.

Warm weather prevailed throughout the Gulf and South Atlantic States, and temperatures are unseasonably high throughout the Plains States. Lower temperatures prevail, however, in the Far Northwest.

Indications are that the western disturbance will move east along the northern border, attended by showers, and will probably reach Northern New England Thursday.

Showers are also probable in the Northwest States and over the Rocky Mountain region and along the South Atlantic and East Gulf Coasts.

Temperatures will rise Wednesday in the Ohio Valley and the lake region and Thursday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England. A change to considerably cooler weather will spread over the Northwest States Wednesday and the Middle Plains States, the Middle Rocky Mountain region, and the Upper Mississippi Valley Thursday.

Winds along the New England, Middle, and South Atlantic Coasts will be light to moderate variable.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have moderate variable winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Wednesday, Thursday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably showers north portion; moderate variable winds.

Southern New England—Fair Wednesday; Thursday increasing cloudiness and warmer; light to moderate variable winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday and probably Thursday; warmer Thursday; light variable winds.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday; Thursday unsettled and warmer, probably showers and variable winds.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday; Thursday unsettled and warmer, probably showers, moderate west winds becoming variable.

1911.	1912.		1911.	1912.
3 A. M.	73	73	4 P. M.	69	75
6 A. M.	70	69	6 P. M.	68	70
9 A. M.	71	75	9 P. M.	68	68
12 M.	70	76	12 M.	69

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 70; for the corresponding date last year it was 70; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 71.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 74; at 8 P. M. it was 65. Maximum temperature, 76 degrees at 12:30 P. M.; minimum, 65 degrees at 8 P. M. Humidity, 61 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 53 per cent. at 8 P. M.

EDUCATION NOTES.

In the opinion of Dr. Edward W. Stitt, Superintendent of Summer Schools and Playgrounds, one of the unique features of Saturday's parade in honor of the Olympic team was the reception given to the athletes by the children from the various playgrounds. The girls were clad in white and the boys wore red, white, and blue caps, while the playground colors added greatly to the vividness of the picture. Gen. Wingate, Dr. Haupt, and Dr. Stitt motored along Fifth Avenue to determine which playground had made the best showing. The general display was so beautiful that the judges found it difficult to decide the winners. The first prize for the best girls' playground was awarded to No. 190, Manhattan, of which Miss Margaret McKee is the Principal. Honorable mention was given to Miss Helen Althof, Principal of No. 141, Brooklyn. The banner for the best boys' playground has not been awarded for the reason that the judges have been unable to decide between No. 20 and No. 100, both of Manhattan. In all probability a banner will be awarded to each playground. Honorable mention was given to No. 124, Brooklyn, in charge of Wesley Cox.

In a recent bulletin issued by the United States Bureau of Education, Henry S. Curtis shows how the attitude of the public has changed in the last ten years since the great playground movement manifested itself. The typical school playground used to be bare and forbidding, whereas the modern spirit requires that it shall be roomy, inviting, well cared for, open at all times to the children, and equipped with every safe means for enjoyable, profitable play.

Two Years of Results

After advertising almost continuously for two years in The New York Times, A. A. Hofmayer, 320 Fifth Avenue, has written The Times as follows:

The New York Times:

About two years ago I commenced advertising in the Employment Bureau column on the Want Page of The New York Times. The results have been very gratifying. The amount of business, the class of patrons secured through your medium, and the courtesy of your representatives make me feel pleased to write this letter of appreciation.

83 GOLFERS ENTER AMATEUR TOURNEY

Champion Hilton of England Is Here to Defend National Title at Wheaton Next Week.

CRACKS OF EAST TO PLAY

Travis, Travers, Herreshoff, Kirkby, and Sherman Among New York and New Jersey Entrants.

Robert C. Watson, Secretary of the United States Golf Association, announced yesterday the pairings for the National amateur championship, which will begin next Monday over the links of the Chicago Golf Club at Wheaton, Ill. There are eighty-three entries, more than a hundred less than last year, brought about by the fact that only those players on the National handicap list are eligible to compete. This means that the entry list comprises practically the cream of the amateur golfing talent of the United States.

There are two entries from Great Britain this year, Harold H. Hilton of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club and Norman F. Hunter of Edinburgh. Hilton will attempt to repeat his achievement of last year, when he carried the American title back to England with him. Hilton and Hunter are now in Chicago and may be seen in one or two competitions this week prior to the start of the championship on Monday. Hilton will have as his partner in the first round Warren K. Wood, the Homewood champion and one of the strongest of the Western players, while Hunter will play with Harold Weber of Inverness.

The metropolitan representation, while not large, is none the less strong, for Oswald Kirkby, the New Jersey champion; Jerome D. Travers, the metropolitan title holder and former National champion, and Fred Herreshoff, runner-up to Hilton last year, left yesterday afternoon for Chicago, there to be joined later by Walter J. Travis for the Olympic team competition on Saturday. Besides the foregoing, the following prominent players are entered: W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, and Eben M. Byers, Allegheny, both former title holders; Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater; Albert Seckel, Riverside; Howard W. Perrin, Merion; T. M. Sherman, Jr., Yahnundasis; Heinrich Schmidt, Worcester, and Mason Phelps, Midlothian. The pairings follow:

SAVES MOTOR BOAT CREW.

Quick Assistance for British Racers Caught in Sound.

Special to The New York Times.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Aug. 27.—But for the prompt assistance of J. D. Chapman, who owns the speed motor boat Adelaide II., and his companions, A. E. Ranney, Harry Lyons, and H. J. Topping, the British motor yachts' tender, in which were A. Jackson Stone, who represents the Royal Motor Yacht Club, and his friends, L. G. and Tuthill Spence and Herbert Schwinn, might have been lost in the Sound to-night.

Stone, who early in the afternoon had crossed the Sound in rough water from Larchmont to Huntington to engage quarters for the helmsmen of the British motor boats Maple Leaf IV. and Mona, having made their arrangements started back for Larchmont at 5 o'clock.

The sea was still heavy, and by the time they had reached the bell buoy off Lloyd's Neck their boat had almost filled with water. It short-circuited the magnetos and the boat stopped. It began to roll heavily and threatened to sink every minute.

Mr. Stone and his companions shouted for help.

Luckily their call was heard by Capt. Chapman, who immediately went to their assistance. After much difficulty the waterlogged boat was taken in tow and brought back to Huntington, a distance of some six miles. Mr. Stone and his party, after thanking their rescuers, made their way back to Larchmont by rail.

PANIC IN YONKERS THEATRE.

All Caused by Bride, Who Scratched Policeman and Screamed.

An audience of 1,700 was gathered in the Orpheum Theatre in Yonkers last night when Bernard Rau, a young chauffeur of 36 Prospect Street, sitting in the balcony with his bride of three weeks, got into an altercation with the special policeman in charge over his chances of getting better seats down stairs, and the policeman felt a spurt of blood from his cheeks and promptly placed Rau under arrest. Whereupon Mrs. Rau threw back her head and screamed.

Immediately the theatre was in an uproar and some one shouted "Fire." The word was repeated by a hundred voices and men and women turned to the exits, pushing roughly ahead and swarming over the seats. The attendants threw the doors open, switched on the lights, and the members of the orchestra moved forward and did their best to preserve order. When quiet was finally restored it was found that no one was hurt, though a few women had fainted. The source of all the excitement was led to Police Headquarters, where the bride admitted that the spurt of blood from the policeman's face had been due to her scratching to help her husband.

$5,000 THIEVES' WAREHOUSE.

Loot from Larchmont and Mamaroneck Burglaries Found in Room Here.

Almost $5,000 worth of fine linen, cut glass, statuary, bronzes, and art clocks, part of the loot from many homes in Larchmont and Mamaroneck, burglarized in the last two weeks, was found last night in a furnished room at 196 Third Avenue, according to Detectives Barber and O'Brien of the East Twenty-second Street Station. The discovery was made through an alleged confession of a young man giving the name of Paul Rossman, 24 years old, who was arrested Monday night in Larchmont, charged with the series of burglaries.

Rossman was taken to the jail in White Plains, and while there, according to the detectives, confessed to James O'Neill, the Chief of the White Plains detectives, that most of the stolen property would be found in the room in Third Avenue. The detectives went there last night. Most of the loot, they say, was identified by Joseph Bister, David Warren, Joseph Kane, and Margaret J. Merrill, all residents of Mamaroneck, whose homes have been burglarized.

Mrs. Schreyer, from whom Rossman rented the room, said last night that Rossman had taken the room but two weeks ago. At the time of renting it he said he was out of work, but paid her $4, and the next day said he had obtained employment driving a baker's wagon in Larchmont.

Every day after that she said he would take a suitcase with him in the morning and return it at night. He made her many presents of various sorts, and when she insisted on knowing where he got them he told her, she said, that he had a great many rich people on his route and that as they were going away he got most of the stuff they didn't want.

The detectives said that much of the loot was arranged in various places in Mrs. Schreyer's rooms, and she pointed out the various articles to them as presents Rossman had made to her.

It is said that Rossman confessed to having about an equal amount of stolen goods in a room in Hoboken.

According to Mrs. Schreyer, Rossman's parents are well-to-do in Germany, and have written him asking him to come home. He was to have sailed for Europe to-day, Mrs. Schreyer said.

ROBIN MAY CHANGE PLEA.

Witness in Bankruptcy Hearing Brings Up Point in His Favor.

The testimony of Frederick K. Morris, Secretary of the Bankers' Realty and Trust Company, given yesterday before United States Commissioner Gilchrist in the bankruptcy proceedings against the Bankers' Realty and Trust Company, makes it appear that Joseph G. Robin may withdraw his plea of guilty to wrecking the Northern Bank and demand a trial by jury when his case comes up again.

Robin insists that the evidence given yesterday varies so much from that given in the criminal proceedings that it points conclusively to his innocence.

Robin conducted yesterday's hearing in person, and under his rapid-fire questioning Mr. Morris admitted that the Bankers' Realty and Trust Company made loans without consideration, and that some of them were credited erroneously to Robin. These loans the witness said were made to the Aetna Indemnity Company, and not to Robin, as had formerly been testified.

Robin tried to get Mr. Morris to admit that he had seen a mortgage for $350,000 on the Morris Park Club House and other property which Morris told the Grand Jury he had never seen. It was upon certificates of participation in the Morris Park lien used as collateral that Robin contends he had borrowed $27,000 from the Washington Savings Bank. Robin's conviction hinged upon this loan.

"Did you or did you not see this mortgage, Mr. Morris," shouted Robin hoarsely as he leaned across the table with tears in his eyes. "Don't you remember that I sent it to Mr. Gifford of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard?"

"Yes, I do remember now," replied Morris.

Robin then sank back into his chair and was later assisted from the courtroom.

District Attorney Whitman said that he intended to have the matter investigated at once. Morris says that when he appeared before the Grand Jury against Robin he was ill and in no condition to recall the occurrences of several months before.

BROUGHT HERE TO BE KILLED

Police Think Man Stabbed in Battery Park Was Murdered in Revenge.

Chester Hellman, a soldier on duty at Governors Island, saw three men walking together in Battery Park near the South Ferry Subway station at 8 o'clock last night. After strolling some 100 feet they stopped and began to talk in low voices. Suddenly two of them started to run and the third one staggered and fell. This man regained his feet, took a few steps in the direction of the others, and then fell again. When Hellman reached him he was unconscious and bleeding from a dagger wound in the heart.

Hellman notified Policeman McGrath of the Traffic Squad. Dr. Ferguson of the Volunteer Hospital arrived in a few minutes, but found the man dead. Detective Brown of the Greenwich Village Station came to the conclusion, after a hurried investigation, that the crime was one of revenge. The man carried $74.60 and much jewelry, which had not been disturbed by his assailants.

The tailor's label on his inside coat pocket bore the name of P. Barofellone. The tailor was M. L. Olenick of 36 South Halsted Street, Chicago. A receipt for his railroad fare from Chicago was found in the man's pocket. No letters and no other papers of any kind were found.

Barofellone was fairly well dressed in a brown striped sack suit and straw hat. He wore six rings, one of which was set with three diamonds. The police believe that the man was enticed to this city from Chicago to be killed.

Meyer's Illness Due to Indigestion.

HAMILTON, Mass., Aug. 27.—George von L. Meyer, Secretary of the Navy, who arrived at his home here last night, is somewhat indisposed as a result of a slight attack of indigestion before he left Washington. It was stated that the Secretary had not been seriously ill, but that he had felt the effects of the extreme heat in the capital city. It is expected that after a few days' rest he will be fully recovered.

LAX AND WASTEFUL, MANN CALLS HOUSE

Bills Passed Merely a Rehabilitation of Republican Measures, Declares Minority Leader.

LAWS PASSED UNIMPORTANT

While the Democrats Have Failed in Statesmanship and in Realizing Their Boasts of Economy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The work of the Democratic House is severely criticised in an end-of-the-session statement issued this afternoon by Representative James R. Mann, floor leader of the Republicans of that body. According to Mr. Mann, the Democrats failed to display qualities of constructive statesmanship; were laggards and unorganized, and most of the general legislation of the session was a rehabilitation of measures introduced in a Republican House, but which failed of passage in the prior Congress through lack of time. This is the way Mr. Mann says he views the work of the House Democrats:

"The boasts about economy in the House of Representatives went by the board. The main work in the House on the Democratic side has been a constant boasting of what they were going to do at the next session. I said last December that this session of Congress would last longer and do less than any other regular session of recent years. My forecast proved correct.

"This session of Congress has enacted laws fewer in number and of less importance than any session in recent years. The laws we have passed are in the main of little importance and generally local in character.

"The Panama Canal bill is one of the greatest importance, and, in the main, that was a bill prepared by me in a prior Congress. The claimed reformation of the rules has proved a farce. That the House has been inefficient is shown by the fact that more than 200 Senate bills which passed the Senate remain unacted on in the House.

"It is a constant boast that the Democrats at this session passed a law providing for publicity of campaign contributions. Such is not the fact. They only passed an amendment to the law which had previously been passed by a Republican House, and the principal part is one relating to primary campaign expenses, and that was considered in the law by the Republicans of the House against the protest of the Democratic side of the House. Somewhat similar is the bill relating to eight-hour labor, which is only an amendment of a previous law, and only made a slight change in the provisions of the original act.

"Practically all the laws of any importance passed at this session were either bills prepared in a previous Congress and left over for lack of time to consider, or else they were bills prepared by officials in President Taft's Administration.

"The Democrats were forced to agree to a parcels post, which only a short time ago they insisted they would not agree to. They are entitled to no credit for it.

"Outside of money expended for the Panama Canal, which cannot be considered as ordinary expenses, the appropriations for this session of Congress exceed those for the last Republican session. Not only is this so, but the Democrats have appropriated money in many places where it was pure extravagance and where the money was not needed, and have refused to make appropriations where they are absolutely essential for the conduct of good government."

BESIEGE POLICE STATION.

False Report of Clubbing Brings Out Reserves Against Crowd.

Morris Levino, a pushcart peddler, who had taken his stand at Park Avenue and 103d Street, was ordered by Patrolman May yesterday morning to move on. Levino began to argue. The policeman told him a second time and then a third time to move on, and gave the pushcart a shove in the direction he wanted the peddler to take.

At this the peddler threw himself on the street, screaming and beating his hands against the pavement. His cries in a few seconds drew a crowd that blocked the entire corner. The sight of the man rolling over and over on the street and shrieking frantically led the crowd to believe they were witnessing the death agonies of one who was being put to death for contradicting a policeman. Several on the outskirts of the mob shouted for revenge, and May was in danger of being hustled when Policeman Keith came to his assistance. When they started for the East 104th Street Station with Levino they took three more prisoners with them—Mrs. Yetta Bernstein, charged with peddling without a license, and Miss Mollie Solomon and Moses Lyon, charged with interfering with an officer.

Outside the station a crowd of several hundred gathered, threatening vengeance on the police. The reserves were called out to clear the sidewalk. In the meantime Assistant District Attorney Minton and Chief Clerk Hamm of the Homicide Bureau had arrived in response to a telephone call stating that the police had just taken the life of one pushcart peddler and were on the point of slaying several more. Several men who claimed to be witnesses told conflicting stories to the representative of the District Attorney, and the matter was dropped when it was found that Levino had not been hurt.

In the Harlem Court Levino was fined $10 by Magistrate Cornell. Samuel Cohen, 205 East 103d Street, a witness, was locked up for perjury. He testified that he had seen Policeman May club Levino brutally with his nightstick. Several policemen took the stand and said that May carried no nightstick.

Crushed on His Fixed Post.

Patrolman Valentine Bach, on fixed post duty at Sixth Street and Cooper Square, yesterday morning was caught between a Third Avenue surface car and an elevated railroad pillar and so severely injured that he had to be taken to Bellevue in an ambulance. Besides several broken ribs, it is believed that he has internal injuries.

MISS CURRAN LOST PLACE.

Nurse Found Dead in Hotel Did Not Voluntarily Leave Mrs. Smith.

It became known yesterday that Miss Julia M. Curran, the governess and companion who was found dead in the Boulevard Hotel, Broadway and Sixty-seventh Street, last Thursday night, and by many was thought to have been murdered, did not voluntarily leave the service of Mrs. William L. Smith, by whom she had been employed as a companion. A few days before her death Miss Curran reappeared in New York, and no explanation has been forthcoming to explain where she was between the time she was discharged by Mrs. Smith and her death.

The discharge followed soon after Mrs. Smith arrived at Saratoga Springs. From Saratoga comes the additional information that Mrs. Smith, after discharging Miss Curran, gave her transportation to New York and saw to it that she was put on board the proper train. After Miss Curran departed, Mrs. Smith continued her tour alone.

It was because of the police inactivity in the Curran case that Capt. Arthur Gloster, commanding the detectives of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, was demoted and assigned to desk duty in the West 125th Street Police Station. Coroner's Physician Schultze, who performed the autopsy, declared that there were so many suspicious circumstances attending the death of the young woman that he considered it one that deserved thorough investigation, and he added that the police had not made such an investigation.

Since Dr. Schultze made public the result of the autopsy the police have been trying to locate the man who accompanied Miss Curran to the Boulevard Hotel and who was with her at the time of her death. So far they have been unsuccessful.

William Bumsin, the night clerk at the Boulevard Hotel, was arrested last night by detectives attached to Inspector Dwyer's staff on a charge of keeping and maintaining a disorderly house. He was held in $1,000 bail, and Mrs. Dora Busse, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, went on his bond.

WIRETAPPING CHARGES FAIL.

Cases of Three Men Raiders Caught Quashed—Two Bonds Forfeited.

The cases against David O'Neal, William Collins, and Edward Thompson, the alleged wire tappers, who were arrested during a raid on 252 West Fifty-second Street and later indicted upon the testimony of Dr. Robert H. Martin of Mt. Clemens, Mich., were dismissed by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday, while the $5,000 bail bonds of Edward Lethridge and Henry Dixon, also arrested in the raid, were ordered forfeited.

The quashing of the indictments followed the trial of O'Neal, who was ordered acquitted after Dr. Martin had completed his testimony. Dr. Martin testified that he met Lethridge in Philadelphia; that he accompanied him to this city, and later to the place at 252 West Fifty-second Street. Lethridge first gave him $5 to bet on a race and later gave him $8 to bet on the second race, and finally gave him $1,000 to place on a horse running in a third race. The raid was made immediately after this bet was placed, and the five men were arrested. When he was before the Grand Jury Martin said:

"Lethridge—or Adams, as I knew him—laid some money down and I laid mine beside his."

Yesterday he said that he meant he had laid down the money which Lethridge gave him, and that the Grand Jury had evidently mistaken him, as they asked him on questions as to what he meant. Both Lethridge and Dixon refused to appear, and although Judge Rosalsky said they could not be convicted, he ordered their bail forfeited and quashed the two remaining indictments.

Outing for St. John's Church.

The United Societies of St. John's Catholic Church, situated at 250 East Seventy-second Street, will hold an excursion down Long Island Sound on Aug. 31, starting from the foot of East Seventy-third Street at 1 P. M. on the steamer Empire, and spending the day at different landing points along the Sound. Father Walsh, known as the "giant priest," assisted by Father Vaughan, will be in charge, and the safety of the excursion will be provided for by the policemen and firemen who are members of the participating societies.

TAFT IN BEVERLY FOR ONE DAY'S STAY

He Leaves This Morning for Columbus, Ohio, to Participate in the City's Centennial.

THEN BACK FOR FOUR DAYS

Will Revisit Washington Next Week, and Then Hopes to Begin a Real Vacation at the Summer Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 27.—Coming from Washington for one day's stay, President Taft reached Parametta at 8:25 o'clock this morning, motoring down from Boston, accompanied by Major Thomas L. Rhoades and his brother-in-law, W. C. Herron, Assistant Attorney General.

Reaching the Summer White House, he was greeted by Mrs. Taft and Charlie Taft, and lost no time in donning his golfing clothes and going to the Myopia Club, where he played golf with his brother, Horace Taft of Watertown, Conn.

The President will leave Beverly tomorrow morning and take the 10 o'clock train from Boston for Columbus, Ohio, to fill an engagement made months ago to take part in the centennial programme of the city. He is due in Columbus early Thursday morning, and a round of festivities is planned in his honor. He will visit the State Fair Grounds and the Capitol and attend a big civic banquet, where he will make the principal address. The President leaves Columbus early in the morning, and is due in Boston Saturday morning.

After four days in Beverly, the President leaves again for Washington on Tuesday, and will be there for a day, leaving on Thursday night for New York, where he will board the Mayflower for his first trip this Summer. The Mayflower will take the President to New London, where he will speak at the New England Waterways Convention, which is to be held in that city.

From New London the President will come to Beverly Sunday in the yacht, the first visit of that craft this Summer. The yacht will be moored off West Beach and will be stationed here during the President's stay.

After President Taft's return, it is expected that Secretary Carmi Thompson will come on. The executive offices in the Board of Trade rooms were opened for business to-day, in charge of Rudolph Forster and with a full complement of executive clerks.
